

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Oahu sites of interest

Aloha Tower There are literally hundreds of Oahu attractions on this 600 sq mile island, competing for your attention. From 112 miles of beautiful coastline full of Oahu beaches to local waterfalls, to much Hawaiian culture to explore, I hope you have a long vacation to discover it all. But if you don't have such endless time, consider retiring to Hawaii, or check out the top 10 attractions on this magical island! Discover the best Oahu attractions at Iolani Palace What are the best Oahu attractions? You can bet it has to do with things to do in Oahu, which is surrounded by tropical water, grand size and beauty, and some that includes exotic entertainment. Have fun exploring the top 10 most popular attractions in Oahu! 10. Climbing Diamond Head Probably the most iconic landmark you will see in Oahu. Even British sailors in the 1800s were impressed by their presence, and scaled the mountain in search of diamonds... which were never found! Today you can easily travel to the center of the crater, and climb up to 760 foot at the summit. This is a great way to start your morning, and the views are amazing! Look at that... 9. Exploring the North Shore If you can't reach the North Shore of Oahu, you will have missed a good piece of all Oahu attractions. Waimea Beach From visiting some of the notorious big wave beaches in the world to take a stroll in the Old Town of Haleiwa, there's plenty to choose from! I personally enjoy driving through the national side, and taking it all in! Make sure to stop at the shrimp farms and get a good fill of garlic shrimp located around the north shore tip of The Kahuku! Read on... 8. Spend the day at the Polynesian Cultural Center in Samoa, Tonga, Tahiti, or maybe want to visit the Marquesas Islands? You have a chance to experience it all here at the Polytechnic Cultural Center. There are 7 different villages you can explore representing different regions in the South Pacific. Give yourself a full day to watch many fun shows, paddle in an ancient style canoe, take part in educational activities, and celebrate grand luau! Read on... 7. Discover Waikiki Waikiki seems an obvious Oahu attraction, but there is a good reason why over a million visitors flock to this city every year... and the number continues to grow! Duke Kahanamoku Statue Silhouette is constantly changing with new grand hotels, shops, rooftop bars, and some of the best culinary experiences of indulging! Even the iconic International Market Place has recently taken on a new transformation that included Saks Fifth Ave. Add 2 miles of beautiful beach real estate to play with, and you can start to see how Waikiki makes the list! Read on... 6. Hiking up Waimea Falls There is not much waterfall in Oahu that you can easily access without hiking through the brush and a little muddy, but there is one Hawaiian waterfall that is quite pleasant to walk up and it is in Waimea Falls. It is located behind the Waimea Valley and surrounded by beautiful botanical gardens. Reach the 15 foot waterfall and you'll find a nice size pool of water that you can swim as well. Read on... 5. Learning how to surf and hear rolling waves off the Waikiki coast inviting you, and there's no better feeling than rowing out of breaking and catching the wave back to shore! Learning how to surf is like a rite of passage as a visitor. There are usually gentle waves you can find on any given day before you turn the pro and paddle out of the monster surf! It's easy to sign up and find surfing schools along Waikiki Beach, and a handful of North Shore as well. Most offer a guarantee that you will stand up on the first day! Read on... 4. Snorkeling Hanauma Bay Over 300 different fish and sea life, it's no wonder why Hanauma Bay is so popular. Only 3,000 visitors are allowed to visit the sea sanctuary every day. More than 10,000 tourists take up the folk in this bay every day, before major steps were taken to protect reef and marine life. It's a privilege to snorkel Hanauma Bay, and literally surrounded to be so many different species of fish. It's like swimming in a human-sized aquarium! Read on... 3. Enjoy Hawaiian Shaving Ice With a trip to Oahu or Hawaii, so the thing is not complete without getting yourself Hawaiian Shaving Ice! Most associate it with a trip to the North Shore, and dropping the famous Matsumoto's Shaving Ice for a cool treat on a hot day. Today, competition is fierce, and Hawaiian shave ice companies are accelerating their game with new flavors, topping and refining the ice themselves. Check out some of the best Hawaiian Shaving Ice Companies on the island... 2. Trip to Pearl Harbor with 1.8 million visitors each year, no wonder that Pearl Harbor is one of Oahu's main attractions! The ghostly presence of the Arizona Memorial is what draws crowds, but Pearl Harbor offers so much more, and it is almost impossible to see it all in one visit! The World War II USS Bowfin Submarine & USS Battleship in Missouri is permanently anchored in the bay and worth climbing on board. And the Pacific Aviation Museum is also an experience you won't forget! Book a trip to Pearl Harbor... 1. Attending Evening Luau And #1 Oahu attraction that visitors look forward to attending an evening in Hawaiian luau! With May in Thailand in hand, live entertainment on stage and a grand buffet of food lined up, it's easy to see why everyone gets excited about these ongoing parties that take place in several places every night! Hawaiian Luau is a great production making so many components. You feel that begins tiki torches burn and clam shells are blown. Book your place... Here are some of our party picks including Hawaiian Leis, Tiki Torches and Tiki Mugs waikiki Trolley Waikiki Trolley visits many of the featured Oahu attractions. There are 4 different routes to explore, including: Scenic Tour, Historic Tour, Shopping Tour and Island Tour. Tickets start at about $9 for a child's day pass, and go up to $25-$49 for an Adult 7 day pass. Buy your passport now in the notable Honolulu Attractions Also check out the notable Honolulu attractions that lie both or too far outside Waikiki. There's so much you can explore right here in the city! City walks and benefits in Iolani, Feel the last 2015, 23.com and 23.com properties discover more... Aloha & Enjoy! Oahu is called the Heart of Hawaii, so it's a suitable home for Hawaii with a wide range of popular activities and famous attractions. At the southeastern tip of the island you will find activity and attraction on every slope, from the north shore to the Makapuu lighthouse. From the world famous Waikiki to the North Shore to the legendary surf spots and the relaxed atmosphere of Makaha Beach, there are beaches for every type of traveler from Oahu. More from hiking and cycling to museums and golf, there's a lot to do during your visit. More legendary surfing, amazing snorkeling, boat trips and more. More skydiving, sailing, helicopter tours and more. More Hanauma Bay Nature Reserve, Oahu is full of amazing things to see and points of interest are huge under the skin. Almost wherever you go on Oahu, you'll find something interesting. From the gorgeous Waimea Valley on the north shore of the world famous Waikiki to the once battle-scarred Pearl Harbor, Oahu is something for everyone. Take the kids to the Honolulu Zoo at Kapiolani Park, snorkel the breathtaking Hanauma Bay, and snap some photos of Chinaman's Hat.Let GuideoFUS Oahu help you get acquainted with the best things to see oahu-peruse information on these pages and start planning your Oahu sightseeing adventure today. PunchbowlOld Hawaiians use this bowl-shaped crater for very different purposes than it is used today. They called it Puowaina, which means a mountain of human sacrifices. Today, the area is sacred for some other reason. It's home to the Pacific National Memorial Cemetery. A large marble memorial is dedicated to more soldiers missing from the action. The view from Punchbowl is also inspiring. When you first enter the Punchbowl bear to the left and continue up the hill until you reach the view, which offers views of Diamondhead. & Laie Trail FallsLa'ie is a peaceful little seaside village on the northeastern tip of the island. It's best known for its great Mormon influence. In 1865, Mormons bought 6,000 acres of land and eventually built similar to salt lake city. Laie Falls is a 15-foot drop on the La'ie Ridge Trail and this is the first big stop for a hike. A lot of hikers take a quick dip here and then head back out. Temple Valley Memorial Park is located on the wind side of Oahu in the Ahihimanu region. This is a favorite gathering place where people all believe in enjoying peace and quiet. Its gardens honor many faiths, including Christianity and Buddhism. There is also a Japanese Second World War cemetery. The Temples Valley is worth visiting, especially if you're looking for peace - away from Honolulu city traffic. Chinese hat This little cone-shaped piece of lava from Kualoa Point is officially named Mokoli, but has earned the nickname Chinese hat for its resemblance to the straw hats worn by Chinese immigrants. It used to be a small piece of land in Oahus, but through years of erosion it has been separated. You can still get it. At low tide you can walk from Kualoa Regional Park. You can surf or kayak there. The island supports an interesting amount of marine life and a small beach in a secluded cove. Diamond Head State MonumentDiamond Head State Monument, also known as Le'ahi, is located just east of Waikiki, on the island of Oahu, and is the most recognized landmark in Hawaii. Le'ahi is a place that offers a vacation on busy highways in Honolulu. The drive around Diamond Head is quite picturesque as it winds around the crater by the ocean. When you enter through a tunnel that bored the side of the crater, it feels like a world away from the city. The monument is a very popular tourist attraction that offers informative signs, bathrooms and a shaved ice and smoothie truck during opening hours. Diamond Head Country Monument Nuuanu Pali LookoutThe Nu'uanu Pali Lookout is one of the most stunning views of Oahu's Ko'olau Mountain Range. Just 3.1 mi from downtown Honolulu, this field of vision offers the best views of Oahu. From here you can spot kailua town as well as Kaneohe Bay and of course the breathtaking Ko'olau Mountains.In 1795, Kamehameha Great troops drove the Oahu men up the hills only to force them out of these cliffs and their deaths. After that battle, Kamehameha was able to complete his search and unite the islands. Oahu's Waimea Valleyllus Waimea Valley on the north shore, Oahu, attracts a few thousand visitors a day but you won't know it because its stunning botanical garden setting offers plenty of spacious areas to relax under huge shady trees. It's easy to find a quiet place to rest in the grassy areas and relax on busy highways in Honolulu. Most visitors flock to Waimea Falls, a 45-foot waterfall that is located on the property, swim and as well as being a popular tourist attraction, many people also use beautiful grounds for concerts, parties, weddings, special events, and even a weekly farmers market. HonoluluHonolulu is the capital of Hawaii and the most populous city in the country. The city stretches from Pearl Harbor to the west of Makapu'u on the southeast bank of Point Oahu, which includes the world-famous area of Waikiki. Today Honolulu is home to over 390,000 people and has been the capital since 1845, when King Kamehameha III officially moved from the capital Maui to Oahu.The city is a multicultural epicenter of many historical landmarks and a host of global culinary choices, as well as a buzzing cosmopolitan city with world-class and shopping art, cultural and entertainment scene. Honolulu has it all - from art galleries and international cuisine in the Chinatown district to fine dining, live music and nightlife in Waikiki. Pearl Harbor oahuPearl Harbor is a lagoon port located about 10 miles west of Honolulu. This is the site of the infamous air strike by Japan in 1941, which heralded the beginning of the United States' participation in World War II. Pearl Harbor is a solemn reminder of a tragic day. It is one of the most important sites in the history of the United States and the National Historic Landmark. The area consists of several museums and monuments that honor those who served in World War II. Hanauma Bay Nature ReserveHanauma Bay Nature Preserve is a magnificent wine glass-shaped bay located in Oahu southeast of Hawaii Pier, a haven for Koko Head. Just a 30-minute drive from Honolulu (traffic allows), this stunning bay feels like a world away from the bustling city, which doesn't even see the beach as the big bay is surrounded by lush green, gently weary mountains of Koko Head.The bay is secluded and quiet early in the morning, but during the day it becomes a popular place for locals and visitors. Thousands of people gather in the bay every day to experience great snorkelling in the area. Hanauma Bay Nature Reserve in Oahu Areas Guide Oahu Must See and Do Oahu Essential Things to Know

