Who does yuki sohma marry

Comments Share This page includes relationships with Yuki Sohma, including family, friends and others. Yuki and his mother. Yuki describes his mother as a childhood with only a few people in her life. However, his mother sold him off to Akito Sohma to become his playmate, a decision that later led to Yuki being abused by Akito. Her mother seems to keep a little love for Yuki and only uses her as a tool for her benefits to lead a luxurious life, because Rat's children are most blessed. He was also sometimes physically abusive towards Yuki and never checked on him when he was sick or abused by Akito. He also refused to let Yuk's words reach him and eventually let them die, which is why Yuki believed he would not put his emotions into words. Although Yuki thinks his mother is an antagonist, and sometimes he's a nightmare, he doesn't hate her for what she's done because she doesn't like to blame her misfortune on other people. Despite this, she is constantly upset by her tendency to make decisions about her without her own consent, and expresses that she is leading her life and not taking her to intervene. Later, when Yuki asked his mother for a cell phone, the first attempted to establish a better relationship with her and she committed to signing the paper she needed. She also tells him that she doesn't use it wastefully, causing Yuki to later laugh and think it was the first time she said something so motherly. Ayame Sohma Yuki and Ayame. Ayame is Yuki's older brother. The two have had a strained relationship since Yuki's youth. Not only did they ten years apart, but because of Yuki's poor health, he would often be separated from his family for a long time, to the point where Ayame almost forgot he was a younger brother. The rift between the two was cemented when a young Yuki tried to reach Ayame after Akito's abuse, but Ayame simply responded by pulling away. Since then, Yuki has shown outright anger at his brother by ordering Shigure's skin into Ayame's snake-form during his promotions. He is usually annoyed by his antics and refuses to know him or let Ayame get to know him. Despite this, he seems to admire Ayame for the positive traits he himself lacks. [3] But with tohru's prompting, Yuki tries to learn about his brother by visiting his shop, which, despite the fact that yuki is abominable and shocking in large numbers, gives the brothers time to be honest with each other, and Yuki understands how much he actually sees his brother. Since Yuki grew up being treated as a tool by his parents, Ayame is the one who makes Yuki realize that he is his own person and that only he can decide what he wants to do with his life. [4] When Ayame interrupts yuki's parent-teacher conference with his dominant mother, he gives Yuki to reject his mother's control. Even if their mother calls Ayame good at something, Yuki protects him because he thinks that Ayame is a good brother. [1] After this event, Yuki, although he is still very annoyed with Ayame sometimes tries to understand him more, and the relationship between the two seems to greatly improve. Towards the end, Ayame offers a flat hunt for Yuki and be his surety, which Yuki accepts. [5] Machi Kuragi Actually, I don't care how much people would notice if I disappeared. If just one person noticed, that's all I need. One person is an incredible thing. After all, it's completely different than zero. I was happy then, too. I was so happy it was almost embarrassing. Of all the people, he found me. Me alone. And now someone else is thinking about me, too. He's looking for me. It's not something I ever take for granted. -Yuki about his relationship with Machi. Yuki and Mach. Yuki initially viewed Mach as a slightly strange and eccentric person, though not to the same extent as Kakeru. [6] But as they continue to communicate with each other, Yuki becomes curious about the things Machi usually thinks about, such as his favorite color and the way he looks around the world. He also gives her maple leaf and Mogeta figurines, knowing he likes them two different times, and he understands that Mach likes something when he lifts it up. [8] Yuki begins to look at Mach in a new light and becomes particularly interested in him when he can see who he really is. despite being branded a perfect prince, and despite being surrounded by people, he sees him as being so very lonely. [9] He is also aware of Machi's destructive behavior, and while people judge him for it and even spread false rumors about him, Yuki always tries to reach out to him for understanding, wants to know more about him, and help him. Therefore, they eventually become friends, and Yuki truly enjoys her company and invites her to events despite her hesitation and introverted personality. They are also comfortable enough to quarrel in public over a simple thing like Machi turning yuki maple leaves gift bookmark, although Yuki mentions that his stubbornness endears him. Machi eventually develops feelings for Yuki when he recognizes her, brings her out of her own kes, and sees her for who she really is. [10] Yuki understands Machi and is quick to embezzle that Machi is lonely and has a lot of insecurity and self-loathing because he does too and can see himself in him; both their behaviour and upbringing. It has also emerged that Machi finds perfection so disturbing that he is forcing mar to do something too regular. She also tells him that her family was convinced she was jealous younger brother and tried to kill him, even though it was not true at all, but that they did not listen to the truth. Therefore, Yuki tells Machi that he believes in him and praises him for working so hard. Knowing Machi's tendency to walk through the newly fallen snow and crushing pieces of new box chalk due to the hatred of perfection, he promises to make footprints in the snow with him the next time it rains. He also quietly breaks a piece of chalk on Mach and thus creates imperfection in the room to make him comfortable. [11] It has been proven that Machi also understands Yuki when he breaks the door with a chair because he thought he didn't like being trapped in a dark room.[12] and he wears himself running around the school to say hello to him and give him a paper flower, knowing that he might feel lonely. Indeed, Yuki mentions that he was accustomed to admired from afar and has idolized to such an extent that he was socially isolated, so the fact that Machi always sought out someone other than him and always thought of him specifically, made him very happy. [13] Yuki and Mad's first kiss. Over time Yuki and Machi grow much closer and Yuki finally begins to develop feelings for her and mentions that her support has helped her several times. Machi also acknowledges that the fact that Yuki had been by his side and supported him meant so much to him. [14] After realizing his mutual feelings and finally finding a person to whom he could give as much as he could, Yuki expressed his desire to tell him about the Sohma family and its curse. Whether he was accepted or not, he thought it was a risk he had to take because he wanted to be with her forever. [15] But when he intended to tell Mach about it, his curse broke unexpectedly, so instead he would hug and kiss her, sparing the talk of the curse later. Towards the end, Yuki and Machi start dating and become a loving couple, although Yuki isn't afraid to regularly tease her or show her sly personality. She also gives him the key to the apartment she lives in while attending college so she can visit him at any time, and tells her that she's waiting for him to reach him. [5] Fruit basket second, Yuki and Machi are married and have a son named Mutsuki Sohma. Mutsuki describes Yuki and Machi as very loving parents who always laugh when they are happy. They also have a family tradition of making footprints in the snow every time the snow accumulates. In addition, Machi was seen comforting Yuki when told Mutsuki about the curse, confirming that Machi was told about the curse as well. Mutsuki Sohma is both like that. When something makes them happy, they smile. They smile like they're very happy. Because... I'm glad you're my parents. I'm glad I live in this house with you and mom. It's warm in here. And fun. This house This is where I want to come home. - Mutsuki about his parents, Yuki and Machi. Yuki cried after hearing Mutsuki's confession. While there has been no on-screen interaction between the two, Yuki loves her son dearly. Yuki and Machi made sure that Mutsuki grew up in a warm and loving household, unlike both of them. He also supports his son and wants him to continue his path of life. Yuki trusts his son, it's obvious that he told him about the curse and his history as a Rat. When Yuki found acceptance, understanding and love from him, he was very happy. In addition, when Mutsuki expressed how he was happy that he had Yuki and Machi as his parents, that he is happy that he can live with them and described his home place he always wants to come home to, Yuki broke down in tears of happiness. [16] Friends Tohru Honda Yuki and Tohru. At first, Yuki did not pay much attention to Tohru and only viewed him as a classmate and strange person who lived in a tent. Inviting him to live with him and Shigure was mostly because he was in trouble, but also because he wanted to be rebellious against the Sohma family. But after Tohru begins to reach out to him, accept him without hesitation, and offer him friendship, listening to his ear and unconditional support without waiting for anything in return, Yuki develops a very protective, kind and caring attitude towards him. She also trusts him very much because he can wake up his desires to be himself and help him admit his inner insecurities. Yuki learns well at first due to his friendship that he loves Tohru deeply, especially after announcing that he had unknowingly helped her when she was young and had given her hope to live, as well after she had reappeared in her life when she again had become weak. [17] But he also knew what he felt was not romantic love. Since Yuki never had a functioning relationship with his mother, what he desired was unconditional love, support and acceptance from someone who would never reject him. This is what he found in Tohru, as he had given him everything his mother did not do. However, flustered by her childish longing and feeling like it was strange to see a mother-figure being a girl of the same age as her, Yuki tried to convince herself that she had a love for Tohru; he flirts with her on several occasions and even admits his love for her at one point. But Yuki will later be able to come to terms with his true feelings; that she's been like a mother-figure to him. Kakeru mentions that some people like having motherly girlfriends and think it's an excuse for the Yuki side to give up Tohru, but Yuki denies it, saying that a relationship in which he can only get only makes him lonely. He swears that he will find equal where she can get as much as she can give, and wants to use her mother's love, warmth and leniency, Tohru has given her the basis to truly find herself and the relationship that makes her feel complete. [17] After that, the weight on Yuk's shoulders is lifted, and he acknowledges that Tohru is precious to him in his own way and wishes he was happier than anyone else and would find a place where he can be himself. While Yuki slowly begins distancing himself from Tohru due to joining the student council and finding his friendship group, he remains equally protective of Tohru and mentions that he would not forgive anyone if they hurt him. For this reason Yuki often scolds Kyo when he inadvertently treats Tohru coldly and urges him not to let his issues control his actions and thus worry about Tohru. At the same time, Yuki becomes very supportive of her relationship with Kyo, she sees sincerity in her well-balanced relationship, and even beats Kyo up for not visiting her in the hospital and thinking that Yuki would be better with her. Yuki makes Kyo realize that he is the only one who can make Tohru happy and that he should not make him cry; essentially, the reason why Kyo is finally able to match Tohru. [18] I was always so weak. I wasn't good at making connections with other people, but I wanted to be loved. I wanted to be needed. I missed those things... And then one day you came into my life. You fulfilled my wishes without asking for anything in return. You gave me so much. And that's why I can stand before you today. You helped me become a full-fledged person. You helped me grow up as a human being. You... You were like a mother to me. I finally got to tell you that. I know my real feelings are a little embarrassing... But, you know, it's the same for them. Your presence is so warm and kind... So while we all go out of our way now, starting a new life in new places, every so often, we still think about you. Is he doing well? She's not crying, is she? Is he smiling even now? Is he happy today? That's how we always think about you... I'm so glad I met you. I'm so glad you were here. Thank you, thank you, thank you... Tohru, can't you do that? —Yuki's true feelings for Tohru. Towards the end, Yuki will finally be able to acknowledge her true feelings for Tohru: that she has been a mother-figure to him. Although he's a little embarrassed by his true feelings, he's grateful for meeting Tohr and how he's helped him grow into the man he is today. Yuki thanks Tohru for everything he has done to the Sohma family, but mostly to him, and eventually calls him Tohru as opposed to his usual Honda-san. In adulthood, Yuki and Tohru are still close friends because they are known to meet from time to time their husbands despite living in different cities, and because their respective sons had grown up like brothers. Kakeru Manabe Yuki and Kakeru. Initially Yuki strongly disliked Kakeru because he reminded him of Ayame. However, during one of their first interactions, in which Kakeru says Yuki is an interesting person, Yuki has been touched and happy because he had previously thought about himself being carried, and because no one had said anything like this to him before. As time goes on, Yuki and Kakeru develop friendships, although they sometimes argue because of the personalities and ideals of their clashes, where kakeru's antibodies are scrubbing or being foolish. Yuki was jealous of Kakeru because he finds him similar to Kyo in the sense that he is able to communicate and make friends easily. However, when Kakeru explains that he has his own issues too and makes an effort to reach out to Yuki so he can understand him, Yuki is deeply touched and starts viewing Kakeru in a new light, thinking that spending time with him is not so bad. As time goes by, Yuki begins to open up to Kakeru and even tells her a little about her relationship with her parents, as well as her true feelings for Tohru (as you look at her as a mother figure) from which she has not been able to trust anyone. Kakeru can do his troubles, relate to it and support it. It is also through Yuki that Kakeru learns to truly feel alone, and Kakeru is able to trust Yuki how he struggles to understand other peoples' perspectives, especially when those he loves have ideas that differ from her. [21] This is why the two boys earn much more respect for each other and see eye to eye. While Kakeru often teases Yuki, she is always taking care of him and making sure she is bored, which Yuki appreciates deeply. Tohru notes that thanks to kakeru's meeting, Yuki has started to smile more. During the year they spent together, they got to know each other very well, and Yuki describes Kakeru's endless support as something that has helped him immensely. [14] It is said that they spend a lot of time together as adults as well, as Yuki's son Mutsuki and Kakeru's daughter Michi were basically raised siblings. Sohma Pere Kyo Sohma Yuki and Kyo. Originally Yuki didn't hate D&D and actually wanted to be a friend with her. But Kyo refused because he hated Yuki just for being a rat. Therefore, both are seen sharing mutual hatred of each other at the beginning of the story. When they talk or communicate, they are always conflicted and at each other's throats often. At the same time, Yuki is envious of how Kyo has the ability to easily make friends and fit into normal social settings, and is annoyed by the fact that Kyo wants to be part of the Zodiac while Yuki himself wants to escape family and its curse. Kyo is envious of Yuki, like how she is perfect, always able to take advantage of the situation one should, and the way she is adopted by the zodiac family, their relationships begin to improve shortly after they meet Tohru. Thanks to his kindness and both of them who care deeply for the tohr, they begin to soften their attitude towards each other and are able to work together when Tohru is in trouble. Although they continue to adddd into and fight over everything, it is never through physical violence. When it became clear that Kyo never hated Yuki for who he was, but was so unhappy with his life that he felt he needed a scapegoat for all his misfortune, their relationship became too complicated. If Tohru is hospitalized and Kyo refuses to go see because he thinks he would be better off with Yuki, Yuki is furious. He consequently beats Kyo up and is the first to understand that he is not some kind of superhero that can save everyone (as Kyo can't save Kyoko), and that he is the only one who can make Tohru happy and that he is more capable than anyone else. Kyo, in return, admits how he has always wanted to be like Yuki, which struck a chord with Yuki as he has always idolized Kyo as well. After that event, they began to understand and respect each other. [18] Finally, their arguments and fights softly down into the gentlest air between them and light-hearted teasing from yuki's side. When Tohru asked Yuki about the reason for their budding friendship, Kyo replied that Yuki had beaten him. [22] At the end, Kyo and Yuki smile while walking past each other, friendly calling each other a normal dumb cat and a fucking rat. [5] They are expected to remain friends and often contact each other in adult life because their sons grew up like brothers. Akito Sohma Yuki and Akito. Yuki is a twisted relationship between love and hatred of Akito. Being a Rat of the Zodiac, it put Yuki at the top of the Zodiac, making him the closest God; Akito, can't you do that? But Yuki was emotionally, mentally and psychologically abused by Akito; As a result, Yuki was deeply traumatized. In fact, most of Yuki's current issues stem from his abuse of Akito, including how he turned himself completely off and within one point lost his will to live. These days, Akito is a source of fear for Yuki, and she freezes and sometimes trembles in her presence. Despite this, Yuki is gradually able to grow out of his fear of Akito. As such, Yuki is able to calmy chat with Akito and even tells her that she forgives him for everything he has done because he just wanted to move on with his life, without limiting the pain of the past. Even as Akito reacted violently, hitting Yuk with a vase and wounding his face, his dedication stood, which means Akito could no longer control Yuk. At the end of the akito redeems himself, it is not known whether they truly reconcile, but Akito decides to apologize to all the Zodiacs for what he has done and give them the freedom to live their lives freely. Hatsuharu Sohma Yuki and Hatsuharu. As a child, Hatsuharu hated Yuki without meeting him because the adult teasing of him was based on the rat's use of Ox in the old Zodiac legend. However, when they finally didn't meet, Yuki patiently allowed Hatsuharu to shout his frustrations and then pointed out that he didn't think Haru was. Yuki was the only one who could alleviate hatsuharu's stress, and because of this incident Hatsuharu refers to Yuki as his first love. Because of his love for Yuki, he began sneaking to visit Yuki when he was locked in Akito's room, even if it meant he could get into trouble, and their friendship began to develop from there. Tired of Yuki always suffering, Hatsuharu went to Shigure and persuaded him to get Yuki out of the main house entirely. These days, Hatsuharu is one of Yuk's closest friends. While Yuki gets annoyed by Hatsuharu's clinging, love confessions, and how embossed she is sometimes, she cares deeply about him and appreciates the fact that she has always taken care of her. Yuki and Hatsuharu share a deep bond; they can trust each other with serious questions, hatsuharu understand Yuki more than he knows. Yuki does not appear to have the same level of understanding as Haru; he certainly tries, but often admits that branch jumps logic and intuition to confuse him. Nonetheless, Yuki is always willing to lend Hatsuharu listening to the ear as well as comfort and help him when he feels he needs it. As time goes on, Yuki becomes more vocal about his appreciation for Hatsuharu and expresses his desire for Hatsuharu to come to him every time he has problems that he appreciates as well. They regularly keep up despite their very different lives, and Hatsuharu always ensures that check yuki. After the curse breaks, the former Zodiacs gather at the headquarters, and Yuki says she's glad they all feel comfortable together, despite the fact that the bond is gone. In response, Haru assures him that he will always love him; A lot of Rin jealousy and Yuki withering. [24] Shigure Sohma Although they live under the same roof, Shigurel and Yuki have a casual relationship. While Shigure regularly gets Yuki's nerves, it is implicit that Yuki is grateful for Shigure's release from the main estate and allows him to live with him. Yell Sohma Yuki and Yell. Yuki and Kisa have had similar experiences regarding bullying, being ignored and becoming mute, which makes them able to associate and sympathize with each other. Yuki is one of the people who was able to encourage Kisa to speak, as well as his his fears. She tells him that because they are similar, they grow their weaknesses and face their fears together. Kisa is very grateful for Yuki's words and it inspires her to try. Although they do not communicate much later, it is seen as both taking care of each other, as Kisa looks up at her older brother, and Yuki dotes at her and praises her for her good work. Hatori Sohma When Yuki was young, he subconsciously despised Hatori and always accused him of erasing memories of his first friends. But as Yuki grew up, he realized the mistakes he had made and that Hator was also influenced by circumstances out of his control, and he apologised to him properly. As a result, they were able to develop a bond again, where it can be seen that Hatori treats him somewhat like a little brother, which Yuki appreciates. It is also seen that they bond over how to view Ayame; Yuki promises Hator that he will never be like his brother. [23] Isuzu Sohma Yuki and Rin shared a rather cold relationship. He is seen slashing out Yuki on several occasions, going so far as calling him Akito's toy. He also made sure that he knew that his own power was not, that he could live in Shigure's home; This was due to Haru's pleadings, which he was able to do. Despite such things, yuki doesn't take it to heart and uses these facts to grow. She continues on Twitter, regularly reminding her that Haru loves her and that she should not carry all her loads alone. Towards the end, they seem to tolerate each other, although Rin is annoyed by the fact that Haru sometimes declares his love for Yuki.
