Esther hicks meditation relationships

You have the power to evoke from others the relationships you desire. But we cannot achieve a new and improved situation by paying attention to a current situation that is lacking. The Universe, and all physical and non-physical players in it, is responding to the Vibrations you are offering; and there is no distinction between the Vibrations you offer while watching, and the Vibrations you offer as images... If you simply imagine your life as you want it to be, all cooperative components will be evoked. More importantly, all the components that are evoked will cooperate. It's the law of attraction. You have the power to evoke from others a relationship that is in harmony with the freedom, growth and joy you seek, because within each of the others there are those probabilities. Within each of them there is a probability that someone is very understanding or not. Of someone who is very pleasant, or not. Of someone who has a very open mind, or not. Of someone who is very positive or negative. The experience you have with others is about what you cheer from them. React to expectations Have you had the experience of behaving with someone in a way that you didn't foresee? Did it come out of you all of a sudden? It was you who experienced the power of influence from another's expectations. Have you noticed the personality of a child changing depending on which adult is interacting? Collaborative and pleasant with one person, and stubborn and irritable with another? You were witnessing the power of influence from another's expectation. When you train in constant alignment with your broader perspective, you'll draw on the energy that creates worlds and be satisfied with the positive response you receive from those around you. No longer blame others with whom you share relationships; and instead, you recognize that you are the attractor of your experience. True freedom comes from this understanding. As we describe in The Vortex, when you tend to your relationship between you (in your physical focus) and the broader perspective of your inner being, as you train in the common sense thoughts of your Source, while aligning with who you really are, as you learn to love yourself, the others you interact with won't be able to counter that current of well-being. Either they will love you again or they will gravitate from your experience. A short bedtime exercise that transforms relationships as you lie in your bed before bed, if you think of good things from your past or present, or even speculate in your future, you will set the tone of vibration in which you will wake up in the morning. In the morning, when you first return to Consciousness, try to remember what you were thinking in the evening, make an effort to re-establish that positive tendency of thought. This little exercise will change the way everyone you meet responds to you on this new day. And as you do that, night after night, and then morning after morning, new patterns will emerge and your relationships will transform. 15 reasons why you can't trust Esther Hicks can't trust Esther Hicks...? Before you get off, make sure who's holding the rope... Learning not to trust David Stone's Abraham-Hicks analysis Have you ever wondered how Esther Hicks learned about the law of attraction and tunneling? It all came from her husband, Jerry Hicks, who died in 2011. But the real messenger, he argues, is Abraham. He describes Abraham as a hundred non-physical teachers who deposit blocks of thought in his head while he is in a trance. He translates the blocks into words, acting like Abraham and dropping the self in exchange for us. He is able to do it almost instantly on stage before the live audience, simply relaxing and letting them in. On stage, they begin with a greeting, a family warm-up. They tell you how happy they are to have you in mind for co-creation. This is followed by a riff on some subject, a kind of sermon. Then, you are invited to march and take a seat in the hot seat. You can ask Abraham for a one-on-one guide. Off stage, Esther says Abraham dictates the books forcing his fingers to type on a keyboard. That's the official story, though. In truth, Jerry pressured Esther to write books to fulfill a contract with Hay House. He cured them, even publicly insisting that they were the unspoiled wisdom of Abraham. Production of new books stopped when Jerry died. Did you take Abraham with you? It interprets blocks of thought from non-physical teachers informed directly by Fonte. What you and I call God is what he's talking about. Most, including role model Sheila Gillette, call what Esther does spiritual funnel. But Esther spurs that label, identifying itself as unique. Stumbles and mistakes show us that Abraham-Hicks could be a product of his ambitions and Jerry's? Or is there any divine source of wisdom? This article began with ten examples suggesting that Esther Hicks could not channel anything. At least no brilliant, educated or knowledgeable entity. And certainly no one intimately bound to God. Related: Is Paul Selig the Esther Hicks we wanted? Now I have a list of fifteen. Getting there was easy. The list of what Esther Hicks gets wrong every time Here's what, little by little, convinces me that Esther Hicks is it all off. I think Abraham-Hicks is a hoax. The reasons accumulate as more and more people look at and expose contradictions. as insiders get up and tell about their experiences with Hicks' operations. The easy life of cruising along their monster bus isn't close to the real 24 X 7 work of Abraham-Hicks management. You can't trust Esther Hicks One: This is a bonus. So, make sixteen reasons you can't trust Esther Hicks for guidance or wisdom. Honestly, I would have stopped at 15, but this was so terrible... There was no physical decline or damage from which you could not recover - no one - anyone, if you knew ... If I wanted to and knew you could. And these are those miracles that they talk about every day. They are not miracles at all, they are the natural order of things. But because they're rare, people think they're miraculous. I'm not. That's the way it should be. You should thrive. —AbrahamExcerpted from the workshop in San Diego, CA on February 23, 2002 We start with you wanted it... If it is physical damage, you want it - gone, that is. Easy. And now Esther tells you you could, why not let that scar go away? There's nothing stopping you. Abraham-Hicks' first follower who is fine with this advice, sends photos before and after. I'm going to post them here. Promise. But I'm not going to hold my breath and wait. Two Is Medical Advice They Don't Follow Themselves Jerry Hicks has lost his battle with cancer after choosing a course of treatment that is a direct contradiction of Abraham's teachings. Belittling conventional medicine, Esther — like Abraham — said that an almost immediate return to health is possible. Just change the vibrations. It would only take an afternoon, he said. While he blames cancer victims for not doing their vibes right, he's silent about Jerry. He slept next to Abraham for 25 years. Esther described him as better at managing his vibration than anyone alive. But then, he died. Silence is particularly golden when protecting cash flow. News of Jerry Hicks' illness was devastating. Clearly, he threatened to expose Abraham Hicks' teachings as false. After a clumsy effort to blame his hospitalization on a spider bite, they adapted the story. He chose heavy chemotherapy as a path of less endurance, a return to older and forgotten teachings. Not until Jerry Hicks died, Esther admitted to battling leukemia. He offered no explanation as to why he had not simply followed Abraham's teachings. Note: The best approach to medicine is, 'Well, I see your physical body is sick, what bothered you? What are you worried about? Says. Then, he continues, What are you angry about? What are you frustrated with? Because that's what's behind this. And then say, 'Let him go, let him go, let him go.' That's the message, and if they could hear you and do it, then they'd all be fine Via. - AbrahamExcerpted from ashland lab, Or Tuesday, May 16, 2000 Reason three why can't you trust Esther Hicks Did you know that a selfish child is like Jesus who didn't care about concerns about other people's toy (using Esther's word? With this fantastic statement, Esther abolished Jesus' well-known empathy and replaced it with indifference. (Remember, he claims that Jesus is a member of the Abraham collective of non-physical teachers. Previously, she aligned with Jesus and other religious figures such as Buddha and Mohammad. What Jesus was, Esther is, said while he was in his Abraham trance. It was the first time that Jesus became a narcissist or in love with wealth and goods. There's more. In the same sequence, a worried mother who came to Esther for advice introduced a new concern. It worried her - She couldn't stay in the vortex - that her son used to kick the family cat. The all-wise ester ordered the mother not to interfere when the child kicks their cat. It's between your son and the cat. The cat was teaching the brass, according to Esther. Comparing the selfishness of a child to Jesus favorably, followed by the encouragement of animal abuse ... Is this the spiritual guide to follow? Esther Hicks could make it difficult even for true believers to stay with her. Even the most deceived in a sect should see the dangers of letting a child kick a trapped cat. Fourth reason for mistrust... The lack of empathy revealed limited awareness of the contours of engagement in physical relationships. This is best seen in Esther's response to the pain caused by the loss of loved ones. He mocked mourners, referring to death as croaking. He chuckled that he was so disrespectful. Esther declares every experience of delightful death without exception. There's no one around who can contradict you. Growing mountains of evidence from SNEs, however, tell a different story. (Note: Esther dropped the references croaking when Jerry died. Instead, it's past. Gone was also his heartless remark that, It's always nice to see the old ones go. Jerry was 84, an old man.) Perhaps the meanest is his statement that, after death, we are — without exception — happy, even blessed. Even those with joyful lives who left children, dependents and other loved ones behind. This trivializes life on Earth, just like traditional religions do, showing this advantage of thought simply as a variation on a tired theme. #Five Humans didn't evolve from monkeys, Esther argues, but they were a whole new idea. Nice try, but we share about 97% of our genes. And the evolutionary trace is quite well known. channels, like Theo, have no problem with evolution. We might be clinging here more to Esther (and the of the country's lack of scientific knowledge. Here is the quote in all that is thick: There is thought, and there is form of thought, and there is manifestation. The event is always in the eye of the beholder. So this space-time reality that everyone is perceiving is nothing more than a vibrational interpretation. So the thought form of what man is was set by broader perspective, and it continued to evolve with the experience of those who were having the experience here on the planet. And what you see as a man or a human being is vibrational interpretation. Now, did the man come to the monkey? No, man was a different idea. So, how does the idea of evolution occur? And we say, because the idea of each species has been set up, and as you experience the species, the idea expands. So the expansion is happening from the Leading Edge place and is supported by the source energy that flows wherever the idea goes. Esther also said that humans were on Earth during the dinosaur period, missing his hypothesis of a few million years. Don't you think that no non-physical entity with access to all the insights of the universe, as Esther and Jerry Hicks Abraham argue, could really know what every high school science student already knows? Five other reasons why you can't trust Esther Hicks Reason Number Six Abraham Live, perhaps the most gruesome thing to get out of the abraham-hicks marketing machine, even though the title itself wasn't weirdly funny, ran in conjunction with the workshops. For only seventy-five dollars, without the right to record a copy, followers could watch Esther do his shtick on their computers. In short, the Hicks Team was webcasting their labs, just like monster churches do, and they were probably teaming up to ask followers to take their subscription fees, taking greed to a whole new level. As Gordon Gecko pointed out, greed can be good, but if you consider the sales field for this thing, it's hard to imagine who would have earned seventy-five dollars hard earned for it or, in fact, because followers aren't already running away. Quoting directly from the announcement: We recently had a chat with Abraham about these upcoming global broadcasts of our live seminars, which will allow people to attend a live event without actually being in the room. So many people, from so many places around the world, have asked to travel to their countries so they can participate with Abraham, and this new live stream responds to that request. It will be a great way for people who can't be, or don't want to be, in the seminar room participate again in the seminar. As Abraham used the word attends, Jerry asked: Since the people will not be in the room and will not raise their hands, and will not be able to sit in the warm seat to ask their question, what does Abraham mean for Abraham smiled... Now, considering the involuntary humor of going live with a group of non-physical teachers who claim to be more dead than dead, you might overlook the suggestion of having a chat with them, but what made me smile was Abraham smiled... Now, exactly how does a non-physical entity, which Esther Hicks supports give her blocks of thought, smile ...? Nathan argues in the comments that if Abraham can convey the thought with emotion, then they can convey a smile. Of course, in reality, Esther claims to convey blocks of thought, not thoughts with emotion and a smile is a whole other thing. Nice try, Nathan. The word whacky doesn't even cover it. And then, there were seven... Asked about severely disabled children Abraham said these were old souls arriving damaged, just for the experience, saying nothing about how distressed parents attracted them. An important aspect of their preaching about the law, as explained, is that we always have control over everything that happens in our lives. A random genetic error, an accident, is not possible, since each individual creates every aspect of his own experience. Esther here presents a fairly insane theory and explanations impossible to justify untenable circumstances. In June 2004, Esther stated: Every part is about the economy. Everything, without exception. Everything about religion is about the economy. Everything about politics is about the economy. And everything about the economy is personal satisfaction. Everyone is personally motivated to do the best they can do on their own. But in Kansas City in September of the same year, he said: Your world is aiming for an insistence on compliance that is causing you enormous pain. It is what is at the heart of all your religious battles, and religious battles are what is at the heart of all your battles. In other words, all your wars and global irritation with each other are about your determination to promote the namesake. Your democracy insists that it is the only government that works. And every religion (interestingly) proclaims that it is the only one that works. But Esther, didn't you say it was just about economics? Oh, well... Now, You've Got Nine Recent books, especially in the series that begins with the Power of Emotions as a subject, are not direct quotes from Abraham. They are remade, teachings stretched out with lessons in objects, in the style of Abraham's early recordings. They are expelled by Jerry Hicks, according to his own lights, which reduces their credibility for several reasons that we can save for another time. To get a better perspective on this, try to get your hands on the audio version of these At the end of each, they include a live session recording. The difference is dramatic. Also, Jerry, not Esther who appears only in the introduction, reads aloud. Jerry never claimed to channel Abraham. Note: These later books were a repackaging of Abraham for profit. This makes them someone's selective interpretation, not the pure, intestinal stuff directly from Abraham. Ten: From the simple law of attraction teachings, Abraham-Hicks' team has added many complicated procedures and new ideas. Now, instead of getting what you think about and birds from a flock of feathers together, we have a vortex where the desired things are kept in escrow. They were not delivered because the time is not yet over or, the permanent explanation, you will not let him in. When it was revealed that, contrary to the claims of Esther and Jerry Hicks, the Law of Attraction did not originate with them, they migrated it to the term clunkier but much more convenient Vortex of attraction, which it does. End Of The List For What Esther Hicks Always Gets Wrong Eleven: The 2012 harmonic convergence predictions. At first, Abraham shrugged off these speculations as useless because, according to the Law of Attraction, we get what we attract at the time, and nothing can be foreseen in advance. Later, under pressure from true believers in their new age audience, they fell into the harmonic convergence line and talked about new knowledge and awareness in today's world that would lead to major changes in 2012. Popular demand has generated new truths, it seems. By the way, none of the big changes have ever occurred. Wrong again, Abe. Twelve: Wisdom Wisdom, if feasible, doesn't need all the control of marketing and image used by Abraham-Hicks. It's becoming as if Jesus threw expensive sandals and offered to lead paid pilgrimages. In an almost macabre whirlwind of Jerry's cancer in a marketing tool, Abraham Hicks on July 7, 2011, sent an email explosion with this exact wording: We appreciate so much all the requests and love you sent our way and wanted to give you a quick update. We'll be wanting Del Mar on Monday for the next phase of our balancing act to get Jerry back on his feet and feel lively. Every day we are experiencing the relief we can only receive from Abraham as they remind us of the power of the Vortex. We enjoy comfort when we are able to ignore the temporary that-is. Abraham recorded a wonderful segment for Jerry last night guiding him to full comfort and ease, and that's exactly what he's focusing on now. We will continue our city-to-city workshop program as published, which means we'll enjoy company of our friends in San Francisco on Saturday, July 9th. If you want to join the generally lively Frisco workshop group, you can call the office before 4 4 CDT on Fridays (830-755-2299). The last workshop in San Francisco was filled at full capacity, so a phone reservation would ensure we don't run out of chairs. They didn't even get into a paragraph break amid the news that Abraham records a segment, whatever it was, probably a lab test tape, for Jerry and the ticket field. This is not as illiterate as Freudian. Thirteen: In twenty-five years, would these eternal beings with direct access to the Source, or be supreme, not have had an original, really useful idea? I would have been happy with a simple cure for the common cold. (Nathan again, commenting below, implies that Abraham provided a cure for the common cold. To the right. My mistake. Here it is: Don't think about a cold and you won't get one. How did we lose it for so long!) Move over, Jerry, we have tickets to sell. Abraham never had a new idea. Esther and Jerry have just taken the techniques developed by Seth and Theo, with whom Jerry and Esther were very familiar before Abraham's arrival, and mixed with the ideas of the New Thought Movement. Abraham's hot seat conversations with attendees are fun and sometimes enlightening, but they never interrupt new avenues. I'm not saying that occasionally they don't go out something fantastic, but something useful and objectively observable would be nice. Most of us would like what Esther preaches to be true. Well, not the animal abuse stuff, but a lot of things. How about we're told how radiation or toxins make cells cancerous? Golden star for Esther, if she can hook that. Fourteen: Abraham's teachings are simple. There has been nothing new in decades, except exercises and concepts such as the Vortex. But like an unrestrained jalopy, the machine keeps rolling from seminary to seminary until cash is available. Is that what someone who professes to be wise and who everyone knows how Abraham would do? Why not give it away? So why keep pumping new products and cruises when there's nothing more to say? It is fair to assume that an entity with wisdom and access to Esther and Jerry Hicks argue that Abraham would be thrilled. For many of us, they once were, but here's a recent entry from their swirling writings: Fifteen: Thudding boredom and marginal literacy entered the realm of Esther, Jerry, and Abraham Hicks. I can attract relationships that I agree with my desires ... People have no difficulty finding the companion of their dreams because that person is not out there, but because of their contradiction with their desire in the thoughts they offer on the subject every day. When you constantly offer thoughts about your future relationship feel good while you think about them, that means you're constantly matching desires that that discovered how you lived life. And under those conditions, only someone who agrees with your wishes could come to you. Under these conditions, no need for control is necessary. Through each exposure to interaction with others, you launch continuous rockets of desires of what you prefer. And only when you're a VibrationAl Match at the height of those desires will you allow your date with someone who matches those intentions you've collected along your physical path. - AbrahamExcerpted from the book, The Vortex, Where the Law of Attraction Assembles All Cooperative Relationships #80 Anyone who can read it without dozing has my admiration. Who thought that someone who claimed so much wisdom could be such endless boredom? Sixteen: Abraham-Hicks baffled by string theory... You'd think an entity that claims access to all the wisdom the world has ever known would be able to comment on a popular scientific thread that might reinforce some of their claims, but not. According to a recording provided by a friend who prefers to remain anonymous, Abraham does not even know which theory is best known for explaining the existence of the universe. Simply, superstring theory (commonly known as string) tries to explain some of the peculiarities of quantum physics and how it fails to match relativity by proposing extra dimensions and constituents of matter that make the quantum world look as it does. Abraham, after hearing a man describe himself as a recovering physicist and make a simple explanation of what string theory should have done, listened politely as Esther explained that going back in time was a waste, seeming to see string theory as something to do with evolution, of which, of course, we already know he has no idea. If Esther Hicks continues to pretend Abraham, she'd do well to read some newer books and stop looking in the mirror while ticket sales count. In Conclusion: Why you can't trust Esther Hicks If you believe, like me, that anyone offering guidance from the highest spiritual source should be consistent and original, you'll find Esther Hicks deficient. If you believe that a God worthy of being would be compassionate, you will not find him in Abraham. My fifteen reasons are a brief summary. I could easily find a hundred contradictions and mistakes. If you are looking for a teacher, you can find better. And that's a fact. Done.
