Apk extension chrome

Photo: Thaspol Sangsee (Shutterstock) If you're a fan of Facebook but hate its recent redesign, there's hope. You can no longer go back to old Facebook simply by clicking on a button on your settings menu, but you can install a Chrome extension that magically transforms the site, recounts the look and feels like you've enjoyed it before. To get started, go to the right visit called Old Plan and install the extension to your browser. And, yes, the same person who made these extensions an ever-useful social dealer spread that helps you feed your news feed to immerse the content you don't want to see. Matt Kruse, you're on a roll. Once you install extensions, Facebook should automatically return to your classic appearance the next time you fire up the site. There's nothing you have to configure to get this lovely look back:Picture: David MurphyAs for how it works, I was surprised to find that the hack is actually pretty simple. No, the extension is using a bunch of HTML and CSS wizards to change everything Facebook has updated to look older and feel. In fact, as Kruse writes: This Facebook trick offers you an old layout by making your browser pretend to be an older version that doesn't support your new G/O Media Plan may be so commissions, if you're seeing any weird messages about updating your browser while you browse through your friends' bored quarantine lives, ignore them. Your browser is good; You just think Facebook you're using something you're not. There is no guarantee this little trick will work forever, so enjoy old Facebook while you can. And, yes, you can combine these extensions with social dealer to keep an older look and curate the free feed of topics you hate. That includes all the annoying content supported by Facebook, which eats up valuable real estate on the site and diminishes its ability to enjoy seeing what your friends are up to. If that's all too much, though, I suspect you can also use handy social book manager extensions to slowly delete your content on Facebook before deleting your Facebook. That seems like a bit of action shots too to facebook's new layout - which even I don't like - but it's important to consider all your options, I suppose. One of the best things about Google Chrome is the ability to expand its functionality by adding a myriad of extensions to help improve performance, usability, privacy, and productivity. Here's how to install and manage your Google Chrome extensions. How to install Chrome extensions, download official Chrome extensions from the Chrome Web Store from sources you know or trust. You need to make sure it's safe before installing it by doing a bit because of trying and checking the developer's website -if they have a ranking, and even skimming through the source code you're a mile from now . Related: How to make sure a Chrome extension is secure before installing it head over to the Chrome Web Store for extensions and use either search bar or list by category to find the right extension for you. If you're not sure where to start, Google is doing a very good job of curating the store and recommending extensions on the front page. After finding the extension, you want to add, click the icon to redirect to its page. Related: The best Chrome extensions to make Gmail better when you're on the extension page, click Add to Chrome to add extensions to your browser. A window comes up and prompts you with the required extension permissions. Read the permissions carefully and decide if you want to access this extension, then click Add extension. When the extension is finished, an icon is usually added to your Chrome browser in the top right corner, next to the Settings icon. As you install more extensions, this area may begin to clutter. Fortunately, you can right-click the extension icon and select Hide in the Chrome menu to move it to the menu and outside the Chrome toolbar. How to manage Chrome extensions to open your extensions page, click the menu icon (three dots) on the top right of Chrome, point to more tools, then click Extensions. You can also chrome://extensions/ in Omnibox Chrome and press Enter. Navigate through your extensions to find the button you want to manage and click the Details button to pull up its settings. Otherwise, if you know which extension you want to change—and it's already docked on your browser—you can right-click the extension icon on the Chrome shelf, then click Manage Extensions to bypass going to the main extensions landing page. In the Settings window, you can turn the extension on or off, allow it in incognito mode (most apps are disabled there by default), access the options of an extension, open the extension website and allow access to the site. This is a recent update that allows people to take a more granular approach to the type of format data can read and change. You are able to choose from three options: when you click on extensions, on a specific website, or on all websites. thats all there is for him . If you are looking to remove any extensions you no longer need, start mistreatment, or were accidentally installed, head over chrome://extensions/, click Delete, and then click Delete again in the popup confirmation window. Likewise, you can right-click the extension on the Chrome menu and select Remove from Chrome. We have collected 100 awesome and useful Google Chrome To make this a great list that is easy to digest because they are all categorized! By tweaking your Google Chrome, it can make your browser much more productive and interesting. Enjoy! Business Tools1. Gmail OfflineGmail Offline is one of the most useful tools I downloaded. A lot of times emails come in faster than I can respond to them, but disconnecting from the internet while I reply to what's already in my inbox can be a big help. In addition, when you are not connected, you will use less battery power.2. Google CalendarGoogle is an app that gives you quick access to your Google Calendar. Aside from direct links to your main calendar, there is also the option to see and manage your calendar while offline. This is very useful for the same reasons as the top Gmail offline app.3. Smartt Inbox for GmailSmartt Inbox for Gmail is a great extension for your Google Chrome browser. You will be able to see social accounts for your contacts, which is a great way to better understand customers and/or keep up with family and friends, all from your Gmail mailbox.4. Google tasks (by Google) If you're not aware, Google has a Tasks app and is currently part of your Gmail and Google calendar. While it's very bare bones, it can still be useful. Using the Google Tasks extension (by Google) will make Google's tasks more accessible and therefore more effective.5 Always Clear DownloadsAlways Clear Downloads is a Google Chrome extension made to solve the problem of that ugly download bar that appears at the bottom of your Chrome browser window after you download any type of file. This will save you the task of clicking the Close X button every time you download something.6. LiteGrammarly Lite Grammarly is a great spell checker for your browser window. This is different from most others because it will check your grammar as well as your spelling. If you loathe people who mistakenly place the wrong type of word in the wrong part of a sentence, grammar will help you avoid becoming one of them.7 KeyRocket for GmailKeyRocket for Gmail is a somewhat educational tool: while you're using Gmail, KeyRocket helps you learn keyboard shortcuts. Knowing what archives an email versus deleting it will help you get through your inbox much faster, and the faster you get through all your emails, the more likely you are to keep your message number low—maybe even zero.8. PanicButtonPanicButton allows you to hide all your windows and tabs at once and opens the pre-start window—some people press this as a boss. You can even protect the password button so that they can't restore tabs without it. If the button is too obvious, a keyboard shortcut can be used instead.9 Excellent New PageThe Awesome New Tab Tab is a great way to create a A useful start for your Google Chrome browser: When you create a new page or tab, The window will open.
