Sue of Calgary, AB Verified Reviewer Original Review: October 21, 2020I was very pleased with the availability of this card and how quickly it was approved. I found the process of getting it a little tedious. It was approved online, then I had to wait to get a letter by registered mail where I would go to the post office and get an ID Had. After that I received the card and had to wait again until the pin came into the post office. I was finally able to activate it. Then I had to pay 59 USD/annual fee! I understand how important it is to be one step ahead of the thieves, but it has really taken a long time to get to use it! I think the fee is quite high given the lack of benefits, but it's a recovery of the credit card card, so I'm grateful for the opportunity. You know what it's like when the family can base your character on your past. I had a terrible year 2019, car accident, therapy, etc. so I had a difficult time with my payments to keep, two out of 3 cards were restricted, including my precious biz card, for which I worked so hard. I have these accounts in good condition for about 5 years or more before 2019. Unlike a few of my other card companies with the same story, the same loyalty, they didn't care, they sent my accounts straight to the collections. My good score dropped over 140 points to 540. Capital One didn't leave me high and dry. I called and the CSR told me that my accounts were restricted. I had no idea what that meant, but after talking to her more, it was over, a done deal with the loan. I asked for a credit manager, and when I explained what came to mind (she has no idea that the car accident and therapy were a very small part of what I had to do as a single mother), she campaigned for it on my behalf. I have no idea which department she was talking to, but every step of the way while she was on the call, she returned to tell me that she was still on the call and was still trying to take my cards back to Velvet Home. After 30 minutes everything was ready, she did!!! My accounts were reinstated and I was able to pay the balances, which were at least 500 dollars - 1k beyond their limits. I thought, heck, if a company can do this for me, I have no problem giving what is owed to them, fees and everything. I will forever be dedicated to Capital One and if I don't have anything else in my wallet, it's OK. Now I'm rebuilding my business and helping my daughter get back to college and pay my basic rent. THANK CAPITAL ONE for being human. This representative went further to make sure that all my questions were answered and that I was well looked after. What could have been an extremely stressful process, made so simple and seamless that it really made me and my husband feel like we were being looked after specifically. Not only did she do her job beyond expectations, but she also cared about me as a person, and she looked at our conversation as if I were part of her family. She waited patiently with me as I put my husband on the line, as he was during our and not able to come to the phone immediately, and she was quick and efficient not to take too much of his time. I have never had such an unforgettable customer experience in my life... To top it all off, she even sent us a surprise gift to show how much she cared and attention (how the gift was relevant to our interaction - a picture frame for my husband and me who were recently married). It's funny how people say: it's the little things... But it's true! Hema has set the bar extremely high for all my future interactions with customer service representatives... because she was just so amazing. CAPITAL ONE, I hope you know you have an excellent representative. take good care of them because they definitely pay great attention to your customers and because of her I will probably be ALWAYS a Capital One customer! If I am a long-time customer of a company and I have been a good consumer, then of course everyone would expect that company to help out today in a sitch like ours. I spoke to Steve at the call center today about my 2 open accounts and the APRIL payments I pay a problem due to the layoff work off. I appreciate the consideration and help they have offered me. I would like to thank the company as a whole for its case-by-case decision in determining support. GREAT JOB Steve and CAP!! Jewellanne of Lockport, NY Verified Reviewer Original Review: March 17, 2020I had multiple credit cards and accounts and a perfect payment history for years, then a month my direct deposit didn't go in and none of my bills were paid, I found the problem had been fixed, but things spiraled quickly as it wasn't immediately fixed, I contacted all my creditors and from four only two worked with me. Capital One was exceptional When it appealed to me and offered numerous opportunities to get back on track, simple plans and even gave me the opportunity to suggest to them what I could do, which I did not take advantage of. I took one of their offers and in two months was back on track, I was still oversubscribed, but my payments were back on track, once a plan was set, they did not charge me any overdraft fees, late fees, I was just the first non-payment fees from the two missed payments before my deposits were set and my regular interest. The other two cards said before I could have a payment plan I three months behind the payments, by then the cards doubled my balances with fines and fees, so I had them unloaded, but the two that worked with me kept. When my friends and family get credit card offers, I always tell them they're going with Capital One. I will never give it up, they were wonderful, understanding and did not make me feel that I already felt. Capital One never returned calls or tracked and did not take accurate notes. It has now been 7 months since I first filed the dispute, and I only had to contact the BBB for help to move this forward. I'm a long-time customer with a big story and they refused to own their mistake. Terrible experience and super frustrating. Agents are nice, leadership is thoughtless. Christy of Bristol, TN Verified Reviewer Original Review: November 10, 2020I have to say that I was upset about opening this account because the reviews were great. But I had nothing but problems. The debit card has been messed up. Cannot be used. The security is so tight that I can't get an Otc code because I have a prepaid phone. Disappointed Mary J of Deland, FL Verified Reviewer Original Review: Nov. 5, 2020I have two Cap One cards that I have had for years. You will always be paid on time and early in the cycle. Until recently, I had no problems with them. Earlier this year, three fraudulent charges were made on one of the cards, three charges at fast-food restaurants between Pensacola, Florida and Texas, all during the worst period of the pandemic this spring. Cap One and these have been fixed. They sent me a new card to replace the card with the fraudulent fees. I tried to activate it and the nightmare began. They wanted me to prove who I am by scanning documents and sending them to them on my phone. I said no, I don't put myself in further danger. They said my account would be fine until I was ready. They kept trying to contact me to get these scanned personal documents back. Eventually I called her and found a reasonable person in the fraud department who checked my account and couldn't find a single reason why I was asked for personal documents. He corrected the situation and everything was fine. Now, 3 months later, I am going to pay my bills for the two cards and both cards have been restricted. Again I call the fraud department and I am asked to do the same, scan personal documents and send them to them. Again, I said, no. I told them I was willing to answer all the questions, but I didn't put my personal documents at risk for anything, was not necessary. I asked them why my accounts were restricted, and they refused to tell me. I spoke to another person who was supposed to be a manager and got the same answer that he couldn't tell me. We walked for a few minutes. I asked him about the next person about him and he said I was going to reach the top. To which I said: I know you're not the CEO of Cap One, so I definitely haven't reached the top! We went round and round for a few minutes. He said he couldn't tell me who was higher than him, it was against politics. So Cap One wants me to prove who I am when they weren't willing to prove to me who they are. It works both ways. Eventually I just told him I was going to follow it up, but my relationship with them was definitely over, that they just lost a customer. I told him that someone could call me back if they wanted to, but it wouldn't make any difference that I kept a relationship with them. The biggest problem I have with the situation is that they walked me up; they refused to help, so I refused to answer. I would stay away from this company. The credit cards seemed to be good over the time I had them, but they're not worth the effort now. I have other cards, a very good one with my credit union, which for me is much more reliable and secure. It is difficult to connect to Cap One now: so many things have changed. No secure message, no email for customers, no message of something unusual that happens to the customer, no communication time. My advice is to find another credit card company. And for those with the good reviews... Just wait for something to go wrong and then you'll find out. Read the full review Bradford of Tucson, AZ Verified Reviewer Original Review: Nov. 5, 2020I had agreement with WCJ, Inc. of Woodand Hills, California that for 75 fee they would give me address or email or number number for Michelle Ann **, born 04/28/1951 in New Rochelle, New York. Dino only gave me address and phone for Ricard **, who was her ex-husband from Garden City, Michigan. They divorced in 1975, and Richard said he spoke to her in 1985 when she told him she was moving to San Diego with her mother and sister Marlene. Dino failed to give me direct information about Michelle, so he violated the agreement for a 75-dollar fee. Capital One has denied my dispute twice without justification. Fred of Cherry Hill, NJ Verified Reviewer Original Review: Oct. 31, 2020I've dealt with Capital One a few times before - twice before to pay for bid purchases and currently set up through Walmart. I never had any problems with them and therefore satisfied with this company. Next Next
