If you can't face another cold, snowy winter you might be tempted to move to San Diego. The city is famous for its liveable climate and happy residents. Before you go embrace the Southern California lifestyle, here are 15 things you should know about moving to San Diego. Find out now: Is it better to rent or buy? 1. There are Pandas You've probably heard of the famous San Diego Zoo. This is a wonderful place for animals, especially the pandas of the zoo. San Diego has hosted pandas since 1996 and is currently home to three. If you move to San Diego with children you can look forward to a family trip to the zoo, as long as it's on a budget. A one-day pass for an adult costs $50, while a children's ticket isn't much cheaper, for $40. 2. The weather is all I cracked up to yes, the weather in San Diego is really so good. The average annual temperature is 63.65 degrees, the average high is 69.8 and the average low is 57.5. If you don't plan to do much traveling after moving to San Diego, you'll probably host a clothing exchange to get rid of your winter gear. 3. Balboa Park Balboa Park is a wonderful public park in San Diego, and a place you don't want to miss when you visit. It's the home of the San Diego Zoo, where the pandas live, but there's more to the park than there is to the zoo. Plus, we have free WiFi thanks to generous support that aims to boost San Diego's status as a tech-friendly city. Check out the budget calculator. 4. Is nature spectacular as caves? What about the mountains? Beaches? Kayak? Surfing? Okay, you get the point. The San Diego area has a lot to offer if you are willing to get out of the area and into nature. Even if you're not the active type, you can always walk along the beach and appreciate the sunset in San Diego. 5. Hit farmers markets like San Francisco, San Diego has access to amazing products that you can snag in local farmers markets. If you want to save money after moving to San Diego you can cook your own food rather than hitting the city's restaurants. With such high-quality fruits and vegetables at your fingertips, you can prepare pleasant meals. 6. You can go to Mexico on Day! If you're in San Diego, you're near Mexico, which means you have access to culture, art and food south of the border. You can party up in Tijuana for the day or venture on to Mexico for a longer visit to the country's museums, ruins, towns or beaches. Mexican border towns are not the only option for a day trip to San Diego. You can go whale watching, go to LEGOLAND, or see the wine region. Instagram followers thank you for visiting the Carlsbad flower fields. Cities in the area like Julian and San Juan Capistrano area are great for history buffs. Love star looked? Let's go to Borrego Springs. 7. The Mexican food deserves a reputation! What do you get when you combine proximity to Mexico with a si large Mexican-American population? Amazing Mexican food, first of all. When you first get to San Diego you'll probably want to try as many Mexican food places as you can. After a while, many San Diego residents settled on their favorite and became vocal partisans in their favorite joint. 8. There are college students everywhere! San Diego is home to many colleges and universities, so if you rowd college students do the thing you might want to choose for weekend hangouts carefully. The many campuses in San Diego mean you will have plenty of options for cheap lectures and lectures. Related article: 15 things you need to know before moving to California 9. The Craft Beer Is Stellar! San Diego is a craft beer scene that rivals other beer-friendly cities. Why meet a friend for a generic beer if you can support a local brewery? Large San Diego breweries may have heard of include Stone and Ballast Point, but there are reportedly more than 100 microbreweries in the greater San Diego area. Non-drinkers don't have to worry. The coffee and juice options in San Diego are a point too. 10. Safety First! Real conversation: swimming off the San Diego beaches can be dangerous. Always pay attention to swim signs in safe (or unsafe) areas and pay attention to life-savers. Some popular activities in San Diego, including swimming, cave-finding, kayaking, and hiking, are done alone, so it's a good idea to find a friend who can join you on outdoor adventures. 11. They make Fries burritos! Carb lovers, rejoice! The iconic San Diego burrito has carne asada and fries. For some people, that may be all excuses for the need for moving to San Diego. Called a California Burrito, the San Diego staple often contains potatoes and avocados along with beef and fries. Authentically Mexican? Not. Satisfying after a day of swimming or surfing (assuming you eat meat)? Yes. 12. Petco Park The San Diego Padres may be hit-or-miss as a baseball team, but the stadium is a nice place to spend an afternoon or evening in San Diego in perfect weather. Even if you're not a baseball fan you might find yourself hitting the stadium a few times a year with friends. It's such a nice 13th-century place. There is a Floating Museum! San Diego home to the USS Midway Museum, a floating aircraft carrier. He's in downtown San Diego, navy pier. More than a million people visit the museum every year and there are private events there. If the Midway Museum doesn't sound like your kind, there are other museums in San Diego to book. Balboa Park boasts of San Museum of Art, San Diego Natural History Museum and San Diego Museum of Man. There is also a Museum of Contemporary Art, a Children's Discovery Museum and more. 14. Seals! You don't have to go to the zoo to see animals in San Diego. There are wild seals in La Jolla Bay. A picnic and a little seal-watching is a great, frugal trip on a sunny San Diego day. Be sure to follow the rules if you visit la jolla cove sea shelter. You don't want to disturb seals, sea lions and other wildlings. If you prefer SEALS to seals you can visit Coronado, where the Navy SEALs train is. The island's historical and artistic attractions are covered by Coronado Island tours, including the famous Hotel del Coronado. And you might see Navy SEALs training on the island's beaches. 15. Comic-Con is always Entertainment! An yearly, San Diego plays host to Comic-Con International. It's not the only Comic-Con, but it's a great one, and it brings both characters and celebrities into town. If you're a fan, it's worth attending. If not, it's worth getting out of town and renting your apartment on Airbnb if your rental agreement or homeowners association allows it. Bottom Line! San Diego may seem like a playground, but if you're not independently wealthy or a piece of savings you'll probably want your work lined up before you go. Housing costs in San Diego are not as steep as those in San Francisco, but they are still high. You can always turn one of San Diego's top 10 financial advisory firms into some advice. Alternatively, you can use an appropriate device like SmartAsset's SmartAdvisor to find someone to work with to meet your needs. First, answer a series of questions about the situation and goals. Then the program narrows down your options to three trustees who meet your needs. You can then read their profile to learn more about them, interview them by phone or in person and choose who to work with in the future. This allows you to find a good fit, while the program does a lot of hard work for you. These outstanding San Diego restaurants offer everything from reimaged Japanese to official French, all inspired by the region's local bounty. [viator_tour destination=736 type=3-mod] Herb & Wood Herb & Wood in Little Italy is easily one of the best restaurants in San Diego. It occupies a loft-like space with bold art, plush blue booths, and a positive vibe. The farm-to-table fare here is New American vegetarian options, and appetizers are surprising in a good way, think pizza topped with bone marrow and escargot; steamed beef belly calypso beans; or oxtail gnocchi. With hip crowds, on-it service, and craft cocktails (try gin and lavender), dining here makes for an experience that you won't soon forget. Located in Little Italy, TripAdvisor Juniper & Ivy is San Diego's current IT restaurant. The self-proclaimed left-hand kitchen offers an adventurous daily menu of creative small plates and signature cocktails. On any given day, chef Richard Blais may choose to pick up a mushroom and cheese madeleine spicy date puree, or carne cruda asada quail with eggs, or mushroom orecchiette. Dessert can be devil cake with hazelnut brittle and hot chocolate. Whatever you order, you can never mind reserve a counter space to watch the chefs concoct these masterpieces, then sit back to enjoy professional service and trend décor that includes brightly colored art and exposed wooden beams. Born and raised in TripAdvisor By Michelin-starred chef Jason McLeod's Born and Raised, Little Italy is a fine-dining steakhouse that opened with great fanfare in 2017. The service here is excellent, and the décor is retro-elegant with a hipster edge – rich wood work is all over, brown leather, green marble, dim lighting and unusual art. There are two fireplaces and a bar lounge on the second floor of the outdoor. The menu is completely American- to start with one of the imaginative appetizers. Entree options include steaks done in every style imaginable- tartare, ribeye, New York, Tomahawk, Wagyu, even vegan, and some even ready-made tableside. There is a solid wine and spirits list, as well as fancy desserts- try the chocolate verrine. George's California Modern TripAdvisor in La Jolla, George's at the Cove is a standard among San Diego restaurants. On the lower level there is George's California modern and helpful staff. Fantastic for special occasions, this ocean view meal is the most delicious, the spotlight of creative seaside cuisine. The dining room is modern, comfortable with purple banquettes, and the food comes out nicely; the plate is an art form here. Start with fish tacos or kale-maitake mushroom lasagna, then move on to baja striped, smoked Jidori chicken, or a fried Niman Ranch pork loin. Finish things off with the fluffy, trendy strawberry cream dessert. Or just trust celebrated chef Trey Foshee with a four-course tasting menu with wine pairing. On Marine Room TripAdvisor since 1941, la Jolla's aptly named Marine Room has been delighting San Diego diners with fancy food and unbeatable views - at high tide, waves splash through the windows, and at sunset, the atmosphere is too fabulous. It's a classic special occasion with elegant décor, old-fashioned service and extensive wine list. Chef Bernard Guillas' large menu includes dishes made with seasonal local ingredients; specialties include sesame seed-coated ahi, pistachio fennel pollen with spicy swordfish, Amaron steamed lamb osso buco, and tangerine ginger-lacquered organic tofu. Addison TripAdvisor Addison's Fairmont Grand Del Mar impresses for the first time with its elegant European castle-style décor, following its highly attentive service, and finally the Relais & Châteaux nagy chef William Bradley French resort-style cuisine made with local ingredients. Its innovative tasting menus include decadent experiences and changes frequently, but also include kumamoto oysters, mussels, la nage, mascarpone agnolotti, spoiled farm eggs or coffee-roasted canards; dessert can be a lavender panna cotta rhubarb. Addison's wine cellar is truly impressive, guaranteeing spot-on pairings. A.R. Valentien TripAdvisor At the Lodge at Torrey Pines, cliff top A.R. Valentien's old world is sophisticated with a rustic, quiet dining room with attentive service and nice views of the Torrey Pines golf course. Chef Jeff Jackson creates delicious dishes with locally sourced ingredients- a menu of California specialties that include appetizers such as musse mousse and fresh fettuccine, while the tasting menu may include creamy csichooka soup, grilled Wagyu steak, and pistachio and rosewater cake. Brunch and lunch are just as nice, sit on the outside deck to enjoy the warm La Jolla breeze. Cowboy Star Restaurant and Butcher Shop TripAdvisor Many San Diego restaurants reportedly serve great steak-Cowboy Star, in the East Village near the Gaslamp quarter, indeed do not. This dining room manages to be both rustic and elegant- wood, leather, and bricks feature heavily, although banquettes are comfortable, tablecloths are white, and food is truly the star. Sit at the chef's counter and have fun with the cooking team and look at the sleek exhibition kitchen in the front row. In addition to the variety of steaks, there are amazing sidekings, great and a long list of fine wines. Lionfish TripAdvisor Lionfish is a bustling seafood house with a fun atmosphere and a great happy hour. Decor melds contemporary comfort with rustic woodwork, and there is seating upstairs, downstairs, and outside. This boutique Pendry hotel, embodied in urban chic near Gaslamp Quarter. Start with one of the many surf-and-turf appetizers, then continue onto the spicy octopus, duck confit, cider steamed mussels, or maple-sriracha pork belly BLT—they've all brought out the wonderfully attentive servers. Chef Jose JoJo Ruiz takes the coastal cuisine creative and modern. Cloak & Petal TripAdvisor Cloak & Petal is one of the most beautiful restaurants in San Diego, with some of the city's sexiest dishes. Little Italy's popular India street is presided over by cherry blossoms at C&T; Above P's well-equipped bar. In the dramatic dining room, it's all about hip décor and fancy Japanese cuisine, much of it in the form of shareable small plates that come neatly standing. Try the spicy tuna baguette, salmon tostada, yuzu kosho Jidori wings, A5 Wagyu ribeye, glazed duck breast, and excellent toro sashimi. Cocktails in Japanese, too, are martini-like Nick and Nori of Japanah made with sansho peppers, spice-soaked gin, violets, and more.
