As more and more people become aware of the benefits that encapsulate the car's offerings, we want to address why the quality of wrap is important. Vinyl films are large pieces of polyurethane film. There are basically two types of film -calendared and cast. We want to focus on vinyl cast films, being this is the best for cars application. The reason behind the cast being the best for cars, are the raw materials used in the creation of the film. Specific components are used for heat stability and uv protection, as well as for compatibility and application. The car has a lot of curves and lines. Vinyl cast contains the same quality as raw materials. There are vinyl manufacturers that have spent a lot of time, research, and resources to develop high quality vinyl films that have a long lifespan, retain their color, produce little or no shrinkage. Companies like 3M and Avery were part of a revolution in vinyl films, especially for the auto industry. Their films tend to cost a little more than cheap movies, but their overall quality will save you money in the long run. What you put into something is what you get from it. A blow of film vinyl may look good when it is applied, but life wrap won't carry the same thing. Raging, cracking, peeling, fading color, lifting, are all consequences for a cheap film made of low quality materials. We want to know that in Haus of Wraps, we only work with the best vinyl films in the industry and have developed installation techniques that provide the best look for your car. Car.
