It will all be announced on February 2nd. Mercedes has been making fun of the new A-Class for a long time, but the wait is almost over. The car luxury hatchback has finally announced that next week in Amsterdam will make the world's first to stream online on February 2. To whet our appetite by then, Mercedes has published a new A-Class reveal teaser, and it is clear that it will look much more aggressively than its best-selling predecessor. Its front fascia immediately reminds you of the latest CLS with triangular headlights and wide front grille. Like CLS, different L-shaped daytime headlights are included in the headlights. Mercedes says the new A-Class maintains its young and dynamic character, but it has also grown more than ever and is comfortable. It completely redefines modern luxury in the compact classroom and revolutionizes interior design. Speaking of interiors, Mercedes has already shown its rich cabin closed in the new A-Class, and is an understatement to say it is a significant upgrade. Quite simply, we have hands down the best infotainment system we have ever enjoyed using thanks to the new Mercedes-Benz User Experience. 10 Automotive Highlights 2020 Cars Thought To Be Rarer Mercedes-Benz operated using a high-resolution WideScreen Cockpit with touch screen control and a navigation screen with augmented reality technology. MBUX has an advanced AI system that learns driving habits and personalizes the cabin by adapting seats accordingly, sound and lighting. Intelligent voice control responds to your commands more realistically than ever with natural speech recognition. While the next generation Mercedes A-Class will be the first as a hatchback in Europe, rumors suggest that a wide range of engine options will be sold in America for the first time in the model's history as a compact sedan. So many seven petrol and four diesel units will be sold depending on the market, including making a turbocharged 2.0-liter four-cylinder 400 range topping AMG A45 horsepower. After the world first, the new Mercedes A-Class will make its public debut at the Geneva Motor Show in March. Your investor's Work Daily Pension savings are $1 million. You want $100,000 of your annual retirement income, including Social Security. Is it possible without tons of risk? People are entering a new age. (Bloomberg) -- Tencent Holdings Ltd. fell after a worldwide surge in stocks put its market value at the height of $1 trillion for the first time. The Chinese Internet giant lost as much as 6.7% in Hong Kong on Tuesday, its market capitalization down to less than $900 billion. Investors made a profit after Monday's 11% rise, Tencent's biggest wave in almost a decade. Comments by China's central bank adviser to local media, which said excessive liquidity and excessively low borrowing costs were creating bubbles in the stock market, drew attention. Read more: Chinese Asset-Bubble Hong Kong Stock Frenzy Threat threatens to derail tencent stock rally, backed by a relentless flow of mainlands to China's hopes of tightening financing conditions. Onshore funds bought a record amount of Hong Kong shares this month, with nearly a quarter targeting this tencent. As more than a billion people use its WeChat social media platform, Tencent is everywhere for Chinese investors who have no access to Hong Kong shares in rival Alibaba Group Holding Ltd through stock links. Tencent was the latest mega-cap company to benefit from investor enthusiasm for the technology sector, and the milestone was a sign of enthusiasm sweeping stocks globally. Before Tuesday, shares added another $251 billion in January only - the deficit is mostly the most big-than-the-world warnings of easy monetary policy global stocks, especially in the United States, led by investors looking for cheaper alternatives to gains managed by Nasdaq.As, which is fueling balloons that they have staked into Hong Kong stocks. This Hang Seng China Enterprises Index has helped make it the best performer among the world's largest benchmarks over the last month. While Tencent is long an investor favorite in Asia, returning more than 100,000% since the 2004 initial public offering as of Monday, there are other risks to rallying. In 2018, a government crackdown on China's online gaming industry squeezed Tencent's most profitable business, which accounted for about 40% of its revenue at the time. Combined with the slowing Chinese economy and weakening yuan, a 22% drop in Beijing's nine-month stop shares over approvals for the new games contributed. A campaign against monopolist practices since late last year has targeted many sectors where Tencent and its rival Alibaba operate, including the online payments industry. But also increased regulatory risk left Alibaba's shares about 18% lower than its October peak. Tencent closed with seven new records in the last eight sessions. One factor contributes to the deviation: Alibaba's Hong Kong stock does not include trading links with mainland stock exchanges. Tencent will be the second Chinese firm to join the trillion-dollar club after PetroChina Co., a value sinker, in late 2007. U.S. tech giants Apple Inc, Amazon.com Inc, Alphabet Inc and Microsoft Corp are also worth more than $1 trillion each, with Saudi Arabian Oil Co.Tencent founded in 1998 by four university classmates and a friend in Shenzhen who designed the Chinese version of the instant messaging service ICQ. Led by Pony Ma Huateng - Chinese for ma at - the company's chat software became the primary communication tool for a younger Chinese generation. Still, Tencent has ripple all but the most bullish analysts' predictions. Monday's HK$766.50 stock market share price level was almost 10% consensus higher than the 12-month price target compiled by Bloomberg in the widest gap since 2014. GE's Trainwreck: One of the worst performing, high-profile U.S. stocks in five years was industrial giant General Electric Company (NYSE: GE). GE has been one of the blue chip stocks in the U.S. market for over a century and was one of the original Dow Jones Industrial Average components. But a difficult energy environment combined with some questionable accounting, mispned investments and poor balance sheet management has created a perfect storm for GE investors in recent years. At the beginning of 2016, GE shares traded around $30. They reached around $33 in mid-2016 and traded above $28 by mid-2017. Then he fell to the bottom. From this point on, the stock fell nonstop for the next 18 months, profit evaporated, growth stalled and the company cut its dividend and reported major write-downs on questionable past accounting practices. The stock declined to $6.66 in late 2018 on optimism that the worst of GE's struggles were in the past. (Bloomberg) -- Serial blank check deal maker Chamath Palihapitiya has doubled on SPACs, joining at least half a dozen deals that are now not even included in their own blank check vehicles. On Monday, former Facebook Inc. executive and venture capitalist Palihapitiya invested in two companies that became publicly available through smart locker Latch Inc., a private-purpose acquisition company through equity raised to support deals, and solar lender Financial Sunlight LLC. Six blank checks he helped upgrade are on top of his vehicle. Mandal and Sunlight were just two of the five companies that announced monday that they would be made public through an SPAC. The merger rush follows a record year for blank check companies showing no signs of stopping. More than $15 billion in fresh capital has already lifted this month. SPACs tweeted on January 21st that it is leading a private investment in public capital - or PIPE - for an undisclosed deal that, according to data compiled by Bloomberg, is not immediately available for two investment amounts of Monday deals in Palihapitiya, according to data compiled by Bloomberg. SPAC, backed by New York-based real estate firm Tishman Speyer, has raised an additional $190,000,000 from investors including Palihapitiya, BlackRock Inc and D1 Capital Partners.Sunlight has agreed to go public through a merger with a vehicle backed by Apollo Global Management Inc. SPAC has collected $250 million from Palihapitiya, Coatue and BlackRock. SPACs announce pipe investments to finance time and make a deal to support its closure. Shares of most of the blank check companies that announced a deal on Monday rose. TS Innovation Acquisitions Corp. jumped as much as 90% after the mandal transaction was revealed and traded up to 43% in New York at 2:01 p.m.m. Spartan Acquisition Corp II, which merges with Sunlight, jumped up 45%, climbed as much as 36% on its deal with advertising-technology firm Taboola Inc Foley Trasimene Acquisition Corp It is trading above $10 per share where SPAC is open to the public, although it absorbed a slight drop in afternoon trading at 13.5% after it was announced that it had signed a $7.3 billion deal with Alight Solutions.Landcadia Holdings III Inc., which signed a deal with Hillman Group Inc. Investors already had a chance to trade Hillman and Alight deals after earlier reports about transactions. Palihapitiya is not the only investor to show on more than one deal, but he is one of the few who has frequently made public announcements. These transactions often attract institutional investors such as Blackrock and Fidelity Management & Research Co. It is possible for other private investors to invest in SPAC mergers without announced their participation. Palihapitiya operates in many sectors with these investments. Other SPAC deals he has contributed over the past few months include 3D printing company Desktop Metal Inc, rare earth company MP Materials Corp, electric bus maker Proterra Inc and car insurance company Metromile Inc, which have shown testimony. Here's what you need to know. A number of Wall Street investment banks have listed the best Chinese technology stocks for the coming year. Student loan borrowers bet that they will be able to use profits to pay off their debts, riding the wave of Reddit-fueled GameStop (GME). The biotech industry started the year with a bang. The industry benchmark, the iShares NASDAQ Biotech ETF (IBB), is up ~11% so far in January - much better than the S&P 500's 3% return. Jim Birchenough, a 5-star analyst who covers the industry for Wells Fargo, is optimistic about what he saw. In general, we see an additional advantage of roughly 20% to 30% for the industry over historical metrics, and we argue that accelerating innovation flour and de-risking the pipeline should ultimately support higher investment returns, Birchenough said. Said. For any investor interested in pharmaceutical stocks in such an environment, you will be manna from heaven; An improved political climate will only add some icing on this cake. A divided House and Supporting ongoing legislative inertia will be best received in terms of maintaining a positive status quo for the growth of biotechnology, the value prod for emerging biotech therapeutics must be won under any management and House/Senate mix. he added. With that in mind, we wanted to check out some of Wells Fargo's recent elections in biotechnology. After running tickers through TipRanks' database, we learned that the two recently scored points from the rest of the Street to earn a strong buy consensus rating. Karuna Therapeutics (KRTX) We will start with Karuna Therapeutics, a private pharmaceutical company whose focus is on mental health. In particular, Karuna is working on the development of new drugs for the treatment of schizophrenia and dementia-related psychosis (DRPs). With a potential patient base of more than 2.7 million, this is a huge market. And the condition of available treatment options is widely considered less satisfactory. Drug side effects are severe, while the treatment effects are less than desired. This leaves an opening for a company that can put new, more effective, treatment in the market. Karuna is currently the leading drug candidate for the treatment of acute psychosis in adults with schizophrenia. KarXT has shown a differentiated security profile and effectiveness in Phase 2 data. In addition, healthy older volunteers for DRP remain on track for Phase 1b data 2Q21. This solid pipeline, with a new drug in multiple studies to treat various aspects of a serious disorder, has piqued interest in Wells Fargo. Covering KRTX for the firm, writes analyst Jacob Hughes, Karuna Therapeutics is our best idea in 2021. While KRTX shares were an impressive study ... we see a very attractive setup for the stock in the next few years and several key catalysts in 2021 to take the shares higher ... We think the pipeline is de-risked and we love the risk/reward at these levels as the value of KarXT has been proven. To that end, Hughes rates the stock is overweight (i.e. Buy) and its $163 price target for the coming year – 59% means a reversing. (Click here to watch Hughes' record) It's not often analysts agree on stocks. KRTX's Strong Buy consensus rating is based unanimously on 6 Buys. The stock's average price target of $138.80 is $102.80, which is 35% inverse to its current share price. (See TipRanks krx stock analysis) Zymeworks, Inc(ZYME) is a clinical stage biotechnology based in Vancouver that included researching new drugs for the treatment of Zymeworks cancer, autoimmune disorders and inflammatory diseases. Company focused on biotherapeutics, drugs designed for target diseases. The company's lead candidate is zanidatamab, bile duct cancer, breast cancer and gastroesophageal adenocarcinoma infections. The drug Phase 1/2 is tested for these cancers. Zymeworks is the second clinical candidate, ZW49, a HER2 bispecific antibody in an early-stage trial as a solid tumor treatment, such as zanidatamab. The first data will be presented at an investor event on January 27th. Based on Zymeworks' latest study results, Jim Birchenough of Wells Fargo writes: [We] expect zanidatamab to differentiate from existing HER2 standards due to depth of response in both refractory and frontline patients, attracting an important partner to continue neoadjuvant and adjuvant breast cancer studies, and consistent responses to support further development of ZW49 going forward than potential increase. In line with its bullish stance, Birchenough rates mean ZYME is overweight (i.e. Buy) and the price target, at $71, pre-growth of one–47%. Growing concerns about Wall Street stock bubbles are sparking fears of a retreat highlighted by the wild ride for shares such as Gamestop Corp. The money supply, ultra-low or zero interest rates and the launch of the COVID-19 vaccine led to a rally to buy something, with world stocks last March a tailed $33 trillion from their lows it helped to add. Amateur investors chased by fluctuations in share prices of some loss-hurt firms, red-hot public markets and stocks Concern that the benchmark S&P 500 has gained more than 70% since March. Tremendous Changes are happening in Legal Technology Some companies support a single do-it-yourself and do-good approach. However, this is not the Sorrento Therapeutics (SRNE) way. Being laser-oriented to just one goal can have its advantages, while having a broader-based task, if done well, can be just as effective. This is the view of Alliance Global analyst James Molloy when assessing Sorrento's prospects. The analyst, SRNE, is teaming one of the most active and promising pipelines in the COVID field with a potentially transformative non-opioid pain pipeline and adding it to a deep oncology pipeline. Said, Most of SRNE's pipeline has significant catalysts over the next 1-4 quarters, with numerous late-stage clinical data readings and multiple potential Emergency Use Permits (EUA) initiations. What is on the Sorrento menu in the near term? The company has already opened a 15-minute nasal gland antigen test for COVI-STIX, SARS-CoV-2, an EUA in the U.S. and Mexico, and the test can be launched as early as 1H21. Accurate COVID tests are still needed in the U.S. and worldwide, and Molloy assay is waiting to win EUA approval and can quickly approach $500M on sale as soon as possible 2022. SRNE's 8-minute SARS-CoV-2 antibody test COVID-TRACK can quickly go on track with an EUA that will also be filed in the first half of the year. This could easily be another $500million+ near-term deal, Molloy said. In addition, the company's two neutralized antibody treatments against SARS-CoV-2, COVI-DROPS and COVI-AMG, can be launched in 2022. Each has the potential to bring in more than $500 million in sales, according to the analyst. Fast tracked by the FDA, Phase 3 data for Syatic Pain Candidate SP-102 should be available this year, while RTX for OsteoArtrit (OA) kick-off Phase 2 and Phase 3 studies of knee pain and inacious cancer pain, respectively, in 2021. Both are aiming for significant market opportunities. Last but not least Abivertinib, the company's oncology lead candidate, is the company's oncology lead candidate, indicated for non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC) and B-cell lymphomas, and currently with upper-line data on Phase 3 studies in China 1H21. To this end, based on the progress of the company's pipeline, Molloy is achieving significant gains in the future of SRNE. Analyst rates mean that the stock is a Buy and its $35 price target is a heedy 277% reversed. (Click here to watch Molloy's record) Overall, Sorrneto currently has few, but very positive analysts monitoring its progress. With Only Buy rating - 3, in total - the stock has a Strong Buy consensus rating. There are also a lot of well-reflected; At $28.67, the price target shows –209% gains over the next 12 months. A handful of heavy short stocks experienced highly volatile trading on Monday morning, leading some experts to speculate that the 2021 short squeeze trade may finally run out of steam. Short squeeze trading poster boy, video game retailer gameStop Corp (NYSE: GME), traded as high as $159.18 on Monday before falling back below $79. Meanwhile, Nikola Corporation (NASDAQ: NKL) initially jumped as high as $22.55 before trading back below $20.50. BlackBerry Ltd (NYSE: BB) initially jumped $20.83 before dropping back $17.30. Bed Bath & Beyond Inc. (NYSE: BBBY) jumped $47.73 but then declined to $31.0. Explaining the Action: Benzinga PreMarket Prep co-host Dennis Dick and Tim Quast, founder and CEO of ModernIR and Market Structure Edge, were discussed trading short squeeze monday morning show. There are people who argue with me that the fundamentals of GameStop have completely reversed and that price is justified. And I'm trying to say that this has nothing to do with company fundamentals in a move like GameStop. Said. Related Link: GameStop's Power Surge: Will WallStreetBets or Short Sellers On On Come Out? Citron Research editor Andrew Left has taken a short position and received a lot of heat from critics since setting a $20 price target for GameStop earlier this month. Quast said the challenges left and other small-time retail investors face in timing these big runs are that they cannot access the same real-time information that big market makers like Citadef Securities have. In addition, market makers do not have to play by the same rules. Quast, this is something that traders often don't understand. Said. There's a market-making exemption for the Citadels and the Two Sigmas and Morgan Stanleys and the Goldman Sachs of the world. They don't have to find short stock like you and me... Sec exemption was granted because market makers did not have to find shares. They can produce them. How can this stock be crazy? How is it possible that GameStop will increase by 817% to date... Just in the last 90 days? Quast said. Short Interest Vs. Short Volume: Quast said there are important reasons for these exceptions for normal trading for market makers responsible for maintaining liquidity in the stock market. But traders need to understand what's really going on. Citadel will know what the buy-sell balance is, and when it reaches the equilibrium point, Citadel will change short and we will see an average return for GameStop. And the only way to see it is to watch it in short volumes, not short interest. This will be up to date for three weeks and absolutely meaningless as an extraordinary measure of float or total shares, Quast said. Quast said these manufactured shares produced by market makers are responsible for the fact that stocks such as GameStop temporarily have short interest of just over 100%. Is this the end? Monday's wild trading action comes on the same day goldman Sachs issued a note on the potential bubble valuation of 39 stocks. Goldman Crispr Therapeutics AG (NASDAQ: CRSP), Snowflake Inc (NYSE: SNOW) and Plug Power Inc (NASDAQ: PLUG) were among the most valuable stocks on the market based on their 2022 enterprise value-to-sell ratios. At around 10 a.m. on Monday.m began reversing course, including most gameStop, of the heavily short stocks related to the recent congestion. On Twitter, Dick suggested that the short squeeze trade may have finally surrendered to the upper class. It's getting cold fast in the last five minutes. I think we're just thinking topped out,' she wrote. We just saw Peak Stupidity, and everyone's learning the hard way right now. Benzinga's Take: The GameStop has worked like an attraction to this point to run among retail traders, and most likely major losses have also forced plenty of retail short sellers to cover their positions. However, it can be extremely difficult to successfully schedule entry and exit points in extremely volatile short jams, even for professional traders.
