Coronavirus first revealed in U.S. Months later, unfortunately, it's still not under control. Autumn and Seasons may be the most challenging times of the entire pandemic, but pandemic fatigue is also real and setting. The restlessness, stress and distress you may have felt in March and April is no longer a novel, making it difficult for you to stay at home. Still, the best way for yourself, your loved ones and your community to help you is to limit your interactions with other people and avoid closed meetings and workplaces. If you've already exhausted the classic quarantine fun of making puzzles and baking bread, we've found 23 new ways to spend time at home. These include creative following, fun activities and productive personal development. Insider Reviews' ultimate guide to staying busy: iStock: Alyssa Powell / Business Insider finally feeling the burnout of cooking for the month? You're not alone. We asked food experts how they were inspired in the kitchen and they said you should try walking around your local farmers market safely, using a new spice and speeding up the cooking process with small household appliances. To help you get back to the kitchen, read the following:You can also try going back to the basics. If you hunker down and your main basic skills, like how to make an omelet and cook the perfect steak, or want to make your way with every page of an important cookbook regularly, you finally have time to do it now. See if these cooking skills are down: Here are reviews and links to our favorite places to shop for pots, if the pots, pans and knives you are currently using are not equal. We can spend an entire weekend with just one project on Knitting/Instagram. We knitters is a cool site that strips mesh biases as an activity for grandma, selling materials and kits for knitting all skill levels. It carries many different types of yarn, from recycled yarn to baby alpaca. After working your way through different levels you will learn how to make blankets (us during quarantine) scarves and complex sweaters. If you are more interested in embroidery, Etsy has many suitable embroidery kits for beginners. For clay fans, Crockd is a new DIY pottery kit that comes with clay, step-by-step instructions, tools, and discuss icebreaker topics as you make your creation. Bloomscape/Instagram The natural beauty of a lush plant will make you feel more comfortable, and it is easier to care for a plant right now than to care for a dog. Instead of going outside the nursery, stay home and order a beautiful plant from our three favorite online factory stores: Sill, Leon & George and Bloomscape. We compare their offers, shipping policies and more here. Some cool offerings include: Another option is to grow herbs to use your own cooking. Even if your house can't get it Light, these garden systems allow you to grow fresh herbs and vegetables thanks to energy-efficient LED lighting and special soil. Take this chance to re-read an old favorite from Alyssa Powell/Business Insider or try the latest bestseller. You can even have virtual book club meetings (along with wine and cheese, of course) with friends. During these times, we recommend receiving and supporting book orders from your local bookstore. If you need ideas on where to start, here are some new recs: To entertain kids at home, try Amazon's children's book subscription service, Prime Book Box, and for yourself, Book of the Month membership. It's no secret that several members of the Insider Reviews team love Kindle e-readers. I rarely buy ebooks and borrow them for free through my public library using the Libby app instead. Another way to get your reading correction digitally is Scribd, a reading app that gives subscribers access to hundreds of thousands of audiobooks, ebooks, magazines, sheet music, and more. Reporter Mara Leighton has been using it for four years and won't stop a time soon. When VNYL/Instagram Singles dominate the charts and digital streaming tracks the way you listen to music, it can be hard to remember the last time you sat down and listened to an entire album back-to-back. So save one of these recordings to the record player or pull it up on Spotify (no mixing!), close your eyes and enjoy these key favorites of the Insider Reviews team. These are just a few of the many suggestions that come in, so email us if you want the full list: You can enter your own private world with a good pair of headphones or headphones: Or you can play tracks on a speaker that fills the whole room and reveals instrumentation, bass or vocals as it should be heard. There's a record player, but I can't decide what to listen to. VNYL decides for you by sending a recording based on your music profile and streaming service activity. It also makes it a great gift for the music lover who struggles with self-isolation in his life. Subscribe to our newsletter. Description: This post is brought to you by the Insider Reviews team.
