Paypal money on hold grailed Here's what they sent me messages: PayPal keep my funds until I can confirm a tracking number, and then hold on to my product until PayPal say the funds have been received? Or should I be worried about this? Thanks! All you have to do is open PayPal to check and see if the transaction says ok to send. If that doesn't say that, then the buyer tries to steal your item. Low feedback sellers are targeted by thieves. That said, PayPal will keep payments for 21 days, or until the tracking shows the item as delivered. ALL new sellers have that payment hold on their account. The only way to protect yourself is to PayPal and see what the transaction says. PayPal do not hold money until the trace is downloaded ... it will turn out as pending IF the payment is made, but it will also tell yiou it is OK to send. Newer people find this string so can be clear: PayPal will not hold funds until the item is shipped. This is a scam. Not a PayPal scam, but of another mouth breath trying to get you to send them your stuff and not pay you for it. are you buying or selling? If you are the buyer, and the seller is new, their funds are on hold until 3-5 days after tracking shows item delivered. this is normal for new sellers. I am disgusted at the way that I was recently treated by both companies especially PayPal. Last week I sold two items. Both buyers equipped with tracking. Being a member since 2005, I've never had an event of selling or buying. This week I sold another item and found a hold on the funds. The reason was because my sales pattern changed even though my PayPal transactions for other things were constant this block came from no one where Ebay said they needed a tracking verification that was not called for. In addition, the buyer who was a member since 2004 with a great record was also an international buyer and postage was pricey. Ebay and PayPal say in there relationship you can use the money sent by the buyer to post an item. HOW IS THIS POSSIBLE ??? When I spoke to PayPal they said they were holding payment because of suspicious activity by the buyer.. Right. So eBay asks me to send and pay mate tells me they have to verify tracking. I canceled the sale and refunded the buyer. I'm going somewhere else. Thanks, but no thanks. If they want to keep payments then they will pay interest. The fact that both companies expressed different reasoning gave me no comfort. Unless they have a clear warning about a potential scam, they have no right to keep money that is not theirs unless interest is paid. Very very disappointing. in fact I am a buyer myself and PayPal puts the money on a day hold unless the seller (sender) goes to the transaction ... goes to Edit tracking information and confirms a completed transaction or received item, and then the funds will be released immediately. I've had this happen so many times I can't tell you and some people can't figure out how to confirm the transaction so I've had to actually wait the whole 21 days a few times, but if you're ever unsure of something like this you can always ask for a screenshot and if they can't give one or suddenly have many different excuses ... Yes... you get tricked ... stop communication and start the process of PayPal getting your money back. But as I said this has happened to me countless times.. it is a precautionary measure for buyers and sellers.. an annoying one ... but still ... and I'm brutally honest. to an error at times. I have been selling on eBay and use PayPal since 2014. I've never had funds held until a tracking number is provided until today. The buyer swears it's not him, but I think it is. I cancelled the sale and refunded the money even though it was not available to me before I shipped the item. He lives in Canada and no way was I going to wait 2 weeks or more to get my money just to lose both the item and the money. I know this is an old post, but a question to you center ground where would I go see to see if it says ok to send. I looked at my PayPal and do not see and from his side all I see is the request that I did, but I got an email saying that it was pending a tracking number for the funds to be released. He also offered to pay 100.00 over asking for shipping. If there's nothing on his part, I can hit the interrupt. I feel like this has scam written all over it. You're dealing with a scammer.
