All the videos you want on your smartphone Catch your favorite Netflix shows on the go A simple yet powerful video editing tool Powerful tool to record what's happening on your screen Add music and effects to your videos and then share them! The official YouTube app does local downloads post and watch short videos on this platform One of the best ways to watch videos on Android is currently in beta, but go ahead and try it! Just take care of the popcorn, leave the rest to us. With Android 4.0.3 and newer watching movies and series online via streaming the thing thanks to on-demand television platforms like Netflix or HBO that offer us huge catalogs of movies and all sorts of TV shows. The only nuisance? yes, you're going to have to pay for it. He's stupid, isn't he? However, there are other alternatives that allow you to watch all of these audiovisual content for free, and one of them is Popcorn Time. The service is based on torrent connections Unlike the aforementioned paid platforms that have their own closed video compression system that offers the content of online or desktop applications on PC, Mac or smartphone, Popcorn service provides torrent connections that download the video to a temporary folder, which means you can start watching a movie or episode while the rest of the video finishes downloading. Great video quality and a huge catalog. And I don't think the app is worn or anything. On the contrary: if you install this APK on your mobile phone or tablet, you will be able to access a well-cared for interface, perfectly organized, that allows you to browse all the content offered. Highlights Watching movies and series via streaming. Search engine. Play in HD whenever possible. Latest releases. Movies and series in original language with subtitles. Sort the results by rating, genre or year. Download the videos to watch them offline. As you probably already know, this service is also available as a desktop version for Windows, Mac, and Linux, although you can also enjoy its content on Android smartphones and tablets, and even on iOS devices such as the iPhone and iPad if you have a jailbreak. But is that legal? I hope, well, what do you think? Hundreds of episodes, movies and akvars, all for free, and watch whenever and wherever you want, without paying a cent ... Yes, it's true... Of course, it's not legal. First, it depends on the laws of your country, and secondly the use of content that you are going to do. In the past, the service therefore, it offers the opportunity to access the platform via VPN to maintain its anonymity. The kitten dies every time you watch a movie popcorn time. But if you're a little tight and don't fancy pulling your hand out of pocket to pay for high-quality on-demand video service, technical support is without worrying the FBI will turn up on the doorstep of the 4 a.m th, and I don't think movie and serial makers are entitled to earn themselves a living and entertain you for free Here's the app you've earned. What's new in the latest version improvements that provide a smoother user experience. More movies and series. Bugfixes. Popcorn time! the result of many developers and designers putting a lot of APIs together to make the experience of watching torrent movies as simple as possible.
