In 2011, approximately 1,600 students were enrolled. The upper secondary school is a primary school, which houses both traditional and professional learning opportunities. [2] The school was founded in 1966 and has undergone various renovations. The school offers many unique and different classes, ranging from astronomy to television production. History The town original High School of Salem was Woodbury High School. In the 1960s it was converted into a middle school, and the current building was built. The school has recently suffered from overcrowding, leading administrators to place portable classrooms on campus. This also led the neighboring town of Windham, whose students were sent to Salem, to build their own high school in 2009; [3] The class of 2011 was the last graduating class from Salem High, which includes students from Windham. All class of 2012 students from Windham had to transfer to Windham High School, starting in early 2009-2010 the school year. The school has different traditions that include video yearbook where many of the students are presented in one way or another. [citation needed] Senior Safe Night began when students decided to camp out to high school and the apron was eventually called for when the students are believed to be involved in behaviour in their tents. It has grown from a student-led initiative to one run by members of communities—many of whom are parents of children in high school—who want to make sure that seniors can have one last night to socialize before graduation in an environment where there are no drugs or alcohol. There are usually door prices and a massive yearbook signing towards the beginning of the night when teachers are there to wish students fun on their night in. On March 11, 2014, Salem voted to approve a $75 million renovation project for Salem High School and its Career and Technical Training Center. [4] Construction was completed in 2018. [5] Campus Seifert Performing Arts Center The Seifert Performing Arts Center (SPAC) is a first-class performance and art educational complex. The facility has a 711 seat auditorium, state-of-the-art media console and equipment, semi-flight system, full orchestra pit, and changing rooms with sound/visual monitors, ensuring that performances are both fun and efficiently produced. [6] The space is named after Charles Seifert, a local entrepreneur. Extra-course athletics Athletics Salem High School was listed by Sports Illustrated in 2008 as having the best athletics program in the state of New Hampshire. [7] The Varsity football team was state champion in 2009, when it defeated Nashua North. The men's varsity basketball team won the Class L state championship in 2007 and 2008. The field hockey team won the state championship game six times between 2002 and 2008. Softball has won seventeen Class L state championships (When?-2010), Coach Harold Sachs recorded his 500th win on May 24, 2011. The boys' volleyball team has a national record in 112 games winning streakand has won ten consecutive state championships (2004–2014) according to NFHS.org. On June 18, 2010, German exchange student Philipp Becker won the boys' singles tennis tournament when he beat his londonderry high school rival. Becker is the first tennis player from Salem to win the boys title. [8] Performing arts The Salem High School Performing Arts Program offers a robust range of activities to students. The program offers Chorus, Theater Arts, Band and Color Guard. [9] The band's program consists of performing ensembles including the Marching Band, Concert Band, Jazz Band, and Salem Blue Devils Winter Percussion Ensemble. [10] The band program strives to enrich students' lives through various musical experiences. [10] The marching band is open to all students, grades 9-12, who have previously studied a musical instrument either inside or outside the school. The Marching band has performed in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade,[11] and the Fiesta Bowl Parade. [12] The theatrical arts programme performs at the Seifert Performing arts center every year in an autumn and spring play. They also participate in the NHETG spring festival. Clubs As of In 2018, there were 33 individual clubs that students could choose to join. [13] There are several student organizations such as the LABTA Club and the Muslim Student Association. Other academic based clubs include the National Honor Society, Math Team, Language Clubs and Homework Club. Other clubs are career and technical skills based, such as FBLA, Film Club, Girls Who Code, and Robotics Club.
