The problem with alto song oftentimes is that singers are categorized incorrectly, and the definition of what alto song actually doesn't help. The word alto means altus in Italian and the Latin word Altus, Italian alto means high. Now to the confusing part, you might think that alto means the loudest sound or sound that can probably produce a singer as it means loud. This alto song is not true as it is different for men and women, alto sound for women is generally considered the lowest sound, while in men their alto sound is considered the loudest sound. So if you are a novice singer trying to understand different terminology, taking into account the gender that is always applied can mean something else for one gender. If you want your voice to sound better than my personal advice is to use throat pastilles designed for private singers and performers, it is clear and click here to soothe your voice Amazon.com there were not so many female singers to check out a few hundred years ago, even theater would play the role of male female, this is why most of the song terminology applies to male voice much easier. This is where some vocal teachers believe, ignoring the Alto definition of singing and interpreting it as they feel. Before choosing an audition song, make sure you are actually an alto singer, in the list below you will find plenty of good alto songs for both novice and advanced singers, the odds are probably some I have heard. If you're preparing to choose more than my advice, it's not to choose the most popular song, because a lot of singers use them in auditions, and you're going to compete with them. If you are a young singer, then my personal advice is to check my latest article songs to audition well for kids (Top 110 Songs). My advice is to choose a song that I can sing relatively easily, and this crowd that is not so popular will make to stand out. If you are quite comfortable crushing it with a popular alto song, then go for it but explain to me first why it is not the best idea. In any song audition, you will hear the same songs many times, which will allow producers to compare one singer to another based on one song, but if you sing one song that is not so popular you will stand in front of the crowd and the producers will have no one to compare you to, which is a win-win situation. Some songs are more or less difficult, but when choosing which song to use for auditions, be sure to choose a song that is good for your voice and may or may not affect the audition. Find a song that sings almost effortlessly and accurately, in this way there will be a big plus natural sound in an audition. Good luck! If you like this ad content, please share it
