

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Ariel's dad 90 day fiance

Avery Mills and Omar Albakur first appeared on 90 Day Fiance: Before the 90 Days. They faced a host of challenges during their time on the show, including the Mills family trying to dissuade her from taking albakkour and moving to Syria. When their season ended, Albakur still didn't have a visa to move to America with Mills and there seemed to be no light at the end of the tunnel. Now, Mills updates fans on where they stand. Avery Mills Instagram Where are Avery and Omar now? After Mills and Albakur got married, Mills had to return to America. The couple have yet to find a way to get Albakur to America. What now? web series, the two explained how difficult the visa process is for someone from Syria. Although it helps that Albakur is married to an American citizen, the chances of him living in the U.S. are slim. If Albakur can't come to America, they plan to try to live together in another country. Yesterday, Mills gave fans an update on her marriage on her Instagram. She and Albakur now live separately. To clarify, Omar and I are happily married, but I stay in America most of the time because I sponsor Omar's visa, so I have to keep my great girl job in America and I'm in college. They still hope they can be together someday. Discrimination in America Mills converted to Islam and now wears all the required religious clothing. Since converting, she has stated that she has faced discrimination. In January, she told a story where she was mistreated at Walmart. It happened to me at Walmart today, thankfully, although these 2 people can't do it with the other people out there, she tweeted along with a note about what happened. They're right, America is not what it used to be. You can't clearly be prejudiced at work anymore. It's funny now B.C. they'll live minus the welfare with my tax dollars. I went to Walmart today and two workers were next to me, they started talking about how America wasn't the way it used to be, and how Trump should have taken out the trash and looked at me,' she said. I stayed out of it and just kept shopping and they assumed I didn't speak English and so they pointed at me and say: Do you think she can afford everything and the other said: Maybe with her welfare checks on our taxes,' she continued. I called them for it and they tried to kiss my ass and they no longer have a job. Trump didn't have to take out the trash B.C. I did. Fans jumped to Mills' defense. It's a shame how they feel they need to humiliate others to feel taller, one person tweeted. We are a nation of immigrants. We must help each other succeed in this great experiment called the United States. It's a patriotic thing to do. You continue to impress me with your strength of character, and I love that you stand up for what you believe in, commented another. It's integrity and the world needs more people like you. This season's 90th Groom's Day had a few cringeworthy moments, but no cast made fans as uncomfortable as Big Ed Brown. From the start, fans were skeptical of his relationship with Rose. Not only is she younger than her child, but Brown also doesn't seem to have done any research on the Philippines or Philippine culture before going there to meet her. When he met her family and saw where she lived, he became increasingly insensitive to her culture and the poverty in which she lived. Big Ed's Instagram @thisbiged it all came to a head in the most embarrassing scene in 90-day history, when Brown had to take a shower with his father Rose. How does Big Ed feel about Rose's living conditions? Before attending, Rose Brown knew she had no money, but apparently he didn't know how Rose lived. Oh my God, Brown told Entertainment Tonight when asked about his stint at Philipines. The conditions were unforeseen. I knew it wouldn't be a pleasant experience, but I didn't expect it to be as bad as it was. There was, like, a monsoon, and the electricity was going to go, and it was raining on me, like, a drop dripped all night long. Brown was not only uncomfortable there, but he was also worried about his safety. There are exposed wires everywhere and water was dripping inside, and electricity kept coming in and going, so the fan would go on and off, so that scared me, he said. So I was worried about getting electrocuted. I was bitten by mosquitoes and my colleague said they had mosquitoes that could fly, and of course they didn't have windows, so it was all weight in my opinion. I was just miserable. What was the shower with Father Rose, how? In most relationships, a shower with your potential father-in-law never comes into conversation. But Brown had to do just that when he stayed with the Rose family. When I woke up in the morning, it seemed that a thousand bullet holes were in the ceiling because the light was shining through, so that was my experience, he said of the outlet. I wake up and I'm already miserable and then I'm like: I need to go take a bath. I don't even know where the bathtub was... and then, of course, we go to her father's room, and then he's like, hey, I want to take a dip with you. I say: Okay, so we go another six feet to this 50-gallon water drum and therefore the bath scene with her father. I'm throwing soap, it's surreal. Rose sits there, hose me. It's a freaking freeze, the water was actually very, very cold. The soul scene was not the only time doubted Philippine cleaning tactics. Earlier this season he confronted Rose about having hairy legs and asked her to shave. Rose looked shocked by his request, but eventually admitted that if she didn't shave her legs, she would have to kiss him. 90 Day Fianc is a hugely popular reality TV franchise that has spawned numerous side effects over the years. The spin-offs have taken on their own lives, and fans have grown to love the related show almost as much as the original series. One of the latest side effects is 90 Day Fianc: The Other Way, which premiered in early 2019. While 90 Day Fiance: The Other Way has only been airing for just over a year, the show has earned a serious buzz, and last season in particular has fans online really riled up. What is '90 Day Fianc: The Other Way' About? In June 2019, 90 Day Fianc: The Other Way debuted on television. In a notable departure from other shows in the franchise, 90 Day Fianc: The Other Way focused on what happens when the American half featured a couple marrying their partner abroad and constantly moving to their partner's home country. During the season, the couple must navigate difficult-to-laws, cultural differences, and problems arising from moving abroad. 90 Day Fianc: The Other Way is widely considered the most dramatic series of the franchise, and the couples had to deal with some serious problems. The current season of the show, in particular, is rife with problems, mainly stemming from the tumultuous relationship between Brittany and Yazan. Brittany and Yazan are controversial pair of '90 Day Fianc' stars Brittany and Yazan TLC RELATED: '90 Day Fianc': How Brittany Banks really felt after her struggle at the airport with Yazan from the beginning. Brittany and Yazan were the subject of intense debate. The two could not be more different on the surface. Brittany Banks is an influencer originally from Florida who describes herself as an adventure. I'm funny. I'm a girl. I'm Barbie. I'm like a seven-layer cake. She dabbled in modeling, rap and marketing work, and loves nothing more than posing for provocative photos on Instagram. Yazan, who lives in Jordan, is a conservative Muslim who lives with his parents and younger siblings. While Yazan has made it clear that he thinks Brittany is the most beautiful girl in the world, it has been clear since the start of season two that they will struggle by seeing eye-to-eye on certain things. One of the biggest problems was that Brittany would not be able to adapt to the very conservative lifestyle that Yazan and his family preferred, and that the structures of society in Jordan would not contribute to a free spirit like Brittany. However, fans certainly weren't super supportive of Brittany and her journey were shocked to learn that the influential is used by today's much older men - even those in their eighties. Fans love Brittany's father One Man, who has supported Brittany from the start despite some of her questionable relationship decisions, is her father. Although her father was shocked to learn that Brittany was planning to move to Jordan for permanent residency, he admitted on the show that his hesitance was due to concerns about her safety more than anything else. It's very scary that something could happen to Brittany all the way there and I'm here in America, he said. Although fans have not always responded positively to Brittany, they love her father and the close bond they share. In a recent Reddit thread, fans discussed the scene where he drops off his daughter at the airport. Brittany's father is there for one of the most beautiful people ever on the show, one fan said, while another remarked: Can we just all appreciate Britney's father's smile. And subtlety. Several other fans agreed that Brittany's father is super-hot, posting comments such as: I'm just going to put this out there.... I'm a DIGGIN Brittany Dad!!!! While it seems as though Brittany will certainly experience some major ups and downs during the rest of the season, her father is the one person who is likely to remain in the public good grace. Mercy.