Copyright © 2020 InfoSpace Holdings, LLC, a System1 company that runs the world? How about a 50-foot attack by a Beyonce-style woman? Singer/active women wear designer/dominator world is just one of many music artists to have their songs turned into grindhouse movie posters. MusiXploitation is a series of posters for films that exist only in the hearts of rabid fans. In the late '90s, Master P released feature films complete with the same titles as his albums, which were a sort of fictional precursor to lemonade with some seriously fraught dialogue. This new series is a glimpse of the world where the practice caught on with the entire music industry. The series was created by Paris-based artistic director David Reddon and features blaxploitation posters for songs and albums by Amy Winehouse, 2Pac, and Jay-Z. (Previously, Rydon had mashed musicians with vintage ads.) Some are objectively appropriate, such as the pyramids carried by Frank Ocean, the scary, others will make his name very touched, such as the ill-tinting of Lauren Hill who turned into a bikini bank robbery caper. Like the modern Quentin Tarantino covers the incoming book on Co.Create, some entries marred by poor Photoshop are almost comical. Those that struck the mark, though, like Tyler the Creator Yonkers, hit him hard. Take a look at more stickers in the slides above. [Via Fubiz] 100 Geecs, 1000 GeecsCourtesy from Dog Show 100 000 geecs are an incredibly special band, and you know it from the second money machine begins. Hey, you're lil's baby pee / Do you think you're even cool? Huh? - Do you think you are too strong? You're talking a big lot game for someone with such a pickup truck, Laura Lee spits over an overwhelming amount of distortion. If there's one song that can explain geecs (there's no, but hey, let's pretend) it's this one-track loud and jumper that cares wildly between the early '30s rap club, bubblegum, and harsh noise. Every time bass hits, it'll make your bones rattle (good thing, we promise them)-G. C. Saweetie, ICYCourtesy of ICY/Art Records/Warner RecordsSaweetie, my type Saweetie in my kind is one of the hip-hop songs everywhere from 2019, and rightly so. The light-hearted syser that samples from the hit Betty Pablo, my qualitative practically built for the wedge itself in your head. America Saweetieheart (I'm Sorry) is quickly grabbing the lane for herself in this very busy genre: Each pub feels breathless, as if it were rapping as strongly as 10,000% of the time. It's not a sense of urgency or anything, though G.C.In, We've covered you. I love movies, I love music, but I love both when I'm influenced by them when they force me to feel something. Those that give us comfort, help us remember, and connect us in ways that cannot be described otherwise. We can all choose the latest Disney and Pixar movies to grab with songs that make charts or just become something iconic so that we either love or hate forever. (I think let it go from frozen or glad of me vile.) However, some of the best songs have either been forgotten or rejected for a long time because they haven't sold millions of downloads on iTunes. My playlist is a wide range of songs - I don't stick to a certain genre. I choose what I feel or need at that very time. If I'm getting ready to run, I need something different than when I go out for a regular walk in my neighborhood. If you need something just to seduce (not very well, I would add), then who knows what you might find. Being an adult doesn't mean we should miss out on G movies. Most of the time, even animated movies reflect real life by filming guilt, and uncertainty. Often the characters in these films are confronted with decisions that they just want to undo after knowing the result, just as we often encounter. Just as in life, there are times when we fail miserably and achieve greatness as well. Maybe that's why I don't miss a new animated movie - there may be a hidden treasure buried somewhere in the soundtrack that you may fall in love with and need. Songs capture those moments for us and attach a tune so we can sing along. These songs are not in any particular order, but life is just kind of works that way sometimes, too. Somewhere there - from the American tail (by Linda Ronstadt and James Ingram) sometimes, our lives take us on trips that keep us away from the people we love the most and the best way to get through the days until we see them again is to find out that someone misses you. We feel them and embrace their love even though we are separated by miles. This song just comforts me when I feel a little lonely and although our lives are busy and messy, I know I'm loved. We can't be everywhere, but our love can. The Trail We Fire - From The Road to El Dorado (by Elton John) Life is an adventure and this song reminds us of traveling on the less traveled route. To look for what's on the other side. Being excited and not detained by fear that we are discoverers of life may not always know what is at the end of the road, and that it may not lead us to the lost city of gold, but that's not what really matters in the end. Being a leader means moving away from the crowd and chasing a dream only we can see... It means starting the conversation... I mean standing when everyone sits down. Every major change in the world was possible because someone who was not limited to consensus should follow their lead and perhaps cause a little chaos ourselves! Here comes the sun - from the film Bee (by Sheryl Crow) this song just makes us sing. It fills hearts with happiness as we smile. On a cloudy day, we yearn for that big orange glow in the sky and rely on it not only to warm the planet, but to give us hope. Things in life don't always go the way we like and disappointment may be waiting just around the corner, but this song makes me think, hold and stay strong. It reminds us that life is always full of change. Someone is waiting for you - from the rescuers (by Lea Salonga) our journeys, life and wandering, we sometimes find ourselves lost, unable to find our way home. It's easy to believe we can be easily forgotten - but who says that no matter how long it takes, no matter why you leave, you won't be greeted with open arms and loved more? Sometimes, we feel the need. See what's there too and without achieving what we're doing, we walk away from the only thing we've taken for granted. In our lives, we meet very few people who will do anything and everything to be there for you... Don't take them for granted. Here I am - from the soul, stallion of Cimarron (by Brian Adams) there is no bigger song about being honest to ourselves and what we want from this song. In it, I find comfort in knowing that being vulnerable, chasing what seems just out of reach, and knowing who I am is more valuable than anything. We can lose our property and fall on our faces, but if we don't know who we are or what we believe in, nothing else matters. If we don't know who we are, what's the point of being alive? This song reminds me that I stop hiding behind everything that scares me and the confidence in freedom that comes with the truth found in our essence and spirit. With life filled with chaotic and crowded moments, sometimes the best thing we can do is stop worrying about everything. We practice a lot of energy and time sticking to scenarios that may never come to be. This does not mean that the madness goes away, it just means that we need to get away from it for a while. It's our little vacation our escape for sure, and we know that the real world is still there, but sometimes our philosophy must be one day at a time, and that no matter how we don't know now we will find out when we need to later. Make it your motto and cross every day. About Riverbend - from Pocahontas (by Ariel Jacobs) we have this sense of adventure that excites us and even if we don't know what happens next, fear won't stop us from doing what excites us and what moves us. Staying in the same place is not an option and pushing the envelope is always where our agenda lies. Our endless curiosity to know what is there and how we can interact with it is how we cheat in boring existence. We break some rules along the way and see things from a different perspective, allowing our minds to grow in ways that we might otherwise have missed. Go on... take its climax. Everything you have ever required may be required. You've got a friend in me - from a toy story (Randy Newman) no matter who we are, we all need friends. Not only are the kind of friends who show up when they need something or when it's appropriate, but those who will do anything and everything for us. They are committed to your friendship and need you as much as you need it. You may not always see face to face and you may say things you may regret later, but when it comes to it, you've got each other back. However, through thick and thin. And when everything is said and done, the man is no better than the friends who have the friendship he gives. Why should you worry? - by Oliver & (by Billy Joel) no matter where we come from or how much we know, we can't always plan for life. We will need to adapt to the ever-changing landscape, pitfalls and barriers that come our way and improvise when needed. No one has a blueprint for life and no book will teach us what to expect, but we know somehow that carrying anxiety and uncertainty is not how to live the best our lives should be. Walking tall and confident through life will teach us to be strong and brave when things don't go our way. Even if we do not have every answer to every question, we can still act as we do. It will be in my heart - from Tarzan (by Collins) having three sons of my own and sending another one to college last year, this song was one of many songs that made me happy and sad at the same time. Mother's love never leaves and love that cannot be forgotten or not forgotten - no matter what the child travels. Sometimes, our family is not the one we were born in, but the people we communicate with and love without limits. Our loved ones never go without feeling our love and when the moments you collect are short or not seem to be enough, let them know this... I was always in my heart, closer than I could ever imagine. Reflection -

from Mulan (by Leah Salonga) whose parents did not direct us towards a career or college of choice? Who would have thought they should be someone they weren't really, but who followed the path that was paved for them because it was easier? If our main goal in life is to be happy, then those who love us the most should want more for us too. Sometimes, we don't know who we are yet and just in traveling through life we don't really find ourselves. Never be afraid to look at yourself in the mirror and see what is inside your heart and soul. Letting people see the real may be a little scary, but that's something we never forget - at that moment, we can't back down any more. We're the only ones born to be. When you think – from the Prince of Egypt (by Mariah Carey) didn't know the power behind one belief until it happened to me. I didn't understand how one could change everything... How to convince you that everything you can't see or touch is still important. You may be dragged in a direction you can't nearly share, but fear is not an option. Miracles happen and show us all that no matter where we come from, what happened to us, that sometimes, life gives us moments that change us forever. It's not about what we know or how far we went in school, but the real power comes when you believe - because everything is possible. Wonders - from meeting Robinson (by Rob Thomas) as we look back on life, we can choose really bad parts that we wish we hadn't lived. Every day, we For small moments, it seems trivial to keep us on the ground in ways that won't be great. Most of us are too busy not to pay attention to anything other than what is right in front of us. Every once in a while, what seems to be a wrong turn leads us to a place where we were destined to be all the time never to be so busy in life that you miss the little wonders that become really big memories. Feel the light – from home (by Jennifer Lopez) Sometimes, life grabs our hand and pushes us in circumstances we don't want and falling into a crumpled mess serves its purpose well. Every passion we desperately try to hide comes to the surface and we stop caring about what matters most. We're tripping. We will lose our way we give up this song gives me hope in places where I never think about looking, and confirms that love is greater than everything. We all make choices and then it feels like we have to live with them forever. But that's not true. True friendship will make her tours through life, but in the end, she always finds herself at home. Sometimes, you just have to fight for it again. God helps the outcasts - from a hunchback from Notre Dame (by Bette Midler) none of us really fit in. We are all different, yet we strive to emphasize the crowd and the standards that society has created for us. Some days, we don't know where to go, we don't have answers, we feel lonely. Maybe we think that no one else will really understand what we feel or that we are afraid to be really vulnerable with someone. Frankly, we don't even know what we need, but we seem to lose that sense of selfishness when we give unconditionally to others, knowing that the battle is a good one. We strive to be more enthusiastic and generous to those who have less. We want to alleviate the suffering of those who are bullied, ridiculed, and rejected as trivial. From time to time, we all need to remember and celebrate our differences together instead. Rainbow Connection - from the movie Muppets (by Kermit the Frog) Well, you caught me. This isn't really an animated movie, but i grew up watching puppets every Sunday night at 7 pm and you need to remind us all that rainbows come just after the rain. Life can bring its storms and although we don't know how long it will last, we know that the sun will come out tomorrow (which may be from another movie..) and we can again, see the light. Not because we think there is a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, but because there is little magic held in the way that the light reflects off those drops of water. This song reminds me to believe the power of a dream and why each one means something to its owner. We're still hoping for the stars, we're still looking in the sky for answers, and we I like to sing this song. Recap: The best soundtrack sits with great score and gets many awards, but as far as achieving those matter decorations, sometimes, the best melodies and mutter words together are hidden behind something a little less human. The basic principle of animation that succeeds in expressing human feelings can be difficult to achieve without music. Some of these songs collect dust and forget, and will only be listed as a track on a CD. Just because a high-profile actor or actress doesn't provide a voice for a main character doesn't mean that the film is worthless. Most often, hidden gems are the ones we must find for ourselves. Life is about life and every challenge and opportunity comes with it. Some days are easier than others. Some come with questions while others provide answers. We find hope, curiosity and love in the moments of life we hunt our dreams and find great friends along the way as well. Let these songs become your favorite new playlist and when you get a chance, maybe watch the movie too. Photo Credit: Oscar Keyes via unsplash.com unsplash.com
