Mondo guide rick steves

All young children know it's nice to share. But adult travelers also find it fun, profitable and educational. One of my favorite travel waste is to hire a local guide to show me your hometown. It seems to me that a private guide helps me make the most of my time while highlighting my appreciation of a place. I recommend the best of these guides in my books. But I realize that not everyone can afford to hire their own guide for the day. That's why, a few years ago, I had the brainstorming to work with great guides to set up shared tours for groups of my readers, letting good travelers divide the cost of a great tour, and giving a great guide more work. The first place I tried this was in Seville, Spain, where Concepción Delgao and I worked together to get to the perfect two-hour walking tour. Over the past few years, Rick Steves readers have been happy to show up every morning at 10:30 (except Sundays... Conception's day off) and chip 15 each in the common hat in exchange for a top-notch tour. Thousands of my readers have taken advantage of this... and Concepción couldn't be happier. Later, I partnered with Annie Adair, an American expat married to an Italian, in the Tuscan town of Volterra, in the Tuscan hills. We created a similar tour that allows Annie and her colleague Claudia to show Volterra's best one-hour walk for only 10 euros a head (meets on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursday nights at 6:00 p.m., and Wednesday mornings at 12:30). When I was in Volterra last summer, I had to see how the tour worked. I met with Claudia, as we explained in our book. It was a slow night, so we were waiting to see if Rick Steves' three travelers would show up at least. Of course, at the stroke of 6, a family arrived for the tour... and we all enjoyed a great guided walk together. Vincenzo, an ambitious businessman based in Naples, runs Mondo Guide. For a long time I have regretted that Naples, Pompeii and the Amalfi Coast, three of the best experiences in southern Italy, were so hard to see on their own, but so expensive to do with a private guide. Vincenzo and I devised a plan to offer shared tours, adapted to my readers, for these three itineraries. Vincenzo designed a website to facilitate login, and over the past two years, thousands of my readers have had a better (and more profitable) experience in this part of Italy. New for 2016, Mondo has added two more shared tours for my readers: A private boat trip from Sorrento to the Island of Capri (a romantic and efficient alternative to crowded public ferries); and shore excursions carefully for cruise passengers arriving in Naples and Salerno. In each of these cases, shared tours are a win-win-win. My readers are happy because they can split the cost of personal attention from a talented local guide. The guides are happy because more business (and, I'm told, find my readers great to work with). And I'm happy because everyone else is happy. Helping travelers maximize their experience in Europe, while minimizing cost, is our mission. Shared tours like these are just one of the many ways we enjoy our work in Rick Steves' Europe. Happy travel! I did the mondo Amalfi coast tour at the end of September last year, and it was a very good experience. I don't remember what we paid for, but it was an all-day trip on a small bus (or oversized van) with huge windows. There were about 8-10 of us in everything I believe in. We left Sorrento and stopped in Positano, Amalfi and Ravello. Our guide was Patricia, who is an Irishwoman living in Italy, and she was great. I really enjoyed the tour -- there was an hour or so on our own in each city after Patricia informed us a little bit, and she told us stories of the sirens of ancient times as the driver navigated the amazing road -- and felt it was a good alternative to a huge bus or an expensive private driver. I wouldn't hesitate to re-enroll with them. Cynthia booked the shared tours as recommended by Rick Steves. Picked up at the hotel, driven to the port and on a beautiful boat with only 12 of us - it felt like we had our own boat! Guide Mario sailed towards Capri, with the first stop of the Blue Grotto. Time to see on the island, then Mario took us all the way around the island, stopping at all the natural grottoes and sights - even time to swim. Drinks and sandwiches. A highlight of our trip to Italy! Enjoy your trip to the most complete CITY TOURS SHORE TRANSFERS excursions with tour tourism en route When passion and love for the country meet professionalism, competence and experience. What makes Mondo Guide one of the best Destination Management Companies to provide tourist services in Italy is a combination of two main elements. This is the professionalism of a long-standing and well-established company and the attention of a family business, for which Mondo Guide is able to offer high quality services specifically designed to meet the different needs of each client. With more than 40 years of experience, Mondo Guide is a destination management company specializing in travel organization, both in Italy and Europe. This includes accommodation, meeting and greeting, guided tours, shore excursions, transfers and event arrangements. The history of our Mondo History Guide is rooted in the intuition of its founding member, Gino Pauciullo, who began his career as a Tour leader in Italy and Europe in Gino worked together with the best and best known international tour operators gaining experience and building networks around the world. In 1972, together with other partners, Gino established GTA, the first association of tour guides in Italy. Then, in 1976, Gino, with some GTA partners, established ST Sorrento. Gino's Gino's function is to provide tour guides and tourist services not only to ST Sorrento, but also to other international agencies, with which it had established trusting relationships over the years. In 2006, GTA was renamed Mondo Guide. Mondo Guide Today Mondo Guide is today a company specialized in destination management, capable of offering high level services, adapted to different needs for all types of customers. The strength of Mondo Guide is in the combination of tradition and innovation. Gino's son and daughter, Vincenzo & Brunella, have been based on 40 years of experience, creating a dynamic agency while remaining true to tradition. From father to son, what lasts is the passion for tourism, which is the love for our country and the desire to welcome visitors in the best way. Needless to say, professionalism is essential in every part of our work. By choosing Mondo Guide you can be sure to find the warmth of a family treatment along with the knowledge and professionalism of 40 years of tourist business experience. Mondo Guide is fortunate to have a team of more than 40 professional committed tour guides who constantly offer impeccable service to their customers. Our staff members have been carefully selected based on their social and communication skills, language skills, deep knowledge of Italian/European territory and great enthusiasm for their work. Guided services are offered in English, Spanish, Portuguese, French, German, Russian and Japanese. Special interest groups can be designed to meet everyone's needs, from youth groups to elderly and more sophisticated travelers. The limousine and private boat transportation service is available for those wishing to travel in luxury. Whatever you always need, Mondo Guide offers a service that fits you carefully. With a deep knowledge of Italian territory, contacts throughout Europe and more than four decades of experience, Mondo Guide is a well-established company that remains a benchmark for travel consultation, not only for Italy, but also for a Greater Europe. Official guides in various languages and transport De Luxe in all Italian ports of call and in Europe. Scheduled and private taylor toured all over Europe. Membership Awards The Naples region has many fascinating sights and areas that are best explored a local guide. To make things easier and more affordable for my readers, I've partnered with Naples-based Mondo Guide to coordinate shared tours. I'm not making money from this agreement; this is an experiment to see if we can do luxury of an affordable private guide for my readers. Simply register for the tour(s) you are interested in. Mondo will do his best to gather a small group of like-minded travelers. If enough people sign up, they'll send you a confirmation; If the tour doesn't run, you'll be notified. A shared tour is a smart way to experience the sights while meeting with other Rick Steves readers. For more information, see the latest edition of Rick Steves' Italy's guide. And if you have comments about your tour, please let me know books@ricksteves.com. Happy travel! How this form works is designed to help us assemble a group large enough for each output.
