The Timemap of World History is an ideal tool to support the teaching of world history at the Advanced Placement level. Period 1: 10000 BC to 600 BC Period 2: 600 BC up to 600 CE period 3: 600 CE to 1450 CE Period 4: 1450 CE to 1750 CE Period 5: 1750 CE to 1900 CE Period 6: 1900 CE to present advantages for AP students when using the time map of world history. The TimeMap of world history is structured to provide a combination of maps at different geographic levels – world, large region, country – all within a single frame of data. This has great benefits for AP World History students. It gives them a stronger sense of the chronology of world history than (we really believe) any other resource can do. The world and regional maps allow students to clearly see the connections between regions and civilizations, whether through migration, trade, exploration, missionary activity or conquest. The context in which the various civilizations rise and drop, and the contributions that everyone makes to the current global history, becomes clear. All five AP World History topics are well covered. Patterns of causality, continuity and change can be studied very effectively. Students can begin to think more prolific about important turning points in world history and about various periodization schemes. Comparisons and contrasts between different regions at different times are easy to explore. Return to the Education home page with WorldMap WARP to upload and correct scanned maps for use in WorldMap. Maps that have been corrected with this tool can be inserted into WorldMap by following the instructions in section 4.5 in WorldMap Help.
