Excerpt: Naperville InvitationalBy Steve NemethSi never there is a tournament to watch, this is the 2019 Naperville Invitational for women's soccer. The field is best described as quality - stressed, italic, and all The following measures for the 24-team event for which the game begins Wednesday in the style of the World Cup-format. The competition in the eight groups continues until Saturday to determine the eight finalists for a hook tournament. He started in 1998 and crowned two pool winners. Since 1999, only one title has been awarded and when it comes to proof of its quality, of the 31 state champions decided since 1988, 27 of them have participated in the Naperville Invitational.Since the advent of the three-class system in 2009, 10 members of the field have represented 18-of-20 participants in the championship game. When it comes to the current Chicagoland Soccer Top 25, 13 of the top 15 teams are on the field. Tack on three other section mention honorable, plus another from the first 50 preseason, and it's really a destination point for college coaches. Fourteen players who have been acclaimed by the CS All-State in 2018 are competing. Now think about it - 52 more players, who were named on last season's Chicagoland Soccer All-State Watch List, will also compete. There are other annual school tournaments: the North Shore Invitational, which has been transformed into Lou Malnati's Deep Dish Classic, the Augsburg-Drach competition of more than 30 years now shared by De Saint-Charles High Schools; The new Plainfield Classic; Prospect's Knights Invitational, as well as many high school events such as Colin Smith of Stillman Valley or Barbfest of DeKalb. But not one in the state, tournament in season, school or otherwise, can match the competitive quality of the Naperville Invitational.Two-time state champion in defense, and Chicagoland Soccer No. 1 Barrington has the biggest target on his back. Technically, the reigning champion of the event is the new sorter ranked No. 3, whose success last year earned the best invitational crown in history. From the list of previous winners of Naperville Invitational, there is also number 8 St. Charles East, No. 9 Naperville North, No. 12 Sandburg, No. 13 Waubonsie Valley, No. 14 Nequa Valley and Honorable Mention Naperville Central. However, it is foolish not to think that history could with a first title-winner, especially when one recognizes that No. 2 Saint-Charles North, No. 4 Lyons, No. 6 Conant, No. 10 Benet and No. 15 Geneva will compete for this honor. Is there anyone else among this stacked tournament who can take home the material? Course. That's why they play. Here's a look at the eight groups. Group ABenet, Oswego and Naperville CentralNaperville Central hosts Group A and Group B. The Redhawks (7-4-1) have an honourable mention in the chicagoland soccer poll and the hope field advantage oswego and benet No. 10 ranked. Oswego coach Kelsey Champion has a team that is mostly young and unfortunately plagued by injuries. However, the Panthers (2-9-0) enter the play-off 5-0 win over In a Southwest Prairie Conference game Monday.Benet got an 8-0-0 start that included notable wins over Sandburg and downstate pillar Notre Dame (Peoria) before suffering a 2-1 upset by Catholic Joliet. Coach Gerard Oconer's team bounced back with a 5-0 win over Oak Park-River Forest and managed conference opponent Marian Catholic 8-0 Tuesday. The Redwings (10-0-1) will start with Oswego on Wednesday. The team on the Chicagoland All-State Watchlist (ASWL) includes four seniors: forward Abby Casmere (best team of eight goals and 17 points), midfielder Mia Ullmer, defenseman Mary Kate Olson and goaltender Eva Frantzen. Two juniors are on the list: defender Kate Flynn and forward Mia Tommassone. Forward Jamie Cibulka, Benet's second-year forward, was recognized on the Chicagoland (PW) soccer list in the spring. Naperville Central stands out on the ASWL include a pair of older, defender Abbey Hillman and midfielder Maddie Mills, as well as junior midfielder Hannah Bradley-Leon. Lead forward Caroline Reedy is in the PW group. Coach Ed Watson's Redhawks own three Naperville invitational titles with the most recent of 2012.Group BGeneva, Nequa Valley and Sandburg According to the standings, they are perhaps the most competitive trio. Number 12 Sandburg (9-1-1) is grouped with number 14 nequa Valley (4-2-3) and number 15 Geneva (5-2-1). Talk about a story of rags to wealth. Last year, Sandburg started 0-3-0 before Maddie Manzke broke his kneecap and the 2018 campaign ended with two wins. Since the opening of 2019 with a 0-0 draw against Plainfield East, the Eagles' only loss was a 1-0 thriller against Benet that decided the wheaton champion North Kickoff Classic. Manzke fullback and coach Tom Kubowicz had a five-game winning streak On Tuesday night. As is always the case with Nequa Valley, coach Joe Moreau's program never strays from the competition. In addition to a tie and a loss at the Parkway College Showcase in St. Louis, all but one of the Wildcats' opponents are ranked in the Top 25. The results include a season-opening tie with top-rated Barrington and a 2-0 loss to World No.2 St. Charles North. Leading the team is 2018 CS All-Stater Erin McCarthy, a senior defenseman. Two other seniors Danielle Hopkins and Shannon Tagler were granted asvl status. Nequa would host a bookend for its 2011 invitational naperville trophy. Geneva also went 0-1-1 in the Parkway College Showcase and is looking forward to rebounding after a 2-1 Dukane Conference Saturday in St. Charles East that ended a three-game winning streak. Coach Megan Owens' roster is led by LC All-State midfielders Jenna Dominguez and Sydney Gratz. ASWL returnees include midfielder Stephanie Howe as well as juniors (guardian) Katie Montgomery and (defender) Annalise Spindle.Group CLyons, Naperville North, Oswego EastNaperville North, Group C and D games, and the Huskies. Huskies. hope everyone looks beyond them starting with the other opponents of Group C Lyons (7-1-1) and Oswego East (5-5-1). While Lyons is ranked No. 4 and North is No. 9, both teams must first face a spirited Oswego East crew that had a split in the Parkway College Showcase. Coach Juan Leaf's Wolves led by asWL junior defender allison Adams. A quartet of players with PW status include senior forward Sydney Conway and goalkeeper Reagan Sanders, as well as junior midfielders Madison Frazer and Haley Lewis.Lyons recovered from the frustration of a 95th minute, 2-1 overtime loss to New Trier in the semifinal match of the Deep Dish Lou Malnati Classic. Coach BillAnsperry's roster has talent on the field from 2018 All-State pick and senior midfielder Eileen Murphy. Lions members are two seniors in defenders Grace Truax and Bri Stritar, junior goalie Sophia Grabis and second-year forward Ava Dalano.As for North, junior forward Hannah Martin is a 2018 All-Stater joined by four ASWL selections: senior defenders Reilly Riggs and Paige, senior forward Katie Murphy and junior midfielder Le Shumate. Midfielder-defender Madie Schecht is a choice of PW. Coach Steve Goletz's Huskies would love to win a fifth invitational crown from Naperville and are one of only three teams to win a title in consecutive years (2015 and 2016). DHinsdale Central Group, St. Charles East, Waubonsie ValleyOn paper, St. Charles East would be listed as the group D favorite, but neither Waubonsie Valley or Hinsdale Central care about that. The last two start on Wednesday, a day after the road games. First-year coach Tony Madonia and Hinsdale Central (3-4-1) are looking forward to putting a tough start behind them. The Red Devils turned to a pair of ASWL players in senior defenseman Samantha Moriarty and junior before Haley Arnold. Central has a trio of seniors on the list of players to watch in defense Sophie Simmons and midfielders Samantha Guido and Caroline Lyman.Although Waubonsie Valley's last four Naperville Invitational Trophies was won in 2014, Coach Julie Bergstrom's program has been up in the Chicagoland Soccer Top 25 to his current level No. 13 and boasts a stellar 9-1-1 ledger. Junior before Grace Setter PW pick, are spearheading the resurgence Warriors. In 8th place, St. Charles East snatched a 1-0 loss to Fremd to beat Naperville North 2-0, then pick up the Huntley Invitational Trophy before losing in a 2-1 championship game. rival and co-host St. Charles North in the Augsburg-Drach Invitational. This result was followed by another 2-1, this one against St. Ignatius, before the Saints reversed that score in their favour by beating Geneva. CS 2018 All-State junior defender Alonda Carranza is simply tenacious. Senior midfielder and ASWL choice Kayla Villa provides significant leadership. The recent PW PW among Elle McCaslin's talented newcomers and scorers, goalkeeper Grace Griffin, junior midfielder Margaret Harper and second-half midfielder Hannah Miller. The Saints' Trophy contains material from two Naperville invitationals, one in 2002 under the title East, and the other from 2000, when there was only one De Saint-Charles program. EBarrington Group, Bartlett, Burlington CentralBarrington serves as location for Group E and F competitions. The Fillies, who won the 2017 Invitational, entered this season after losing CS goalkeeper and 2018 player of the year Sam Schmitz, but barely skipped a beat. Coach Ryan Stengren's team started the season with a 2-0 win over Naperville North, then rallied for a 1-1 draw against Nequa Valley. This was followed by seven consecutive wins, including Tuesday's 1-0 triumph at Prospect. There is no shortage of talent for the Fillies (8-0-1) from 2018 All-State picks in senior defenders Madi Rosen and Christine Batliner, more junior before Tina Teik. Unfortunately, a fourth All-Stater - senior before Ashley Prell - is now sidelined. ASWL members include a pair of elderly in defender Juliane Moreno and midfielder Ashley Rocco, a junior trio in midfield Ashley Armando and forwards Ellie McAuley and Kara Jones, as well as second-year defenders Jennifer Devona and Kate McGreevy. Junior midfielder Rebecca Shomaker finds himself among the PWs.Now completely under the direction of coach Vince Revak, Bartlett continues the improvement he has produced as co-head coach and assistant. The Hawks are far more capable than their 4-5-2 record suggests following Monday's 1-0 loss to Glenbard East. Much depends on the healthy return of defender Paige Bednarke, who helps set the table for fellow senior and forward Mikayla Brown. Bartlett boasts a pair of quick improvement first-year students in goalie Caitlin Yurkovich and midfielder-forward Tessa Evans.Yes Burlington Central is an AA class program that seems irrelevant at first glance. But coach Jessica Arneson schedules the Rockets as much as possible against the top-level competition. Barrington, last year's Class 3A champion, has lost 1-0 twice in 2018, twice on the Naperville Invitational. The second was to co-host Naperville North, but the first was at Burlington Central based on a 4-3 shootout in the group game. Don't expect the Fillies to look beyond revenge. Unlike last year, the Rockets (4-3-1) record be broken by the opposition class: 0-3-1 in order against 3A enemies Naperville Central, Bartlett, St. Charles East, and Schaumburg, and 4-0 while surpassing the AA 34-0 class schools - the reason, besides perhaps jealousy, that led to the Kishwaukee River Conference booting Central after this year. Keep an eye on 2018 All-Stater Zoey Kolhoff, a junior midfielder, and ASWL junior selections ahead of Madelyn Menke or soph midfielder Isabella Hartmann Group FSt. Charles Charles Evanston, PalatineWhile Barrington might have some revenge in mind for Burlington Central, the Fillies could find themselves on the opposite side of this equation if the opportunity develops for St. Charles North, the Group F favorite. The North Stars were an undefeated club projected throughout 2018 to play for the state crown until Barrington 2-0 surprise in a superspecialist showdown. The Deep and talented North Stars had a prolific all-state scoring duo (Gia Wahlberg and Hailey Rydberg) signed by the Big Ten programs and yet their run ended in the same round as 2017 when state runner-up New Trier won a 1-0 nail-biter. These two stars are gone, but guess what, North enters the tournament at 7-0-1. Since a 2-2 season-opener draw in Conant, this constellation of Stars of the North -- ranked No. 2 -- has only won with seven straight wins for the group's opening clash with world number 11 Evanston. Coach Brian Harks still has a Wahlberg-Rydberg duo that he can count on -- in this case Cece and Sami -- plus a third threat to junior forward Sarah Andrey. Cece was acclaimed in 2018 by All-State while Sami, a junior midfielder, and Claudia Najera, a senior striker, were the winners of the ASWL. The recent Players to Watch pack includes Andrey as well as the elders in goalie Sara Maleski and defenseman Ali Wessel.Evanston brings a 9-3-0 mark to the tournament by ASWL chooses Hadley Bushala, a senior forward, and Calista O'Connor, a junior midfielder. Coach Stacy Salgado's roster includes five top players, starting with a trio of elderly defenders Annika DeStefano and midfielders Keara Kerr and Katarina Sehgal. Joining them on the list are second midfielder Ryan Lucas and rookie before Brelyn Viamille.Palatine (2-7-1) comes in winless in five matches of the Mid-Suburban League that include losses to other tournament participants Barrington, Fremd, and Conant, but veteran boss Willie Fillian is no stranger to success. The 26-year-old Pirates coach is one win away from his 300th triumph with the girls to go with 370 career wins on the boys side highlighted by a 1994 state championship. Forced to tinker with the roster, Fillian has a core of three PW performers that includes two juniors, forward Olivia Radtke and defenseman Melanie Simon, as well as second-year forward Ashley Donselaar.Group GConant, Downers Grove South, New TrierGroup G and H matches will be played at two venues, New Trier plus Oak Park and River Forest, with one exception. This could be notable for Group G when it comes to the two-tiered programs Number 6 Conant must visit No. 3 New Trier. But before this tangle takes place, Downers Grove South hopes that one or both can be taken into view. Downers Grove South (5-3-1) turns to a trio of ASWL senior designations, Nicole Fajardo (forward) and Jillian Paladino (midfielder), as well as junior midfielder Jordan Rose. Coach Chris Hernandez also has a pair of SENIOR PW picks Alond Biondo and junior midfielder Maddie Rafferty.Conant (9-0-1) followed a 2-2 draw with St. Charles North with eight straight wins, including four shutouts. The most recent was a 4-0 clean sheet on Monday in the Hersey rankings. Coach Jason Franco relies on two key juniors, forward Stephanie Mazurek and ASWL defender and selection Delaney Hoyer. Mazurek started the year with 16 goals in a quest to follow in the footsteps of his sister Emily, who left as the Cougars' third-leading scorer with four years of 46 goals and 32 assists. As mentioned earlier, the defending champion of the New Trier tournament (9-1-5) would like to continue his reign. Veteran coach Jim Burnside has an impressive core from 2018 All-Staters in senior goalie Meghan Dwyer and junior midfielder Emma Weaver. While ASWL member and midfielder Soph Grace Walker is sidelined by injury, three of his team-mates on the list - senior Lily Conley (midfielder) and Josie Crumley (defender) and second midfielder Mia Sedgwick - are ready to do the battle. Another Trevian of the PW card is senior midfielder Fallon Warshauer.Group HFremd, Loyola, Oak Park and River ForestTo mitigate a conflict based on the spring break, Group H has a game already in the books as the No. 23 Loyola used a 5-4 shootout advantage to pass the former top 10 member Fremd.With two exceptions, Loyola's calendar also resembled a who's that The Rambler (5-4-2) got tangled up with Fremd, Lyons, Evanston, Praine Ridge and St. Ignatius, as well as Hinsdale Central, participating in Naperville Invitational. First year coach Shannon Haringer has all-stater Maggie Brett back and getting close to full strength after injury. An ASWL pick in junior midfielder Vanessa Murray plus three PW selections, including senior goalkeeper Katherine Jaros, plus a first-year duo in midfielder Grace Ehler and Vikings forward Molly Sipe.Fremd are 5-3-1 after Monday's 2-1 Mid-League Suburban triumph over Elk Grove. Coach Steve Keller's team is led by a quartet of ASWL artists in two juniors, forward Mackenzie Stein and goaltender Jennifer Norris, as well as midfielders Lauren Burk and Caleigh Stone.Oak Park and River Forest (2-4-1) against Loyola in New Trier on Wednesday and coach Christine Johnson hopes the Huskies can use the home-field advantage for Thursday's game with Fremd.Mr. Fremd.
