In search of some places to discharge one's anxiety begins to participate in courses where groups of seriously ill people gather and admit to others in their own situation. As he lets go of his emotions and weeps in front of what he sees, the man makes the acquaintance first to Marla Singer and then to Tyler Durden. She's a girl, on the other hand, drifting, unable to make decisions or make decisions; He's a strong, powerful guy with an exact idea in his head. Tyler blows up the man's apartment, and the two of them live together in a ruined house. Determined to involve him in the project, Tyler lets him into a Fight Club, an underground stazone, where you gather to beat yourself up, and in this way you feel alive again...
