Lake Cle Elum is the easternmost lake of the three great lakes (two are north and one south of Interstate 90) in the Cascade range. Middle Lake Kachess is also north of I-90, while the westernmost Lake Keechelus is south of I-90. Lake Cle Elum is part of the Columbia River Basin, as the Cle Elum River is a tributary of the Yakima River, which is a tributary of the Columbia River. The lake is being used as a reservoir to store project Yakima, an irrigation project run by the U.S. Bureau of Reconstruction. Although the natural lake, capacity and healing of Lake Cle Elum is controlled by the Cle Elum Dam, a 165-foot tall earth structure built in 1933. As a storage reservoir, the active capacity of Lake Cle Elum is 436,900 hectares (539,000,000 m³). Since 2010, the fictional village of Monanash has been filmed on Lake Cle Elum for the TV show Northern Exposure.
