Annual singing competition The International Championship Collegiate A Cappella (ICCA), originally the National Championship of Collegiate A Cappella (NCCA, a game in NCAA), is an international tournament that attracts hundreds of college a cappella groups each year. [1] History was founded in 1996 by Deke Sharon, music director of Tufts University Beelzebubs, and Adam Farb, a former brown university derbies member, and the ICCA tournament is held in nine regions from January to April: Northwest, Southwest, Midwest, Great Lakes, Mid-Atlantic, Northeast, South and United Kingdom. ICCA has been presented by Varsity Vocals since 1999, when the competition was purchased by Don Gooding (Contemporary A Cappella Publishing). ICCA's success in 2005 resulted in a spin-off competition: the A Cappella International High School Championship (ICHSA). Amanda Newman became the owner of Varsity Vocals in 2008 and has been the author of the events ever since. The 2006–07 racing season was at the heart of Pitch Perfect: The Quest for Collegiate A Cappella Glory, which followed three teams competing to win the championship. [2] The ICCA finals were featured on the 2015 reality show Sing It On. Guide: Five or six quarter-final events will be held in all eight US regions (Central, Great Lakes, Mid-Atlantic, Midwest, Northeast, South, Southwest, West).[3] while the UK region owns four. Usually the top two college groups in each quarterfinal advance to the semifinals in their region. [4] The semi-finalists will be invited to the finals, which are currently being held at the City Hall Theatre (the event has also been held at Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, Carnegie Hall, PlayStation Theatre and Beacon Theatre), where they compete for the title of international champion. [5] Each band will produce a short 12-minute performance (usually three songs) that best show the group's strengths. The primary focus is on the group's musical performance, but the presentation is important, so it's not unusual for choreography to be involved. Groups typically range in size from 8 to 20. The performance of the group shall be evaluated by a panel of 3-5 qualified judges. Vocal performance, according to the official Varsity Vocals documents, aspects of vocal performance that are an integral part of high-scoring ICCA performance include balance and blend, quality and ingenuity arrangement, rhythmic accuracy, interpretation of song, in tone, sound quality, dynamic accuracy, and presentation. The first six of these concepts are classified on a 1-10 scale, while the last three are classified on a 1-5 scale. These numbers are added together and then added to the number of the next stage, Visual Performance. The total possible score at this stage is 75. [6] Visual performance of visual performance, although not so high like vocal performance, it is still an integral component of any ICCA performance. Various aspects of visual performance include visual areciability, appearance efficiency, energy/stage presence, movement aacy, motion creativity, transition/blocking and professionalism. The first three categories are classified on a scale of 1-10, while the last four are classified on a scale of 1-5. The visual presentation is designed to illustrate, not unlike the show's chorus, emotional performance through exercise. While often a group appreciates vocal performance over visual performance, high scores and semi-final award-winning performances have relied equally on the strength of their movement to make a sound. [6] Subjective ranking Finally, another important aspect of the performance level takes the form of a ranking framework. If a judge decides that the group's 1st, 2th and 3th districts are not in the same way as the group' So if the judge decides that you're the first-place group, we'll add an additional 30 points to that judge's total score. If they decide to use the 2. These are heading towards the eventual leaderboard at the end of the evening's performance, when the jury announces the first runner-up, runner-up and runner-up. [6] Occasionally, the event attracted the attention of the national media. The biggest television appearance was three consecutive performances on The Today Show in 2001, culminating in a Monday morning performance of the champions, the Compulsive Lyres of the University of Michigan. The following year, competitors at Skidmore Dynamics were the subject of a New York Times article just days before they staged at Lincoln Center. [7] After their first ICCA victory and release in 2008, SoCal VoCals was featured in an article in Newsweek Magazine. In fiction, various bands compete for the national title of ICCA in the comedy Pitch Perfect, while the 2015 sequel depicts a fictional World Cup. It was released on December 22, 2017.
