External money can be paid into your account through a cash order, cash or check. If someone sends a check or cash order, make sure they write a prisoner's ID on it. The maximum amount you are allowed into your account is $290 per month. The guidelines for sending money to an inmate before sending money, you should find out which company online money transfer companies your prisoner is imprisoned in use. The exact method is that the Southern Regional Prison SRJ uses changes frequently, so it's best to call them at (304) 256-6726 to get the current payment method. You may be required to be on the prisoner visit list in order to send them money, and know that they may have a limit on how much you deposit at a time as $200-300 at a time, or a limit on how much money a prisoner can be in an account at one time. Some of the money transfer firms used by various facilities include JPay, MoneyGram, AccessCorrections, OffenderConnect, Touchpayonline, JailATM, WU, smartdeposit, and tigercommissary. If a prisoner has fines or are required to pay restitution, then they will be subject to the garnishment of their commissary/trust account. If the prisoner has a side dish, the money to pay them will be the prisoner's account. In some cases, this may be the percentage or the entire amount of the obligation, but the actual percentage depends on the circumstances. We encourage inmates to speak to a counselor at their facility and try to find out. You can also try to negotiate so that only a percentage of your commissary funds are accepted and not all your funds are taken at one time. The Commissioner's Office is the Southern Regional Prison SRJ store. The prisoner can purchase a number of things here like toiletries, snacks and writing supplies. Keep in mind that you will most likely want to buy things from the commissary every day, and any infringements will get this privilege taken away from you. The Commissioner will sell an assortment of various items that the prisoner can purchase if they have sufficient funds in their account. These products include clothing, shoes, small snacks and other foods, in addition to personal care products such as soap, shampoo, and disposable shaving razors. The Commissioner also sells other things such as books and magazines, TVs and radios, playing cards, headphones, MP3 MP3 and electronic tablets. They also sell everything you need to write home to family, friends and loved ones: paper, envelopes and stamps. If the prisoner is indigent and cannot afford paper and stamps, the prison will provide these items to an inmate who has not had money in an account at the police station for at least 30 days. Phone calls and phone use policies the only phone calls that inmates at the southern SRJ regional prison can make are collection calls or through a prepaid phone bill. Prison phone calls are usually more expensive than phone calls made outside the prison. There are certain restrictions on how often you can use the phone, but prisoners should keep in mind that there are a limited number of phones, so all prisoners have to share the phone time. If you break prison rules, the prisoner's ability to use the phone may be reduced or completely excluded. Phone Southern Regional Prison SRJ: (304) 256-6726 How to save money on inmates calling correctional services have a monopoly on every facility that they operate phone services, meaning that they control how much it costs to make phone calls. The money that these phone service providers make from all the phone calls that inmates make in conjunction with the facility, so there is no incentive for the prison or counselors in the facility to show the inmates or their family how to save money on inmates' phone calls at the southern SRJ regional prison. Rates are posted and there are at least two different prices depending on where the prisoner calls. The following three factors will determine how much a prisoner's phone call will cost: where you are: Where your prisoner is, what type of phone number you have. For example, if your inmate is in a federal prison, if you get a new local number, it will reduce your inmate's phone call rate from $0.21 per minute to just $0.06 per minute. For state prisons and local prisons, learning how to reduce your inmates' phone charges can be more difficult. ArrestedResources.com is an expert in keeping up with all the changes that affect your inmate's speed and in most cases can offer you a prisoner phone number that will save you a lot of money on inmate phone calls. There are some circumstances in which we will not be able to save you money, and therefore we will not offer you a prisoner call number. In these cases, the facility has set their phone calls rates so high that no one can save money.
