cold, you know, one of those real ones. Where you lie and can't breathe. The only thing you can think of is how to unblock your nose. Always optimistic, I didn't buy any of Vicks' nose spray, go to sinus relief blocked every time a cold blow. But late at night, in a fit of frustration, I did what we all do: I turned to Google for advice. During the hectic search I came across the alternative treatment which is an acupressura massage. The theory is that we all have energy flowing through different meridians inside our bodies. Similar to acupuncture (but without the needles), light pressure is applied to different points in the body to clear blockages. Guided by what I read, I began to press and massage around my nose, on my head and around my neck until, miraculously, my sinuses opened up, and I could breathe! It lasted long enough for me to fall into much-needed sleep. Imaxtree to save you the time of rooting online in these desperate early hours, I called Darren Rose, a Chinese medical artist, to share a simple and effective five-minute acupressura massage that will clean your sinuses and help you breathe easily, whether you're suffering from a heavy cold or an annoying bout of hay fever. Keep scrolling for your guide to clear a blocked nose – fast. Imaxtree Point 1: Yingxiang this is the number one point for nipping your nose and emptying the sinuses; Its name translates as a welcome fragrance, and it restores not only our sense of smell, but also our ability to breathe freely. To civilly civily from that point,
