Thomas Schörenberger is a polymath, composer, historian, entrepreneur, inventor and writer. His compositions were performed by leading music groups, including the Moscow Chamber Orchestra and other famous artists around the world. His historical observations were developed through his extensive travels around Europe, the Middle East and America. An unusually prolific composer, he has created thousands of original compositions, from piano concertos to symphonic and operas. His first performances were as a toddler, and his father was a classically trained composer before becoming a doctor. Schörenberger's passions include creating a nourishing neuro environment for autistic people, adults and babies. Schörenberger is written in major magazines from Billboard to Good Housekeeping. In 1986, in addition to his classical composing, he began writing audio landscapes designed to create relationships with children with cognitive impairments. He went on to compile Baby Music and THE ULTIMATE Baby CD series both world-renowned. Using original compositions using polyphonic melodies reminiscent of both Mozart and Bach, his CDs are sold in 20 countries. Schchoenberger turned his attention to fundraising for international cultural institutions and projects and used his international contacts to help preserve and raise awareness of classical music in Milan, Vienna, London and the Middle East. An avid traveler, Thomas has developed valuable relationships with museums and music festivals around the world and is an adviser to festival and exhibition commissions internationally. He is the founder of an entertainment business whose client lists are: Microsoft, Intel, General Electric, Pepsi, Afak, Apple Computers and other large corporations. It also collaborates with major resorts in napa, including Medorad, Silado and Sonoma Mission Inn; wineries such as Mondavi, Opus 1, Qaim and Kloss Pegasus. He currently works as a composer, cultural ambassador and with associated entertainment consultants in new enterprises and business development.
