The next great city is the birthplace of Nat King Cole and the Confederate States of America. Montgomery, aka the beautiful capital of Alabama, continues to make headlines. In fact, area code 256 was also where the first open heart surgery was performed in the Western Hemisphere in 1902. If that's not enough to make you respect this city, it also developed the first power system, which changed transportation forever. Area Code 256 covers Montgomery and Auburn, also including the North and Northeast Metropolitan areas of Alabama. The area code 256 was initially introduced in 1998 as split from the 205 area code. It opened up a lot of new numbers and worked well for more than 10 years. However, in 2009 officials identified that a new overlay was needed and they added the 938 area code in addition to area code 256. Because of this, people in this area must dial all ten digits of a number, to make sure they are connected to the right person at the other end of the line. Other areas covered by Montgomery's area code include the metropolitan areas of Huntsville, Dacustor, The Askers, Gadsden and Aniston-Oxford. These urban areas include the well-known cities of Athens, Arabia, Boaz, Dactor, Florence, Madison, Scottsboro as well as others. Montgomery is the main city in area code 256. In addition, the Montgomery, Alabama area code is home to many government agencies and boasts a large military presence. In fact, Maxwell Air Force Base is located in Montgomery, as well as Thomas Good Jones Law School and other universities. Montgomery, who has always faced a much larger population, will solve the problem by First place in America to install electric street cars that covered the whole city. This system allowed people in area code 256 to move to suburban areas and still conveniently travel to jobs downtown. Montgomery is also home to racial controversy, like the one where Rosa Parks refused to give her seat to a white man back in the 1950s. That sparked a civil rights movement that encouraged Martin Luther King Jr. and ended with the expected repeal of the segregated bus system. Although racial tensions often increased in area code 256, the weather remained consistently calm. With a humid subtropical climate, Montgomery avoids major natural disasters and usually has mild winters. Many people enjoy the perks of living in Montgomery, as it has a fairly equal division between people living in the city. These benefits include the Hank Williams Museum, the Montgomery Museum of Fine Arts, winton M. Blount Cultural Park, the Montgomery Symphony Orchestra and the Montgomery Zoo. You can also spend an afternoon visiting F. Scott and the Zelda Fitzgerald Museum in the Montgomery Area Code, Alabama. Of course, the 256 area codes also cover Auburn, which is a very popular college town. Auburn, best known for its vibrant football games, has consistently become the list of the best places to live in America. Quality of life is high in the Auburn, AL, area with the last foothill of the A appalachia mountains quietly located at the southern end of Auburn. The climate here is fairly mild, making it ideal for farming and crop cultivation. Although summer can be hot, most major natural disasters are moving away from this area. The worst weather patterns recorded here are unpredictable snow or high wind systems. Usually area code 256 is hit only by the edge of hurricanes, and suffers very little damage. Unsurprisingly, Auburn's cosy area code has been home to many famous citizens over the past 170 years. These include a number of Nobel Prize winners, artists, generals and, of course, professional athletes. All Alabama area codes by number
