Look! are here: Nestle Wonka Candy Company Wonka Bar Roald Dahl wrote several drafts of Charlie and the Chocolate Factory before finishing the one we know so well today. In the final draft, Charlie Bucket is one of five lucky kids who win a Golden Ticket to Willy Wonka's Chocolate Factory. But we know from some of Roald's notes and previous drafts that he originally wrote about much more than just five - at one point there were even up to ten. This photo shows a page of one of these early manuscripts, which are kept safe at the Roald Dahl Museum and the History Center in Roald's hometown of Great Missenden. You will see at the top (in the first image above), Roald has written '4th draft'. So it's very special. As you can see, this draft includes not only the five children we know, but another young woman named Miranda Mary Piker, a girl who is allowed to do whatever she wants. And like Veruca, Violet, Mike and Augustus, Miranda also came to a sticky ending - and you can find more about that here...
