Switch: Cherry MX Blue Click + Tuctor 55cN is suitable for ordinary users who tend to like to enter a great force for input and hear loud noises when typing at high speed, and may be using a keyboard with more advanced switches, so cherry MX blue switches feel that way because they are popular compared to game-only switches. Grading (sample of 1,368 users): Game 7.68 | type 8.94 | Normal use Suggested some mechanical keyboards using the 8.15 Cherry MX blue switch: MK Night, Ducky Glow 7 Blackout - MK Exclusive First Release, Ducky One 2 Mini RGB, Fontex POK3R Black case RGB .. Cherry MX Brown Tuttle Switch 55cN Force Keyboard presses lightly to produce less blue sound. Suitable for both gaming and typing. In fact, users have shown that gamers also prefer to brown this switch, as the feeling of getting lighter when pressed on a key also requires playing a long wrist. Grading (1,272 user sample): Game 8.41 |8.37 | input normal use 8.48 MX suggested keyboard using MX brown switch: MK night typist warm white backlight, Fontex POK3R black case RGB LED 60%.. Cherry MX Red Linear switch 45cN Force Mechanical Keyboard that uses a gently pressing linear red switch and is lighter than input or cherry MX black. Red presses gently, but the fast and very responsive key response is not delayed when pressed. For some users, the downside of red is that if you use too familiar a hand, due to the sensitivity and light nature of red, it is easy to press immediately and press the wrong key. Grading (more than 1,041 users): Enter Game 8.77 [7.14] Normal use Suggested some mechanical keyboards using the 7.73 MX Red Switch: Ducky Shine 7 Blackout RGB Led Double Shot PBT., Ducky One 2 Mini Skyline Double Shot PBT., Cherry MX Black Linear Switch (Linear Switch) 60cN force linear structure helps the keyboard to use black switches to push deep, very good for gamers, helps limit the ability to press the wrong key. Black is now a popular type of switch in the gaming world with a lot of potential. Some users said that black makes a pretty loud noise, makes keystrokes sticky and becomes a bit annoying when you need to press them right away. Grading (over 650 users): Enter game 8.16|6.68| normal use 7.21 Suggestions some mechanical keyboards use switchesBlack: Ducky One 2 SF 60% Double Shot PBT, Ducky One 2 Mechamini RGB LED 60% Double Shot PBT, Ducky One 2 RGB RKL RGB LED Double Shot PBT. Buckling Spring Click + Taktor Switch 65cN Force Grading (334+ users): Enter Game 7.25 |9.14| Usually 8.08, the buckling spring switch used for model M mechanical keyboard version has a loud sound, creates a lot of touch and requires strong force on the key. Gamers have specialized in enjoying this child for thrills and have been playing. Cherry MX Green Click + Tactical Switch 80cN Force Grading (more than 294 users): Enter Game 7.58|7.76| Normal use of cherry MX green is heavier than blue, has the same operation as bLue with high noise and tap, and has a press force heavier than 80 cm. Switch green may be used separately for space keys on some keyboards using a blue switch. Many gamers also prefer the keyboard using a green switch to feel like you're pressing a piano key, having ideal depth, clear pop-ups and down feeling, and funny sounds. Some mechanical keyboards use green switches: Ducky One 2 Horizon Double Shot PBT, Ducky One Side Print TKL Pad Print PBT, Ducky One 2 Midnight Double Shot PBT. Cherry MX Clear Tuttle Switch 65cN Force Grading (over 281 users): Game 8.27|8.16 Enter | normal use is a type of switch that creates many touches without a strong click of 7.06, cherry MX clear is considered as the sister of MX Brown, but with light pushing force. Cherry MX Clear is also used for space keys on mechanical keyboards using brown switches. Some users think the feeling brought by MX Clear is very good, but it slows down the speed of the keystrokes because it creates a lot of ta press force too heavy. Some mechanical keyboards use cherry MX clear switches: Vortex Race 3 TKL Dve Sub PBT, DuckyMiva Pro Panda .. Topper 45g Tuctor Switch 45cN Force Grading (over 186 users): Normal use to enter game 8.24 [8.89] 8.14 is considered an aristocratic switch with smooth operation, moderate pushing force and soft feeling when you press the key. Many gamers can only use the word perfect when commenting on this child. Cherry MX Silver Linear Switch 45cN Force Grading (114 or more users): Enter Game 9.04|7.32| Same operation as normal use 8.22 Cherry MX Red, but with less light pushing force, less keystrokes. Some keyboards use Cherry MX Silver: Ducky One 2 Mini Pure White, Ducky Shine 7 Blackout – MKFirst release, Ducky One 2 Mechamini RGB LED. Cherry MX White Click + Taxicle 80cN Force Grading (out of 104 users): Enter Game 7.09 [6.36] is considered a midrange switch with 6.43 medium touch and light pressing force for normal use. The third generation of MX White was produced in 2007 and is very similar to the Cherry MX Green series. I don't know the real way you might have to try and compare directly. Some mechanical keyboards use cherry MX white switches: Ducky One 2 Skyline Double Shot PBT, Vortex PKK3R Black Case.. Topper 55g Tuctor Switch 55cN Force Grading (over 100 users): Enter Game 8.19 [8.30 | Normal Use 7.46 is also considered a high-end series, with absolute smooth operation, receiving countless compliments from both gamers and typing users. Matthias Click is a combination of Cherry as combination of Cherry and the complete state of 6.50 Matthias Click is an alternative to white APLS and cherries. In terms of operation, sound and feel, Matthias Clyck is a combination of Cherry as combination of Cherry and cherries. MX Brown and MX Blue Kyle Blue Click + Tactical Switch 50cN Force Grading (82+ people): enter game 7.03[6.90 | normal use 6.92, but it was initially rated inferior to the original, but It is an MX blue version made in China that has now been upgraded to many. Users use a few days to feel newly clicked, sticky hands, not smooth, but very affordable and more comfortable compared to switches of the same level. Matthias Quiet Click Click + Taktor Switch 55cN Force Grading (more than 80 users): Normal use to enter game 7.65[7.43 | With Matthias patented technology, it should significantly reduce noise but still result in a good setback. Many users commented that this is a simple structural switch, but less distracting while working because of its subtlet concism and less noise. Outemu Blue Click + Tactical Switch 60cN Force Grading (out of 69 users): Normal use of 7.61 Outemu Blue to enter game 7.49[8.13] is great for typing, but some gamers have chosen this switch for the important ta tas touch and sound feel that are already in the game. In addition, prices are very affordable compared to what they have in common. Cherry MX Silent Red45cN Force Grading Switch (more than 62 users): Enter Game 8.74/6.48 Normal use 7.47 Typing and gaming prefers to use switches like Cherry MX Black, but requires lighter, easier and noise, it is recommended to use Cherry MX Silent Red. This type of switch is ideal for office work and requires tranquility and durability. Some users believe that silent red switches are good for gaming, but they shouldn't be used for a lot of input because they're too light and feel uncertain when you press a key. Some mechanical keyboards use Cherry MX Silent Red Switch: MK Night Typist Warm White LED Backlight, Ducky Shine 7 Blackout - MK Exclusive First Release.Gatron Blue Click + Tactical Switch 55cN Force Grading (out of 61 users): Enter Game 7.82 8.90 The feeling when using normal use 8.19 is similar to cherry MX blue, which is a copy version of the cherry, but with higher latency. Recommended for input, not games. Some mechanical keyboards use Gatron Blue Switch: KB Paradise V60 GTR 60%, Keykron K2 Aluminum RGB LED TKL, Landpad MXX Blue Case White LED TKL.
