Update for calendar year 2020/2021 Inclement Weather Remote Learning Day for Tuesday 1. Update for calendar year 2019-2020 Closed due to winter weather on: Tuesday, November 12 Monday December 2 Wednesday December 11 Friday, December 13 Tuesday January 7 January 21 Friday, February 7 Thursday 20 February 20 February 21 Thursday 21 February 27 February 27 Friday 28 February 6 Scheduled to be closed for two weeks at the behest of the governor (all K-12 schools nationwide) due to coronavirus concerns. Monday March 16 to Monday March 30. On Friday, April 24, the governor extended the order for schools to be closed for the rest of the calendar year. UPDATE - Watauga County School will end the school year on Friday, May 29. Watauga County Schools missed 13 days due to winter weather and one day for tropical storm Florence for the 2018-19 school year. How's it going in years past? Since 1975 there has been one more year with only 14 missed days: 2015-16. 10 or more days were omitted 35 of the 44 years records were kept for the school system. At the back of years 30 or more days were omitted: 33 days in 1976-77 and the most on record 39 days for the calendar year 1977-78. 2009-10 has the third most missed days with 26 followed by 23 in 1995-96, and 22 in both 1986-87 & 2010-11. The year with the fewest missed days belongs to 1990-91 with only 4. Two days in 1994 were omitted in August, and that means the only time the school was closed this month. From 1975-76 to 2017-18 the monthly breakdown shows that September has a total of 7 days missed, October 5, November 22, December 88, January 236, February 198, March 74, April 7, May 1 In all 638 days in total were omitted in 44 years 1975-76 through 2018-19. NOTE: Not all missed days can be caused by winter weather, as data from Watauga schools are marked as School closures for inclement weather Page 1 of 4212345...102030...» Last » December 21, 2020 It was a Santa parade! Or a parade for Santa? Or did the parade that Santa came to come to come to? It was an eager group of kids hanging from car doors and windows as their parents in pyjama and teachers in costume smiled and Santa handed out Christmas treats. Instead of the traditional pre-Christmas blown at Banner Elk Elementary School, with PJs for breakfast and a holiday movie, COVID-19 prompted Mr. Clause to do an o-face and come to school early - a fantastic experience, according to the old man himself. December 7, 2020 Mabel and Parkway school music teacher Erin Ellington has been named Northwest North Carolina Regional Teacher of the Year. The prize is awarded annually to teachers from the in eight regions across North Carolina who were named teacher of the year by their school district. Ellington was named Watauga County School Teacher of the Year in March. With her latest award, Ellington will now be eligible to be named Teacher of the Year for the state of North Carolina. Watauga County Schools Superintendent Scott Elliott said he was honored to have Ellington represent watauga county schools for regional awards. Ms. Ellington's many years of experience in several school communities gives her a unique perspective on the challenges and many strengths of our wonderful public education system, Elliott said. / Read more... November 23, 2020 With winter fast approaching, Watauga County schools would like to remind families how the district makes and communicates decisions about school operations during inclement weather. This year, thanks to additional equipment and student laptops purchased in response to the COVID-19 pandemic, the district plans to use remote learning on certain school days that would otherwise be canceled and later made because of inclement weather. Superintendent Scott Elliott said the districts' period of remote learning in the fall prepared WCS with the equipment and experience they need to run the school remotely on snowy days this winter. For the first time, our long-distance learning experience gave us the opportunity to keep school at a distance on days when winter weather would usually force us to close our doors, Elliott said. / Read more... 3 November 2020 For public school staff, the COVID-19 pandemic has introduced a significant change in all roles in education. From the people responsible for providing meals to students to those who drive buses or teach in classrooms, this year all the work associated with our public schools has been modified, restructured and, in many ways, complicated. While anyone who enters the school building in the morning has a unique and important role in ongoing efforts to mitigate the spread of the virus, perhaps no single task has been more affected than the school nurse. In schools throughout Watauga County, nurses are now located at the center of the District's COVID-19 response and prevention efforts. / Read more... October 21, 2020 Students in grades four through high school seniors are back in class this week as part of a 3x2 Watauga County Flex plan to return students to something a little closer to a normal school week. Initially, students in kindergarten until the third grade began to return to school during the first full week of October. Other stamps are back in the school buildings. We are so happy to welcome the rest of our students back to in-person learning. There's definitely a lot of energy and positivity between our staff and teachers, said Garrett Price, director of communications for the Watauga County School. October 16, 2020 This week, the USDA further expanded funding and flexibility that will allow Watauga County schools to serve free meals to all children in the county regardless of income or enrollment for the rest of the 2020-21 school year. Food distribution will continue to operate in the same way that the district served meals in the summer, but every school in the county will be open as a food distribution site. Each school in Watauga will serve lunch and packed breakfast for the next day from 13:30.m Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 11:30 a.m. to 13:00.m on Wednesday. Wednesday's pickup will be curbed only at Watauga High School. No catering service will be available on November 3. It was definitely nice to see the students in schools this morning! Our schools handled our screening and check-in procedures very well. It's been good to see the planning we've done in the last few weeks put into practice, said Garrett Price, director of communications for watauga county schools. In-person teaching is most important to our youngest students, so we were very happy that they managed to get back to school safely on our 2x3 Flex Plan. The 2x3 Flex plan will see half of students in classes on Monday and Tuesday, the other half will be at school on Thursday and Friday. Wednesdays will be used as remote teaching time for all students and will also be used as a day when each school goes through a deep cleaning process. September 22, 2020 On Monday, September 21, the Watauga County Board of Education voted unanimously to implement a plan that will re-personally teach at watauga county schools in K-3 degrees. Beginning October 5, kindergarten through third-grade students will be able to return to school in person on the 2x3 Plan B Flex Plan. According to the plan, half of the students will go to school on Mondays and Tuesdays, while the other half will attend on Thursdays and Fridays. Wednesday would be reserved as a day of distant learning for all students. In total, students would have three days of remote learning at home each week. The plan that the board adopted on Monday night will re-in-person learning for students in degrees 4-12 to October 19 under the same 2x3 Plan B Flex Plan and Social Distancing Measures. / Read more... A September 21, 2020 special Watauga County Board of Education meeting is scheduled at 5 p.m tonight at the Margaret E. Gragg Education Center to discuss the possible reopening of school buildings for elementary school students in Watauga County. The board will vote tonight to determine whether Watauga County will allow elementary school children to return to class. Gov. Roy Cooper announced that students in K-5 degrees could return to schools for daily, in-person classroom lessons starting on October 5. We are able to open up this option because most North Carolinians have doubled down on our safety and prevention measures and stabilized our numbers. The science of lower viral spread among younger children also supports this decision, Governor Cooper said during a press briefing on Thursday. From Nathan Ham / Read more ... August 26, 2020 Appalachian State University reports 202 students, staff and contractors have tested positive for COVID-19 as of March 27. Despite rumors of moving all classes to online teaching, the campus is still continuing with in-person classes from Wednesday. At that time, there were 41 active cases on campus. Decision to welcome students The campus was guided not only by our a year to give students the Appalachian Experience they hoped for, but also by recommendations from public health officials and the UNC system, said Appalachian State Chancellor, Dr. Sheri Everts. Across the country, the operations of colleges and universities face daily uncertainty. These first days are crucial to ensuring we are able to balance the App State curve. We all need to keep a close eye on 3Ws and limit social gatherings to a small number. UNC-Chapel Hill decided to stop teaching in the classroom and return to an exclusively online educational format, becoming the first school in the UNC system to return only to online classes. The decision to adapt the operations applies to UNC-Chapel Hill only because no other UNC System institution reported information at this time that would have led to similar changes, unc system president Peter Hans said in a statement. All students must continue to wear face coverings and practice social distancing as part of their personal responsibilities, especially in off-campus settings. For the success of this semester and for the protection of public health, it is necessary to take personal responsibility and promote community standards. Every campus is different, and I expect things to evolve differently. At all times, we will be based on reliable public health data and prevailing local health conditions. I will continue to be in close contact with our Chancellors and fully support their efforts to fulfill our core educational mission in a safe learning environment. From Nathan Ham / Read more ... August 17, 2020 Monday marked a back-to-school moment that many students and parents will never forget. Watauga County schools returned with virtual classes to open the fall semester, while appalachian state began its fall semester with a mix of in-person and online classes. Freshmen and returning students crowded the roadway last week to move into campus dormitories and off-campus rental properties in preparation for the school year. App State students and employees must wear face coverings in classrooms and in all other places where social distancing is not possible. For the public school system, Watauga originally planned on a 2x3 Flex Plan where students would go to class for in-person instruction two days a week and online tuition three days a week. However, as COVID-19 positive infections continue to increase in the county, the school board has returned to completely online teaching. As teachers and staff prepare for the start of the school year August 17, anyone who enters the school facility - employee or visitor - must undergo a temperature screening at the door. They are also required to answer a number of questions assessing their potential exposure to COVID-19. All staff inside school buildings are required to wear masks at all times, except when teachers are alone in their classrooms performing virtual lessons. In addition to the screening measures involved at school entrances, the district has also implemented a number of improved cleaning and safety procedures around the school facilities as a whole. / Read more... August 14, 2020 As part of recovery classes and students returning to campus for the fall semester, Appalachian State University will require students, faculty, and staff to administer daily health checks on their mobile devices or computers to obtain a passport to be on campus for that day. According to the university, each person fills out a simple questionnaire about how they feel and if they have any COVID-19 symptoms. If the individual is not sick, he will receive a passport for this date, which will last until midnight this day to have access to places on campus. In the event that a person responds that they may have COVID-19 symptoms, they will not be approved for access to the premises and will be asked to stay at home or seek medical advice. Students may be asked to show their passports to their instructor to get into the classroom, and all faculty members and staff may be asked to show their passports to their superiors upon entering the classroom, workplace, or campus. The passport can be viewed on a smartphone or tablet or printed so that it is always transported for the day. From Nathan Ham / Read more ... August 7, 2020 A new way of school life and a mix of online and in-person classes will await students as they begin moving on Monday, August 10 in preparation for the fall semester starting on August 17. Other public universities in the UNC system begin class on Monday, however, the Appalachian state semester will begin the following week to make sure the latest student housing projects are completed in time. Freshmen and transfer students will move on August 10-13, while returning students will move on August 14-16. I am proud of how we have adapted to the challenges of this global pandemic, which has challenged every aspect of everyday university life - from how we live and learn to how we engage and educate ourselves, said the state's app chancellor Dr. Sheri Everts in a weekly email update to faculty, students and staff. With the first day of school now less than a month away, Watauga County schools continue to prepare for Plan B's reopening of school buildings at 50-percent capacity. So far they have received a good amount of positive feedback. We received a lot of support from parents and community members as we planned our reopening. It's a community-wide effort to solve a hugely complex problem that doesn't have the best-size-fits-all answer, said Garrett Price, director of communications for watauga county schools. We received very helpful feedback from parents and staff through a series of surveys regarding the reopening of plans that were instrumental as we worked out watauga-specific details. The 2x3 Flex Plan plan will have half of the students in each school attend class on Monday and Tuesday and the other half attend on Thursday and Friday. Wednesday will be a day of remote learning for all students, and when students are not in the school building, they will participate in remote learning for the next two days a week. July 22, 2020 When Rising Watauga High School Senior Logan Sturgill Set Off To find the Eagle Scout project, it was immediately drawn toward work that could have a positive impact on watauga county schools – the system where they attended because of pre-kindergarten at Mabel School. Sturgill contacted WCS Superintendent Scott Elliott to express interest in doing the project, which would also benefit one of the schools in some way. Elliott sought ideas from the school system's principals and then linked Sturgill to Bethel Principal Brian Bettis. Bethel School is home to a very large but long-neglected school bell that was placed at Bethel School when the building was first built by the Works Progress Administration in the 1930s. Over the years since its original construction, the redevelopment at Bethel School has seen the bell removed from its perch on top of the building and stored in the school courtyard, where it has been largely unprotected from the elements for years. / Read more... July 17, 2020 Schools in Watauga County and all other parts of the state are finalizing their plans for how they will proceed to reopen once schools begin next month. The first day for Watauga County students will be Monday, August 17, and the current plan is to reopen the school with a 2x3 plan. The 2x3 Plan is designed to allow half of students to go to school on Mondays and Tuesdays, while the other half will attend on Thursday and Friday. Wednesday will be a day of distant learning for all students. In total, all students have three days of remote learning at home each week, said Garrett Price, communications director for the Watauga County School. Remote learning options will be available to all students, where parents will have the choice of sending their students to school part-time or keeping them at home for full-time remote learning, according to Watauga County Superintendent Dr. Scott Elliott. On July 13, 2020, universities and universities in the UNC system appear to be waiting alongside K-12 public schools for a final decision on how to handle a return to class for the 2020 fall semester. On Friday, Appalachian State University Chancellor Dr. Sheri Everts released an update on the current academic vision of how the App State opens with COVID-19 cases continuing to accumulate across the country. We are considering all possible scenarios and confirming as many specifics as possible while awaiting further guidance from Governor Cooper and the UNC system. Governor Cooper's announcement next week of the next steps in his gradual reopening of the plan will be an important indicator for us. I appreciate the collegiate of our faculty and staff, and the patience of our students as we all work on the best solution for continuing teaching in the fall. July 1, 2020 Parents, students and teachers were expecting an announcement to come Wednesday afternoon about how North Carolina public schools would plan to reopen in August. That announcement was postponed, according to a press release provided by Governor Cooper's office. The news was first reported Tuesday night by WRAL TV. No further information has yet been provided on when the notification could be made in the future. The press conference at 15:00.m. today from coronavirus taskforce will still be held as planned. In June, every school district in North Carolina was told to be prepared for three different scenarios for reopening schools in the fall. Plan A would include minimal social distancing and students returning to classes. Plan B would include social distance measures with schools working at 50 percent capacity. Plan C would make schools providing all education through online learning and school buildings remain closed. From Nathan Ham / Read more ...
