Writers use these characters to develop a story and convey a central idea. The author makes his text appealing with the help of characters, as the characters provide a skeleton for the story. Likewise, the characters in Crucible's book reflect Miller's idea of immorality, injustice and inequality. Some of the play's main characters are discussed below. The characters in the crucible character #1 John Proctor/He is the proctor/He pro character that the story revolves around. She is Elizabeth's husband and Abigail's former lover. The travel story presents his inner sin to become a man with morality. She remains discontent throughout the play because of the acts of women she has committed in the past. He is concerned about his good reputation and lives for fear of losing it. Therefore, she does not reveal the secret of Abigail and the girls at the beginning of witchcraft hysteria. Although he makes great efforts to fight his fears, he fails and ultimately admits it in court. His confession during the witch trial is a confession of his treason. His #2 Abigail Williams is the second main character and an antagonist in the play. Abigail Williams is seventeen years old and Promesco and tends to take revenge. He's gonna wed the whole plan to get John Procter back while he wants to get rid of him, which makes him exact revenge. She is also responsible for collecting girls with Titoba in the forest but denies it. He hates Procter's wife Elizabeth and thinks Procter avoids him because of his wife. He plans to make Salem pay for it, cast a spell on Elizabeth and doesn't care about the sacrifices of innocent people. When his plan fails, however, he escapes Salem and leaves Procter, and many innocent people face trial as well as lose their lives. The #3 Reverend Hale/He is a well-accredited minister and wizarding expert who comes to Salem to identify witchcraft. He dedicates himself to his work and plans to investigate Abigail's allegations. He initially believes that witchcraft or evil conspiracy is not a bishop, but a reality in Salem. However, after meeting Procter and his wife, he expresses skepticism about Abigail's accusation. When he realizes that Abigail is a liar, he decides to save others from execution. He stands up to the court's decision because he is concerned about truth and justice. Unlike, his pro-procter also suffered To his false judgments, yet he fights to save the innocent. The #4 Danforth/He is the Deputy Governor of Massachusetts who comes to the health to investigate witchcraft cases. He is intelligent and open-minded. He has confidence, as he thinks he can see the difference between truth and lies. He believes in the superiority of the church and believes that obeying the church is like obeying God and going against it is disobeying God. She assumes that Abigail Williams and the girls do not make an allegation. If someone tries to go against their decisions, it will happen. He sees his decision-making ability as perfect and does not tolerate any objections. Through this character, Miller projects the dominant nature of humans as well as the dominance of the ancient church. Proctor/she #5 Elizabeth character is John Procter's wife and appears in the beginning as a conceit, rude and cool but gets wiser and better by the end. She is portrayed as a moral lady in the play. When she discovers her husband's illicit relationship with Abigail, she takes care but remains loyal to him. In fact, he calls on Procter to stop for the witch trial and reveal Abigail's reality. Not only does he prevent her from handing over a false confession to the court, she also gives him. A #6 Rebecca secondary character, Rebecca is the wife of nurse Francis. He is a highly respected figure in Salem until he is accused of witchcraft. Miller portrays this character with dignity, honor and respect. She is presented as a good-hearted woman with strong moral values. Her neighbour, Ms. Vpnnam, is in a bad condition with her accusing her of witchcraft. Ironically, a society that praises him for his morals at once turned against him. Even after this blame, no one finds a clue against him, and the minister, Hill, states that Satan has also been praised by God. He remains a strong character throughout the play. The #7 Reverend secondary character is Parris/Another, the Rev. Parris Salem Minister, Father Betty and uncle Abigail Williams. He is a strict father and a minister. Yet his harsh and unbearable judgments sometimes put his position at risk. Unlike an insecure proter and obsessive, he has his reputation. Fear of getting hurt and captured more than he did all the time. He believes that someone is conspiring against his position. Although he represents strength, he is also the character of a megalomaniac. The #8 Mrs Ann Vponam, the wife of Thomas Vpnham, Ms. Ann plays a major role in making an innocent in the play. She loses her seven children and believes in the existence of supernatural elements. She has soured her relationship with nurse Rebecca and led her to accuse Rebecca of witchcraft and endanger her respectable life. It is ironic that his guilt and suspicion have brought disaster upon an innocent character. Through this character, Miller offers the ugly side of human nature. A #9 Thomas putnam A very cunning and greedy man, Thomas Canonam tricks others into taking their own land. He is one of the most influential figures in Salem. She wants to make her brother-in-law a healthy office minister, but failed because of her neighbour Francis Nurse. He has since held a grudge against him. Together with his wife, he deliberately blames his neighbors for the witchcraft that takes their land and fulfills his spiteful nature, which represents deception. In #10 Tituba one of the most important secondary characters, Titoba plays an important role in advocat for hysteria in Salem. He is a slave to the Paris priest and a member of the band who goes into the woods to call ghosts with Abigail. He appears only a few times in the play but plays a critical role to highlight the theme of witchcraft. Minor characters, Thomas Canonam's wife, Ms. Vpnum is as bitter as her husband but for a variety of reasons: only one of the many babies she has given birth to has survived from an inf suckling. Rebecca nursed the wife of wealthy farmer Francis Nurse. Rebecca is a very popular and admired figure in Salem for her religiousness and good sense. She also served as a midwife on many birthdays. Judge Hawthorne is a proud and unpleasant healthy judge who sees portiant government as absolutely right. As a representative of that government, he believes in the perfection of his own intellect and judgment. Mary Warren is a teenage girl and a maid in the Protucker family who replaces Abigail Williams. She is a girl generally nice and relaxed. She's afraid of criminally, but she's more afraid of Abigail. She is Abigail's closest friend and the second commander of the girls' group behind the trials. Teen girl Betty Paris priest Paris. In many ways he looks like a typical teenager rebelled against his overly protective father. A follower, he quickly falls in line with Abigail's conspiracy. Titoba is a slave to the Paris priest, he is originally from Barbados. Titoba fears Paris, which generally blames him for anything that goes wrong at home. As a black female slave, she represents the lowest-lingering healthy society. Ms. Usbum identifies one of Titoba's women as a witch for the first time. She served as a midwife for three of Ms. Vpnham's ill-fated deliveries, Susanna Walcott, a girl in Salem who works for The City Doctor. Sarah Good is an old woman and drunk town who often goes begging from door to door. Ezekiel Cheever A court clerk during the Salem Witch trials. City Marshal Herrick Salem (Police) Marshall. Martha Currie, wife of Giles Currie. he never appears on stage .
