Crash bandicoot warped colored gems guide

Share a colorful gem is a special type of gem that appears in the Crash Bandicoot series. They resemble a common clear gem that a crash can collect by breaking a certain amount of crates at each level, except these gems are rarer, alternatively shaped, and appear in a variety of different colors. A colorful gem usually requires a different method of collection than ordinary gemstones, usually by performing hidden tasks or challenges in the game. Once a crash collects a colorful gem, it is able to open new paths at certain levels. These new paths can be accessed with the use of a special elevator in the form of one of the colorful gems. These special pearl elevators will appear as contours before collecting a colorful gem. Once a crash collects the appropriate coloured gemstones, the lifts will be accessible and used to reach new routes at different levels. Usually these paths allow the crash to break additional crates to purchase a clear gem of the highlands, collect additional gems, or run special portals to other levels. A collection of colorful gemstones is required to achieve 100% completion, and often unlocks secret endings or other bonuses depending on the game. In some games, the player must collect all the colorful gems to activate a colorful gem path at one of the final levels. The colored gemstones appear in blue, red, green, yellow, purple, and orange. Twinsanity crash in this game, colored gemstones are a much more common collectible, with one of all (except orange) appearing at each level and hub and not one of each appearing in the entire game. The gemstones are mostly hidden in levels, with some requiring puzzles to solve, but some of them are very easy to achieve. There are six gems in each level/hub. Clear gemstones are treated like colorful gemstones in this game. Instead of opening pearl paths, collecting gems opens photos and videos in a concept art gallery. In Cortex strikes again and vases, red, yellow and blue gemstones share the same model as a clear gem, only with a different scale and colors. An orange gem appears in the alternate end of game two in the N. Sane trilogy. It is loaded into N. Brio's laser installation along with other gems, although Crash never collects it in the game. It was confirmed during A charity fundraiser whose appearance was a mistake. Community content is available under CC-BY-SA unless otherwise specified. Five more special color gems are hidden throughout the time in Bandicoot Crash 3: Distortion, and we have the locations pinned for easy retrieval(ish). Color gems make a comeback in Crash 3, and this time around, they're just a little more complicated to collect. That's compared to game two. The first game still leads the table about 100%. Mixes are installed in ideas from the two previous entries in the franchise - there is no set method for opening colored gemstones, but you often have to complete levels without dying once. Like the other two games included in the N. Sane trilogy, the color gems allow crashes to access previously uninvited bonus areas and finish the entire box collection. Check out more N. Sane trilogy guides on Escapist: Just like Crash 2, there are five color gems you can collect in Crash 3: Distortion. You don't have to complete levels without dying, but certain steps will require you to reach uncollectible death path bonus areas. These areas are only available if you reach them without dying - they are marked with a skull platform. Don't worry, once you really get into the death course, you can die all you want. These are complicated areas, but not every color gem requires them. Sometimes they are in hidden areas, in optional lanes, or simply require special conditions. Let's dive in and see how to get all five. Deep trouble (red pearl) The first gem is simple - just finish the stage with 53/63 broken crates. The trick to getting into the crates is backtracking after hitting the metal box! At the end of the stage. Swim back through the spinning metal compartment below, then go right. There's a TNT box near a metal crate barrier. Set it up and complete the area in advance to collect tons of extra crates. Hey Times (purple pearl) Purple pearl is at the end of the death course in the High Times. That means you're going to have to get to the skull dock past the crystal without dying once. If you can make it to the death trail, you're ready. You can die on the track itself, just don't end an unnecessary life. In the end, you'll find the purple genie. Vader Tomb (blue pearl) Like the previous gem, a blue pearl is also located on a death course, which is a difficult one. Bring a lot of extra life before you try it. The Death Path dock is on the second bridge, before Crash reaches Crystal. Complete the challenge, and the blue gem awaits at the end of the path. Passion burning (green pearl) another death track gem, it was found after grabbing the crystal and climbing the horizontal part. Find the skull platform next to the crates after you reach the roof. For the death trail, it's actually pretty tame. Complete it and the green gem waits at the end of the path. Hang them high (yellow It's complicated, you're going to have to go into death row on the 7th floor, but it won't be available until you get to the secret warp room. To get there, unlock 5 remains (full-time trials) and a platform will appear in the hub center. Get on the platform to get to the secret warp room. Here, you can access different parts of previous levels. Hanging them high is one of those levels. But you're going to need 10 remains to get in. Once inside, complete the death course and you'll find a yellow gem at the end of the hard road. It's all color gems in Crash 3: Distortion! Don't forget to check out these previous steps for alternate routes that require these gems to be accessed. Access.
