A: The Texas Lottery will report winning the IRS lottery prize after the award is claimed, as required by federal law. For U.S. citizens, the federal government requires that lottery winnings be reported to the IRS for tax purposes if a person wins $600 or more and if the winnings are at least 300 times the amount of a bet per board, or the agreements are subject to a federal income tax deduction (the winnings are greater than $5,000). The tax deduction rate is 24% for winning, minus the bet, because they are greater than $5,000. Withholding tax on the reward is calculated on the total amount of gross revenue (the amount of winnings minus the amount he was). If you have questions about the tax implications of winning every Texas lottery game, including drawing at a promotional second chance, we recommend consulting your own accountant or tax advisor. For awards with values less than $600 a claim form is not required and the value is not reported to the IRS for tax purposes. These awards will be filed immediately by the vendor upon receiving a list of winners from the Texas Lottery Commission. Q: Can I change my mind and lower the prize? A: You have the option not to claim the prize you won. In such a case the prize will be awarded for alternative entry. Once a claim form is submitted and approved, the prize is considered to be claimed, and cannot be changed or refused after that point, and the tax liability will be levied by the prize winner.
