If your brick mailbox is damaged, destroyed, or otherwise needs attention, this guide will help you get through the repair or restoration process.1 For repairs or restoration? If your mailbox was hit by a car or truck, it's probably out of repair. Usually it will be displaced on its base near the bottom, or lying on the ground. If so, it must be fully restored. This mailbox is supported by a vehicle from the side of the street, moving the structure (also notices the missing brick and rusted insert ... It is time to rebuild it. slightly damaged with a few brick dislocated, or maybe your vessel is rusty - it probably makes sense to repair it instead of starting over with a new structure. Click here for more information about repair mailbox issues. If you have any questions, give us a call. We will be happy to answer your questions to help you determine what matters most in your situation. If your masonry box can be saved, just make sure- like with any masonry repair - that your contractor meets brick and mortar, so the repairs will merge once completed. Make sure that you have included contracts with your contractor to break away from debris from the mailbox.2. Removal of debris (only for recovered mailboxes). Your contractor should remove the debris from bricks and properly dispose of them. At the request of the guests, Brick Doctor will provide you with a free temporary mailbox to serve you until the construction of the new structure. Your courier will appreciate this. Normally, the base is not damaged and can be reused unless it is displaced or exited the ground with the structure (as shown on the right).3. Upgrades. Since even just repairing the mailbox can be expensive, you may want to consider upgrading to provide longer-lasting results, better function, or improved appearance. Brick Doctor mailboxes come with a vastly improved standard mailbox insert, for a more appropriate compliment for a long life of brick structure... No extra charge. This insert with a guarantee of the life of the manufacturer will insure you that you will not suffer again over an ugly or rusty mailbox. Adding a lockable mailbox sleeve is a very popular upgrade and allows you to keep your mail in a locked compartment until you return home, whether it's at the end of the day ... or after a two-week journey. Several numbering options are available to improve the appearance and visibility of your street number.4. Insurance considerations. It is obvious that if you know whose vehicles hit your mailbox, the liability coverage of their auto insurance will pay for reasonable costs of repairing or restoring their original condition (any improvements will be at your expense). However, if the crash is a hit and you can not find the responsible side (be sure to look for pieces of the car on your lawn to provide the police as evidence ... many culprits have been located nearby with damaged bumpers!), your host's insurance can be of some help. In most cases, you will be subject to a large deduction though, so most homeowners do not find their own policies to be very useful.5 Price and prepayment warning. If you receive which sounds too good to be true, that's probably true. Make sure you compare apples to apples... some will reduce the corners of quality, or expect to find matching brick, delivery of the mailbox, pay in advance, etc. If if the are the owners of houses, be extremely careful when paying contractors. Perhaps more than any other job, we hear often about homeowners renting a brick to repair their inbox, paying them an amount up in advance, and then never seeing them again. Make sure you know who you're working with. Click here for practical tips on hiring contractors. A respected contractor will always allow owners to pay after completion after getting the opportunity to get acquainted with the quality of their work.6. What about my mail? you can ask. USPS employees are not required to deliver their mail if your box is laid on the ground. However, most are quite decent for a few days while making arrangements for repairs. If possible, line the box on a pile of brick by hand and perhaps leave a note for it/her to explain that you will take care of it immediately. (If he/she has been particularly good to you, now might be a good time to offer a tip or gift card to show your gratitude!)
