Timemap of World History is the perfect tool to support the teaching of world history at the Advanced Placement level. Period 1: 10000 BC to 600 BC Period 2: 600 BC to 600 AD Period 3: 600 AD to 1450 AD Period 4: 1450 AD AD to 1750 AD Period 5: 1750 AD to 1900 AD Period 6: 1900 AD to present benefits for AP students in the use of Timemap World History TimeMap world history is structured to offer a combination of maps at different geographical levels - the world, the big region, the country - all within a single date framework. This has great benefits for AP World History students. It gives them a stronger sense of chronology of world history than (we sincerely believe) any other resource can do. Maps of the world and the region allow students to clearly see the links between regions and civilizations, whether it be migration, trade, exploration, missionary activity or conquest. The context in which different civilizations rise and fall is becoming clear, and the contribution of each of them to the ongoing global history. All five topics in AP world history are well covered. Patterns of cause-and-effect volumes, continuity and changes can be studied very effectively. Students can begin to think more fruitfully about the key turning points in world history, as well as about the various schemes of periodization. Comparisons and contrasts between different regions can be easily explored at different times.
