How did the ideas of the renaissance spread to northern europe

Praise of The Mage in The Snow Peter Brughel Small Renaissance School Of The Athans (1509-1511), The Development of The People's Themes Architecture Dance Fine Arts Literature Music Philosophy Science Technology Areas England France Germany Italy Poland Poland Portugal Spain Scotland has criticized the criticism of the lower countries in the north of Northern Panraharan a Panraharan which occurred in Europe of the Alps. From the last years of the 15th century, its pantheon spread around Europe. North Panraharan was called because it occurred north of the Italian Panraharan, in this period German, French, English, low countries, Polish Renaissance and other national and local movements, each with different attributes. In France, King Francis imported Italian art, Italian artists (including Leonardo da Vinci), and built large palaces at great expense starting the French Renaissance. In the 15th century, such cities trade and trade, entered in the growing cultural exchange between Italy and lesser countries, however, in art, and especially architecture, until the late arrival of Baroque even the artist on the Italian model was presented rapidly. [1] Universities and the book of printing helped spread the spirit of age through France, the lesser countries and the Holy Roman Empire, and then Scandinavia in the late 16th century and finally Britain. The apostles and humanists such as Rabelais, Pierre de Ronsard and Desiderius Erasmus were very impressed by the Italian Renaissance model and were part of the same intellectual movement. During the English Renaissance (which is additional with the Elizabethan period) as William Shakespeare and Christopher Marlowe contain sustainable influence work. The Renaissance was brought directly into Italy by artists from Florence and lesser countries, starting the polished Renaissance. In some areas, the centrality of the political power of the Northern Renaissance was different from the Italian Renaissance. While Italy and Germany were dominated by free city states, most of the countries in Europe were emerged as unions of the United States or even more countries. North Renaissance was also closely linked to the Protestant reform resulting from a long series of internal and external conflicts between various Protestant groups and the Roman Catholic Church. The review feudal system was dominated by Europe for a thousand years, but the beginning of The Renaissance was on the decline. The reasons for this decline include a medium environment of freedom, from the country to foreign currency instead of the land, with many families living as increasing numbers, the formation of the United States with monarchy, interested in reducing the power of the feudal area, increasingly agricultural production has increased generally due to new military technology (e.g. landmines) and improving the technology and practices of agriculture in front of feudal forces. As Italy, the decline of feudalism opened the way for cultural, social and economic changes with the Renaissance in Europe. The slow death of the feudal system also weakened a long-standing policy in which church authorities helped pay homage to its population. As a result, many secular institutions and beliefs increased in the early 15th century. Most important of these, The Renaissance humanity will hold philosophical foundation for more and more of the pantheon art, music, science and technology. Erasmus, for example, was important in spreading humanist ideas in the north, and there were central figures at the back of classical humanity and growing religious questions. The form of artistic expression in which a century ago has been banned by the church were still tolerated or encouraged in some quarters. The migration speed of the Renaissance across Europe can also be attributed to the invention of printing press. Its power information improves spreading scientific research, spreading political ideas and generally impacting the course of the Renaissance in northern Europe. As Italy, printing press also increased the availability of books written in both the Country languages and the publication of new and ancient classical texts in Greek and Latin. Moreover, the Bible was widely available in translation, a factor often attributed to the spread of Protestant reform. Discover the age of the main subject: The age of discovery was the invention of The Caravel, one of The Most Important Technology Development of The Renaissance. For the first time, this collection of building technology between European and North Africa is possible to travel over extensive trade and Atlantic. First introduced by the Italian states and the starting captain while Giovanni Courrazzano and Columbus, who were Italian researchers, will move to the development of northern Italy as the trading centre of Europe, and Spain, Tota, France, England, and the Netherlands. These states started extensive trade with Africa and Asia and the United States began extensive colonisation activities. This period of search and expansion is known as the age of discovery. Eventually, European power spread around the world. The early Netherlandish painting often includes complex iconography, and art historians have argued to Hubert and John Wayne Ayub by artists' works like the print symbolism. The detailed realism of the early Netherlandish painting, led by Robert Kampan and John van Ayub in the 1420s and 1430s, is generally considered the beginning of the early North Panrajaran in painting today. In this detailed fact Italy was very respected, but it had less mutual influence over the north by the end of the nearly 15th century. [2] Despite frequent cultural and artistic exchanges, Enturup Mannirists (1500 – 1530) – overlaps with clones but was among the first artists in the lower countries, related to Italian Mannerism, to clearly reflect Italian formal development. Around the same time, Albarasth Dorer made his two trips to Italy, where he loved it for prints. Dorer, in turn, was inspired by art he saw there and agreed to be one of the first North High-Penitential painters. Other noteworthy northern painters such as Hans Houlbein in The Elder and Jean Fouquet, maintained a Gothic influence that was still popular in the North, while highly individuality artists such as Hieronymus Bosch and Peter's Bread Ezel were forged by many later generations. Later in the 16th century the northern painter looked east and visited Rome, known as Romanists. Michelangelo and The Late Panrajaran Mananeram trends of High Panrajaran art and writing of Michelangelo and Rafeel had a great impact on their work. The Panrajaran inspired many Italian artists to explore great lying Greco Roman themes, and similarly famous 15th century German and Dutch paintings are to be religious. In the 16th century, the mythological creatures and other themes from history became more uniform between northern and Italian artists. The North Panrajaran painter, however, was a case of new subject, such as earth renovation and style painting. As the Panrajaran Art Shellies moved through northern Europe, they changed and were customs for local customs. Reforms in England and the Northern Netherlands brought religious painting almost to complete ends. Despite many very talented artists of Tudor Court in England, portrait painting was slow to spread from the elite. The School of Fontainebleau in France was started by Italians as The Rosao Fior in the latest manner, but succeeded in establishing a sustainable national style. By the end of the 16th century, such as Karel van Mander and Hans Goltzius gathered in The Haarlem that is in a short but severe phase of Northern Mannerism Spread to The Flanders.
