Alexander's cousin Claude, along with his gang, is unfortunately continuing to honour them with their presence - which is certainly not for good reasons. Raven is doing everything she can to protect her family from these half-vampires, even to be treated like the old trik of garlic necklaces placed around the house. But Raven knows the only way Claude will leave and stop harassing her is if they finally find the vials to help them become real vampires. So now Raven and Alexander must come up with a plan to find the vialions before Claude can get to them. Alexander then remembers a map when he was little, which could be the key to finding the viales; If only he could remember where the map is now. Not being able to work together during the day, Raven and Alexander must work quickly with the limited time they have, to prevent Claude and his gang from becoming the full vampires they longed to be.
