Like other popular brands, Nike produces shoes and other goods at factories located overseas to keep costs low. However, the number of products produced in 1964, Nike specializes in sportswear, shoes and sports equipment. What started out as a small shoe running line has become one of the most popular and favorite brands around the world. The company aims to achieve $50 billion in sales by 2020. In a 2016 survey, 24.5 percent of U.S. female respondents said it was their favorite sportswear brand. It is headquartered near Beaverton, Oregon. Thousands of Nike stores and authorized retailers can be found around the world. Nearly three decades ago, Nike shoes and other products were manufactured in Indonesia. Then activist Jeff Ballinger accused the company of engaging in unfair labor practices and suggesting a low Boards. Over the years, the brand has implemented major changes, seeking to become a recognized leader in sustainable development. Today, most of its products are manufactured in China Vietnam. Nike employs gualified engineers and designers, encouraging them to embrace disruption and create innovative products. The company provides design and materials to hundreds of factories around the world. Although it is not yet a sustainable brand, it uses processed and organic cotton, hemp, bamboo and other environmentally friendly materials. Most shoes, however, are made of leather, rubber, polyester and plastic. The skin comes from corn cattle. These materials are sent by air and sea to more than 500 factories in China and other countries. Most of his shoes are made through a cold cement folding process that requires more energy than volcanization. The upper boot, which sheds the leg, is attached to the boot with water glue. Mechanical force is applied to stretch the product and give it the strength of the structure. Shoes are usually made of EVA foam, lightweight plastic and mesh fabrics. Materials that go into waste are recycled and used to make other products, such as rubber pads and shoe boxes. According to Nike, more than 75 percent of its goods contain recycled materials. The company aims to achieve zero waste of footwear production and halve its environmental impact. Over the past few years, Nike has developed new, sustainable materials that use less water and energy. For example, many of his shoes are made from flyleather, which is 40 percent lighter and five times stronger than grainy leather. In addition, it has a lower carbon footprint and requires less water during production. The brand also uses innovative processes such as ColorDry and Flyknit to reduce waste. ColorDry, for example, is a new technology that allows manufacturers to paint fabric without water. In addition, Nike has launched its own line of premium recycled materials used to produce shoes and clothing.
