Another happy customer | © Tony Alter/FlickrThis tattoo shop is one of the most highly regarded places to get a tattoo in San Francisco. Black & Blue Tattoo opened in 1995 and still operates loudly just outside the Mission Area. Woman owned, gender-inclusive, and diverse, Black and Blue is as San Franciscan as she gets. Talented and reliable artists bring clients not only all over the country, but also to the world. A classic insider tip to measure how great a tattoo shop is is how tattoo artists treat customers to get their first tattoo. In this aspect, Mission Ink Tattoo & Piercing gets the ultimate gold star. The artists who work at Mission Ink are respected, aware of what a client wants, and obviously extremely talented. There are professional and skilled piercers in store as well, ready to give you beautiful body piercings and jewelry. The highly skilled artists at Black Heart Tattoo are incomparable. And with a combined 60 years of tattoo experience among the six artists in the store, it's easy to imagine why. Black Heart Tattoo was able to be one of San Francisco's leading tattoo shops because of its ever-evolving creative energy and careful handling of the tattoo experience. The store has created quite a sequence since opening in 2004, with countless and repeat customers swearing from their experience at Black Heart.Foot Tattoo | © Tony Alter/Flickr The cream of changing tattoo experiences can be found in Black Serum Tattoos. We work hard to be precise. But these are unusual moments, so check that the spaces remain open. Although Black Heart, which launched in 2004, is a relative newcomer to the scene, the store's six tattoos have more than 60 years of experience with each other. Artists here tend to have a penchant for fine lines, vibrant color work and a hardcore edge. Looking for a quick date? They're tradition-friendly.
