BWI Airport is about 10 miles south of downtown Baltimore. It currently ranked 24th in the busiest airport in the United States, 47th in the world and transports about 22 million passengers annually. BWI Airport opened in 1950 and is named Friendship International Airport after a nearby Methodist church. In 1972 the airport was purchased by Maryland and renamed Baltimore Airport/Washington International Airport in an effort to bring passengers from the Washington D.C. area. In 2005 the airport was renamed in honor of Thurgood Marshall's first African-American Supreme Court justice. Located at the end of I-195 Baltimore-Washington International Airport has a variety of parking options, including clock, daily, express, long-term, garage, and a servant. Ove Ove include: Garage per hour, Living garage, Express parking, BWI railway garage, long-term A and long-term B. BWI consists of five halls (A, B, C, D, E) with 86 doors, all connected via sidewalk. There are 13 airlines flying to and from BWI Airport, and Southwest Airlines is using Baltimore as a focus city. There are a range of dining, retail and airport services for travelers at Baltimore-Washington Thurgood Marshall International Airport. Thurgood Marshall Airport can be reached by a variety of trains, including Amtrak, MARC and Light Rail. Other modes of transport include taxis, vans, shuttles, bus and car rental. There are 25 hotels and motels serving any budget, many with friendly airport transfers. Shuttle to campus is available by taxi (20 minutes) or light rail service (45 minutes). If you drive from the BWI to the MICA campus follow the directions above from Washington, D.C., and point south. (BWI is a hub for southwesterly air.) BWI Airport is also connected to baltimore's regional light rail line. You can find a light train station on this map on BWIAirport.com. The cost of a ride from BWI Airport to the MICA campus is $1.60 at full price, $1.20 for students with valid identification. There are price boxes at the station that only take cash. Take light rail north to the University of Baltimore/Mount Royal station. The core of the MICA campus is located one block north of that light rail stop. Stop.
