Sandwich police department il

The sandwich police are led by Chief James W. Bianchi. Before taking on the role of police chief, Chief Bianchi retired as a lieutenant of the Orland Park, Illinois Police Department investigation after 28 years of proud service. Chief Bianchi strives to develop the sandwich police into a progressive, well-trained and well-equipped modern law enforcement agency consisting of individuals who are not just colleagues, but a family that works for a common purpose. The Sandwich Police serve the city's citizens on sandwiches, as well as our guests who walk through, shop and play in our community on a daily basis. Our staff is dedicated to the service and protection of everyone we come into contact with on a daily basis. We work diligently in cooperation with our fellow citizens and law enforcement to provide professional services to the community.
