Authors choose specific words for their effect based on their connotation. Connotation is the social meaning – it is what the word suggests to us beyond its dictionary meaning (designation). For the word below, talk about what the word literally means and also what the words in our culture suggest. What does brother mean or be? What is our idea of the brother? Word Denotation Connotation Brother Male Sibling Friend Plot: Draw the most important events of the story here. 1. Exposition - Doodle is born into a family with a mother, dad and brother, 2. Rising Action – The narrator works to overcome Doodle's limitations. 3. Climax - Last journey home from the Old Woman Swamp. 4. Falling Action - Doodle dies. 5. Resolution – The narrator eventually becomes the protector of Doodle. Setting: Provide the right information for setting. Geographic Location: Old Woman Swamp and House Historical Year: 1908-1914 Physical Place: House - it's white shiny and there's a fence that goes around it. Physical Place, Area: Near Old Woman Swamp Atmosphere/Details: Trees, Flowers, Like Cycles World Events : World War II Enlargement of the Environment: The Narrator describes a place full of life: plants, flowers, insects, birds and warm, sunny weather. There are several passages in which he creates strong images. Find more and try to complete the following table with so many examples of the life he describes. Plants/Flower Insects & Small Animals Birds Weather Goat Leaf Locust Selaunter Scuritiss Hurricane Petunien Beds Rain Frog Scarlet Ibis Heat Ironweeds Fiddler Crab Peacocks Bleeding Trees Screaming Owl Point of View: In what perspective is this story told? First person How old is the narrator when he tells this story (generally) older than 12 tone: the tone is the emotional aspect of literature. The author creates a certain feeling directly in the first paragraph. After we read this paragraph in the class, complete this activity. What is the you get from the first paragraph? Death Enter five examples (phrases directly from the first paragraph) that amplify the tone. Place quotation marks around each expression to indicate that you have taken them out of the text. 1. Summer was dead 2. The last cemetery flowers began to bloom 3. the wind whispers the names of our dead 4. Iron herb grew rank 5th with rotting brown magnolia leaves dyed Pictures: Images are images created by the author to define the setting, reveal character, amplify the theme, amplify the tone or for many other reasons. Images can be visual (view), auditory (listen), olfactory (smell), gustatory (taste), tactile (touch) and even kinesthetic (movement). Death Pictures: Find as many examples of death images in the story as you can. Specify the page number after the example. Also, use quotation marks to show that you have taken the example from the story. Example Page Number, Column So a name sounds only on a tombstone good Dad let Mr. Heath build a mahogany coffin for him doodle to touch his own coffin Doodle bears the dead Ibis character: There really are only two characters in this story – the narrator whose name we never know, and his brother Doodle (William Armstrong). Answer the following questions about the character. Give reasons or prove your answer with examples from history. Place a page reference in parentheses. How old was the narrator when Doodle was born? Six years old. What's wrong with Doodle? He was born with a birth defect and now has developmental problems. Describe Doodle's appearance as a baby. He had a big head and a small red body. How does the narrator react to his new brother? His brother is not something he really wants because he wants him to play with him. What kind of brother does the narrator want? Someone he can play with. Record Doodle's reaction to Old Woman Swamp for the first time. What does his reaction say about him? He cries and is overwhelmed because he finds it so beautiful. He wasn't out much. How long does it take to teach Doodle how to walk? What does this show about every brother? One year. It shows that they have great will and determination and never give up. Why does the narrator cry when everyone congratulates him for taught Doodle how to walk? He was ashamed because he taught Doodle for selfish reasons, for example, he didn't like having a brother who couldn't walk. The narrator says that he is sometimes cruel to his brother: give two examples to show that this is true. The older brother had Doodle touch his coffin. The older brother is considering choking Doodle to death. is the subject of most lies and what tells us about what is important for Doo He always had something special that he could do that he could never do himself. that the says doodle is really good at telling lies. What are these lies? (173) People had wings and could fly wherever they wanted. Another was where a guy named Peter had a peacock with a ten-foot tail. He was also something of a superhero. What is the subject of most lies and what does this tell us about what is important for Doodle? The lies were always imaginative and imaginative. There was always something special that he could never do himself. How does Doodle imagine his perfect future? (173) His family is with him. A developing (or dynamic) character is one that changes at the end of the story. He is one who learns something important, that changes him, makes him more mature, or gives him insight into himself or others. Is the narrator an evolving/dynamic character? You also need to say how you think he has changed or what he has learned. Support your answer with evidence from history. I think the narrator is a dynamic character because of the changes he's going through. How he is sad and thinks about protecting his brother's body from the rain at the end of the story. The narrator realized that Doodle was dead when he did so, but was upset by everything he did wrong to his brother. Similes/metaphors: Simile/metaphor literal term collapsing back on the bed like an old worn doll In May and June there was no rain and the harvests withered I let him swim until it turned blue. Like a cardinal in the lace toothbrush tree I gave him swimming lessons or showed him how to row a boat where the white marquissette curtains were jammed in the afternoon sea breeze Promise hung over us as the leaves school was just a few weeks away, we climbed into the cool green of the Old Woman Swamp used some great parables and metaphors that help the reader see exactly what he describes. Find three of them and note them in the table below. Show what is being compared—both the literal term (the thing being compared) and the figurative term (the one that is compared to). After recording the parable or metaphor, insert the page number into (. Symbols: A symbol is a thing or idea that stands for something else. Authors use symbols to improve the subject or to give readers a better understanding of a key idea in history. The main symbol is the scarlet ibis itself. The author implies that the bird is like a doodle, and at the end of the story the narrator himself tells us that his brother looks like the sad, lifeless bird. To prepare us for this symbol, the author paints his story red. Skip History and find so many things, pictures, ideas that are red, and record them here. Follow the example you have been given. Use quotation marks to indicate that you have taken this information directly from the text. Example Page Number Paragraph Bleeding Tree Qual Coffin Scarlet Feathers Feathers Floral Red Face Red Nightshade Brush Shirt Stained a Brilliant Red Vermillion Neck Scarlet Ibis What Emotions Is The Color Red In General Connected? Anger What things in normal life are red? Most apples, Holly berries, cardinals and clay How would you use the color red in an advertising campaign? To get people's attention. What does it look like? A miniature flamingo look the same - long beak red thin legs. How does Doodle react to the scarlet Ibis and his death? What does that say about him? He identified with this bird a little. Describe how Doodle seems like the scarlet ibis at the end of the story (physically; how it looks). He was covered with blood that made him red like the bird, as he stretched out like the bird, and his legs appeared as frail as the bird. Topic: A topic is an idea or truth that the author reveals to the reader in a story. This idea or truth leads us to understand ourselves as people connected to all other people in the world, across all spaces, cultures, and all times. The topic is the most important thing for us to learn about others, but above all about ourselves. Topics often refer to life, death, love, friendship, family, courage, etc. Stories may not always present people in their best light, but when we read their stories, we can understand a better way for all people to live and behave towards each other. To find a set of themes for this story, think of the important idea or truth we can learn from the narrator's struggle to get a brother he could be proud of and the price he paid for that fight. What did the narrator want? A normal brother who could play with him. What did Doodle want? He wanted to have his family together all the time and do justice to what his brother wanted from him. How did Doodle die? He died trying to catch up with his brother. Why did Doodle die? Of exhaustion, and he was weak and sick. How was Doodle like the scarlet Ibis (not what he looked like, but in other ways)? Remember what happens to these birds in captivity. Remember also that this bird was far away from his house. he didn't fit in and was very weak Doodle was not like other kids. Doodle was unable to do the physical activities that most children could do because of his illness. Like the scarlet ibis, Doodle had special features that were unique, but sometimes being different doesn't make a child into it. How should the narrator have dealt with his brother? He should have accepted what his brother was like. Think of two different ways to give a theme idea for this story in addition to the first one that is done for you as an example. It can be about different ideas. Go. Their statement is a complete sentence that reveals a truth about human behavior. 1. Too much pride can lead us to treat those we love in a cruel way. 2. Accept others as they are. 3. Estimate the time you have with those you care about. Reader's Answer: Write a 100-word paragraph that tells your reaction to the following: Doodle's love for his brother, the narrator's treatment of his brother, Doodle's courage, or his own idea. Support your ideas with examples from history. The narrator's treatment of his brother showed that he did what he did for his own selfish and personal gain. He let Doodle go because he was ashamed to have a brother who couldn't walk. He also planned to kill him by choking him with a pillow just because Doodle wasn't the brother he wanted. He pushed Doodle so far that he couldn't handle it and eventually killed his weak, fragile body. Later in the story, everything changed because the older brother realized how he had mistreated his brother and what he had done wrong. He regretted the way he treated Doodle, and he finally began to have respect for his younger brother. 8 Scarlet Ibis Web Folio Folio
