Are very self-explanatory: you don't even own the deck of cards to enjoy it - just click start and start sorting through the automatically generated spread Cards(s) at the destination for each other. If you decide to move the dragged card(s) elsewhere, just drag them there and the other cards will go back to where they were. Cancelling the move will also move the cards back. If you drag a card or card in the middle of a stack and the card that dragged to move away would be legitimate to go back to the top of the card(s), then they would slide out of the way and you'd just slip the card(s) in the inside.
