Don't rely alone on your owners' manual for your Jenn-Air grill model number. Owner's manuals are frequently mixed at points of sale, especially for pre-assembled units. Find the CSA board/label on your grill to get the correct model number. The Jenn-Air CSA label can be trusted by the manufacturers' model number. The label is often found inside cabinet doors or on the back of the grille. This is a list of all the Jenn-Air grills we know. If your grill is not listed, you can click here to send an email to our GrillDr that includes the make and model of your grill. We will investigate why your model is not listed, determine if we have parts for your grill, and contact you by return email. NOTE: Requests accompanied by CSA photos take precedence! Important: Please include a photo of your grill's CSA certification label, which is located somewhere on the grill. This label shows the manufacturer's name, model number, and serial number. If you have a smartphone, simply take a photo of the full CSA tag and send it a text message to GrillDr@grill-parts.com attach it to the email. Additional photos of the grill and/or parts in question are very useful. Any additional information about your grill that you can provide, such as how old you are, where you bought it, the number and dimensions of the cooking racks, burners and heat plates, will greatly help you find the right parts for your grill. Images of their existing parts, and especially the images in the parts list and diagram pages in the owner's manual, are always very useful. Home? Contact us? Privacy Policy Returns Policy ? Shipping Policy ? About Us I just wanted to give the head in year 3 of owning a Lowes SSteel Jenn Air Grill of $650 -- the beginning died a slow, 1-year death. DH has spent 2 hours on the phone with Jenn Air You bought it Lowes? Oh, we didn't do that... good luck they are giving all the issues... do we pay $175-$200 in parts and try the auto repair (but DH doesn't really have the time). Service call $200 + $200 in parts OR trash and start w/ Weber (which lasted us about 15 years last) Exterior looks new--- but door at the bottom doesn't stay close...
