Learn 'job' with the following *exciting* historical re-creations! Learn what it was like when cooking was a human task. Spend a day in the shoes of an office worker. Manage customers like a supermarket clerk. Repair cars as a car mechanic! Job Simulator was unveiled during the global announcement of the Vive at GDC 2015. Since then it has been announced as a launch title for Oculus Touch as well as PlayStation VR! Here's what the press says: I never expected a video game demo in which I picked up a tomato (and threw it at a robot) to get me so deeply in awe. I... Wants to play Job Simulator forever. It was wildly funny. Of the game-like experiences I've had with the device, it was the best - better even than Valve's own Portal 2 vignette. This digital kitchen I was transported to deceived me without even having me realize that I had been cheated. I was misled into believing. My personal favorite was one where I was transported to a kitchen. I cooked in a virtual kitchen, and it felt so incredibly real. I microwave a tomato, served a steak, and cracked many eggs. This was actually the perfect demo for VR: the rudimentary and clumsy actions I performed reminded me of that of a young child getting to know the world around it for the first time. I found myself in the kitchen for the first well interactive experience of the demo. I soon discovered that there was so much fun to be had playing with the food as there was cooking with it. The one who left the biggest lasting impression with me is probably the kitchen/cooking one... It felt like a complete joy. Ring the bell, pick up the various items, open the fridge... it all felt incredibly natural and instinctive. I threw pots and pans around a robot kitchen, chopped carrots and mushrooms and then microwaved a bottle of wine (it melted into a twisted cube)... It sounds ridiculous, but I grinned like crazy all the time. It all felt natural and intuitive (and fun and ridiculous). ... perhaps the most impressive when it came to interaction. This achievement places Owlchemy Labs in rare company, establishing Job Simulator as only the second made for VR title to reach this milestone. We developed Job Simulator for the first time as something that could only exist in VR. It was built for hardware that was not yet available to consumers and was a very risky product. says Owlchemy Labs CEO Devin Reimer. Job Simulator going platinum shows that the consumer VR market is capable of generating huge hits. We are pleased that Job Simulator has found a diverse audience that enjoys our game. Since 2010, Owlchemy Labs has been combining its deep love of game design, user experience, story and humor to create engaging experiences for current and next generation VR platforms. Since its launch, it has maintained a position on the top seller charts on various platforms. This includes being on the top 10 PSVR games every month since its release on the platform in October 2016, and being the #1 game 3 years in a row. We believe that part of the appeal of Job Simulator is how accessible and comfortable the game is for players, says Reimer.
