Unabridged / Go to Abbreviated Audiobook Written by: Oliver Sacks Narrated By: John Lee Date: October 2007 Duration: 11 hours 7 minutes Music can move us to the heights or depths of emotion. It can persuade us to buy something, or remind us of our first date. It can lift us out of depression when nothing else can. It can make us dance to our rod. But the power of music goes much, much further. In fact, music occupies more areas of our brain than language does—humans are a musical species. Oliver Sacks' compassionate, compelling stories of people struggling to adapt to different neurological conditions have fundamentally changed the way we think about our own brains, and the human experience. In MUSICOPHILIA he examines the power of music through the individual experiences of patients, musicians and everyday people. He explores how catchy songs can expose us to hours of mental replay, and how a surprising number of people acquire the nonstop musical hallucinations that attacked them night and day. But much more often, music goes right: Sacks describes how music can animate people with Parkinson's disease who otherwise can't move, give words to stroke patients who otherwise can't speak, and calm and organize people whose memories are ravaged by Alzheimer's or memory loss. Music is irresistible, haunting and unforgettable, and in MUSICOPHILIA, Oliver Sacks tells us why. This title will be released on . This eBook is no longer available for sale.
