On May 31, 1999, it was released as the lead single from their album Hooray for Boobies, released a year later in the United States and The United Kingdom. The Bad Touch became a big hit in Europe during the late 1999 and early 2000s, reaching number one in Flanders, Germany, Ireland, Italy, Norway, Scotland, Spain and Sweden and reaching the top ten in Austria, Denmark, Finland, Iceland, Switzerland and the UK. Outside Europe, it peaked in fifth place in Australia, number four in New Zealand, number nine in Canada, number 52 in the UNITED States. The song was remixed by many artists, including God Lives Underwater, KMFDM and Eiffel 65 and was referenced by Eminem in his song The Real Slim Shady. (June 2012) (Learn how and when to remove this template message) The song's video features the band dressed in MonkeyRat costumes with oversized ears, in many places of Paris (including the Place de l'Estrapade, avenue de Saxe, and the Eiffel Tower can be seen in many shots. During the video, the band uses blowguns to shoot tranquilizer darts into the buttocks of four passing young women, then take them away. They then use a fishing rod to hang a croissant in front of a group of French chefs, enticing them to follow suit. The band members dance for a few seconds and then lure three chefs into watching them. Band members swallow several mealworms before finding two effeminate gay men in a coffee shop who are then beaten over the head with baguettes and knocked unconscious. The mime artist played by actor Jordan Prentice is captured in a net then thrown into a cage with four women, three chefs, and a gay couple in a skit at an animal collector depicting terrified specimens. The band jumps around the cage and taunts the prisoners. As the song draws to a close, the prisoners are released and they all dance together in formation on the street. Mim artist escapes and is run over quickly by a Renault 5 car driven by Lüpüs Thünder. The uncensored version of the video shows the band playing and eating brown semi-liquid food, suggesting it's diarrhea, and a beginning that is faking sex in a dog-style position rather than dancing as in a clean version. The violent capture of a gay couple is also lacking in some versions. Controversy The scene in the video with a pair of gay men sharing fries and then being beaten by band members with baguettes has been interrupted for the first time. [5] GLAAD complained about the scene on MTV stating that gay-bashing scenes in any context in today's climate is not acceptable. [5] MTV reviewed the video and suggested to Geffen Records that the scene be cut out. [5] On stage, singer Jimmy Pop commented I would give each gay man two tickets to the andrew loyd webber musical of his choice if he could describe exactly who would be violent based on that scene.
