Investor's Business DailyAs trend uptrend continues, now is the time to build your watchlist and look for reserved ideas. Veeva Systems is the latest addition to the IBD Long-Term Leaders list. Every week Benzinga conducts a survey to gather sentiment about what traders are most excited, interested or thinking about how they manage and build their personal wallets. This week we posed the following question related to cruise line stocks: Over the next year, which cruise line stock will have the largest percentage of profit? * Carnival Corp. (NYSE: CCL) * Royal Caribbean Cruises Ltd (NYSE: RCL) * Norwegian Cruises Ltd (NYSE: RCL) * Norwegian Cruises have been completely closed for most of 2020 due to a pandemic and are likely to remain closed for at least a few months in 2021. The shares fell by 57.2% in 2020. Next, 33% of investors believe Royal Caribbean operates as a global cruise vacation company. The company's major brands include Royal Caribbean International, Celebrity Cruises, Azamara and Silversea Cruises. Meeanwhile, traders and investors were the least confident of Norweigan's growth prospects next year, as 29% of respondents told us Norwegian shares would rise the most in 2021. Norwegian shares fell nearly identical 56.2% in 2020 from almost identical that Carnival and Royal Caribbean share lagged. As for other travel stocks, it can be said that cheap ticket models in the spirit of Included (NYSE: SAVE), JetBlue Airlines Co. (NYSE: LUV) have the potential to drive demand for travel when a pandemic subsides. As the U.S. and global economy recovers, and if holiday travel recovers by summer 2021, budget-conscious travelers can first look for accommodation from the cheapest cruise lines. The study was conducted by Benzinga in December 2020 and included responses from a diverse population of adults aged 18 years or older. The study was entirely voluntary, without any incentives offered to potential respondents. The study reflects results from more than 500 adults. It's coming off a stretch where smart money was unloading some of the best names. Tesla Inc. (NASDAQ: TSLA) on Friday sued a former employee over claims of stolen trade secrets. What happened: The electric vehicle manufacturer accuses Alex Khatilova of stealing more than 6,000 software code files. The lawsuit was filed in U.S. District Court in California. Khatilov is a software engineer who worked at Tesli for less than two weeks late last year and earlier this year. Tesla says it immediately began transmitting the source code when it took the job. Khatilov says that he uploaded the files to Dropbox so that he could access them on his personal computer and that he did not know that dropbox use was prohibited. He says he didn't share the files with anyone. Why it matters: The code is used for back-end business and process automation, which Tesla says can be used by competitors. Tesla has experience aggressively going after former employees due to the theft of trade secrets. Trade Action: Tesla Shares friday at $846.64, up 0.2%.
