Calligraphy practice sheets are all the rage these days, and FREE makes it all the better. The reason for this popularity is that there is no better way to give yourself structured practices when you first start out. Once you get a handle on your first script, you'll understand the best way you learn personally. But until then, this will allow you to embark on the leap of learning the skills of a lifetime. So, if you're a beginner, the question is what calligraphy script are you interested in learning? What alphabet do you want to master? If you're not sure at the moment but you want to get a little taste of what calligraphy scripts look like (or wrongly called fonts) you can quickly check out my post in the Complete Beginner's Guide. Gothic Blackletter Lowercase (for Beginners)Up second is a lowercase blackletter sheet. If you're just starting to learn how to use a broad edge pen to write blackletter scripts, this is the perfect script to get started. This sheet is designed for 6mm Pilot Parallel Pen and width 4 nib height. This set of sheets is not in alphabetical order but vice versa in order of difficulty. Starting with i letters becomes more complicated and moves to ascenders and descenders (uppercase and lowercase). There are no arrows on this set of exercise sheets to show directions, but I created a detailed video showing how to use a wide edge pen correctly for blackletter calligraphy.
