In addition, it is a really useful thing to say in any situation, it is quite a simple word to remember. However, there are several variations of this word that will help you seem more like a native language and of course seem more polite to everyone around you. After all, there are many ways to express gratitude in Spanish, and gratitude never goes out of style. How to express gratitude in Spanish This simple thank you is the easiest and most common way to express gratitude in Spanish. You can use it pretty much in any context or situation. Example sentence: Puedes pasarme object libro? Gracias! Can you give me that book? Thank you! It literally means a thousand thank yous.' As you think, this one has been used to put an emphasis on how grateful you are to someone for something really nice to you or to help you through a difficult situation. There are people who can use it just like very common gracias though. It's all about the situation or the person. Example sentence: When gracias por el regalo. Lo aprecio mucho. - Thank you so much for the gift. I really appreciate that. Note how in this case gracias are used as a verb (agradecer). Used to express gratitude for a very specific thing or situation, this one is a personal favorite among native Spanish speakers. This makes your comment grateful to look more honest. This can also be said estoy agradecido por. Example sentence: Te agradezco por todo lo que is hecho por mí. - I'm grateful for everything you've done for me. This expression is used to give gratitude or to show gratitude for something that has not yet been done and will be done in the future. In English, this phrase sometimes adds to the expectation of aid and can be considered a little blatant. However, in Spanish, it's a pretty normal thing to say at the end of a conversation or email. Example sentence: Podrías por in favor of enviarme el reporte esta tarde? Gracias de antemano. - Can you send me a report tonight? Thank you in advance. Gracias Dios is quite transparent. It is used to express gratitude if you talked to God yourself. It is used in many Spanish-speaking countries, especially in Latin America Example sentence: Llegaste salvo a casa. Reins! - You made it home safe. Thank God! It is closely related to the phrase te agradezco por. However, we siento agradecido contains a reflexive verb sentirse 'feel' plus the adjective agradecido / a. You can make this expression official or informal; it all depends on the situation and the person you're talking to. Example sentence: Tu hermana se siente agradecida por el regalo. - Your sister feels grateful for the gift. In a world where context determines pretty much everything gracias can also be used to express ungratefulness or sarcastically dismiss someone's efforts to help you. The phrase gracias por nada is used to express dissatisfaction when no one helps you intentionally or unintentionally. Sample sentence: Ya conseguí el libro que se suponía que iba traer. Gracias por nada. - I already found the book you were supposed to bring. Thanks for nothing. In many ways, you probably face situations where you have to thank someone for something or thank someone. Make sure your Spanish skills are at the moment when it happens, and using these phrases you are one step closer to achieving a more native-like level. Even if you're an absolute beginner, you already know two of the most important words in Spanish. Let me break it for you: Sí (Yes). No (no). Well done! It's one step closer. Phew! Now, let's take one more step: Just like English, there are many different ways to say no in Spanish other than simply saying no. No you use when a child asks to play with you, if you are busy is probably not the same as not you bursting when your brother asks you to borrow money 50th time that month. Knowing the different ways to say no in Spanish will help you sound more natural, add variety to your speech and finally tell your brother who is the boss in a way that would make El Patron proud. It's time to know how to say no! Below is a list of the most common ways to say no in Spanish and phrases that give a negative answer, along with some example sentences for context. In an even more important context, we recommend that you watch authentic videos like these FluentU to hear how native Spanish speakers actually do this vocabulary. FluentU takes real-world videos - such as music videos, film trailers, news and inspiring talks - and turns them into personalized language learning classes. Immersive, fun content makes grammar and vocabulary much more memorable! Common Ways to Say Not SpanishNo gracias - No thanks!It's the basic, polite way to express that really, I'd rather not. Quieres una copa de sake japones? (Do you want to Japanese sake?) No gracias. (No, thank you.) Qué va - Somehow it literally means what goes, it's used to express that you can't believe what the other person is saying and you'll find it's complete. Vámonos alimentar los caimanes. (Let's go feed the alligators.) I don't know if that's good. (No way!) Nunca - NeverThis word is one of the most forceful ways to say no in Spanish. It leaves no chance of misinterpretation! Te casarás conmigo? (Will you marry me?) Nunca, can you hear me? I can't believe you did this. Lo suficiente - That's enough!It's not indirect: If there's enough something, you don't need any more. Just answer the question like do you want more of it? with Enough. Quieres que suba el volumen? (Do you want me to turn the volume?) El volumen está bien. Lo suficiente. (Volume is good. That's enough.) Ni hablar - Forget it, under no circumstances If something is so completely wrong you can not even consider, use this expression. Often followed que means there is no way that ... Las películas de Walt Disney son mejores que las de Don Bluth. (Walt Disney movies are better than Don Bluth's.) Estás loco? Ni hablar que Disney es mejor que Bluth. (Are you crazy? Under no circumstances is Disney better than Bluth.) Ni se you occur - Don't even think about it!Noone's really a bad idea? Use that no. Escucha, can you hear me? Nosotros robaremos del Vaticano mañana por la noche. (Listen to me! We will kidnap the Vatican tomorrow night.) I don't know what you're doing. It's one, and I don't know. (What? Don't even think about it.) Ni lo sueñes - No WayThis expression is close to the meaning of English in your dreams! Bueno, no robaremos del Vaticano. Hurtaremos la Mona Lisa del Louvre. (Okay, we're not robbing the Vatican. We're stealing the Mona Lisa from the Louvre.) Estás loco! I don't know if it's true or not. (You're crazy! No way!) De eso nada - This does not happen Use this one to express a firm negative response to the recommendation. Quiero ser Rico. Viajaremos a japon y... (I want to be rich. We travel to Japan and ...) Not! De eso nada! (No! no, no, no, no, no, it's not going to happen!) De ninguna manera - No waysee expression literally means no way and is actually the closest meaning of English somehow. Bueno, podemos robar el Diamante de la esperanza del Smithsonian. (Okay, we can steal the Hope Diamond from the Smithsonian.) De ninguna manera. El Diamante de la esperanza está maldito. (No way. Hope Diamond is cursed.) Para nada - No wayMeaning anything; This phrase is often used to emphasize denial. Used in itself, its meaning is close not at all and it is a softer way of saying no. Podemos robar las zapatillas de rubi del Smithsonian. (We can't steal ruby slippers from the Smithsonian.) Para, I'm sorry. Pensé que las zapatillas de El mago de Oz eran de plata. (No way. I thought The Wizard of Oz was made of silver.) No puede ser - It can't be Can you ever answer a surprised no!, if something is incredible? It's Spanish, which is its equivalent. No porridge. Las zapatillas siempre han sido de rubi. (It can't be. Slippers have always been ruby.) Powerful verbs saying No spanishSo strange as it sounds, you don't always have to use no to say no... actually without saying no! In addition to using these verbs, your message can also be transmitted through the tone of voice and body language. In addition to the notice that I used imperativo (imperativo/imperativo) aka the unofficial command verb forms such as sentences. Imperativo negativo (negative imperative) conjugation is used if you want to be direct or get someone's attention. You just need know-how (or should I say no-how?): If a negative commitment is combined with off-putting vocal tones and body language, your intention to say no is implicit. If this seems strange, remember that you probably do it all the time in English. Imagine your brother coming to you at 51. What are you going to say, Oh, go away. Indirect... but effective! Dejar - leave, quit ;Déjame en paz! (Leave me alone! / Leave me alone!) Irse - go away, leave Tus bromas son creepy. Vete, can you hear me? (Your jokes are terrible. Go away!) Parar - stop ¡Para de hacer estos juegos de palabras! (Stop puns!) Cerrar - closeCierra la boca que no quiero oír más. (Close your mouth because I don't want to hear anymore.) Callarse - be quiet;Cállate ya! (Shut up now!) It goes without saying that many of them are quite rude and should only be used by people you feel well, like this money-grubbing metaphorical brother of his own. Other ways to say no to Spanish saying don't have to be so negative. For even the finer ways to say no, look at these phrases to find out no. En serio? - Are you serious? Use it if you are perplexed that the speaker is even asking your question. Think: Need more money? Are you serious? Quieres escuchar más juegos de palabras? (Would you like to hear more puns?) En serio? (Are you serious?) Well we digas - Do not tell me that if you are just not interested, shake someone off with this phrase. Sé muchos juegos de palabras en ambos inglés y español. (I know a lot of puns in both English and Spanish.) No, no, digas. (Don't tell me that.) Ya basta - Enough already! you have finally had enough, this phrase proclaims that you really are not interested. Bueno, comenzaré con mis juegos de palabras con no. (Okay, I'll start my puns about qué me odias? You basta. (Why do you hate me? That's enough.) There are many ways to say no in Spanish and many of them don't even use the word no! The best way to practice not speaking Spanish is simply to speak the language. For example: Ahora, nosotros hablaremos sobre los juegos de palabras en inglés y español que tienen la palabra no.. (Now, we're talking puns in English and Spanish, which is the word no.) En serio? No, no, digas. Déjame en paz! Para y cállate! Ni de coña. You basta! (Are you serious? Don't tell me that! Leave me alone! Stop, shut up! No way. Enough already!) All right, all right! I get it. I know when to stop.
