These four pages offer a wonderful view of the late Sheperd Paine's life's work and modeling history. Many of us older modelers first learned about Sheperd's work using his tip sheets, which came with select Monogram kits in the 1970's then later with Tamiya sets during the 1980s. Shep was also an avid military historian and collector of military artifacts. The book's content is divided into two sections: The Basics by Sheperd Paine and Projects, which include eight projects by different designers. The basics cover all the basics from the basics section of The Assembly Armor Kits, including useful parts for Tank tutorial. Researching the topic of its use in its environment is explained by Shep's Chapter 2 doing Research. Shep also addresses working with scale drawings and evaluating conflicting references. In chapter three, detailing and Advanced Modeling Shep shift gears and go all out with photo-etch, resins and good old fashioned scratches in the building. In chapter four, Battle Damage and Equipment shep tells everyone. He covers what is right and what is wrong and how he makes it work with his proven methods. Chapter 5, Painting and decaling from the master himself. Lots of awesome tips and information coming out of here. Chapter 6 Atmosphericising and Seven Phorem Planning are Shep's very useful and insightful use of containment, balance and symmetry. All set out in the lad's terms. Bases and landscapes are included in Chapter Eight, including water modelling methods. Construction and structures are at the heart of Chapter 9. Finally, we come to the top ten chapter of Rada and painting figures, it is one of the most detailed chapters offered and includes a comprehensive step-by-step face painting tutorial.
