Fuller, one of the largest and most diverse seminaries in the world, is known as a leader in theological education. Our attention to academic excellence, combined with the bold commitment of the Church and culture, is rooted in a firm commitment to our Evangelical Christian faith. About 4,000 students from 110 denominations and 90 countries complete degree courses in Theology, Intercultural Studies and Psychology each year in our six locations. All Fuller employees are required to comply with our Community Standards, and those with teaching or managerial positions must sign our Declaration of Faith. Explore our website to learn more about us. If Fuller's dynamic work environment inspires your passion, consider applying for one of our open positions. Please be aware that due to COVID-19, there will be a delay in our recruitment efforts and a pause in taking non-critical positions right now due to the remotely working HR Office. The Fuller campus will continue to follow local, state, and federal guidelines regarding the Safer-At-Home Order to control the spread of COVID-19. Thank you for your interest in working at Fuller. We can't wait to connect soon! You'll find instructions at the Fuller Job Center on how to create a user ID to apply for locations. The hiring manager for each position determines which candidates to interview and initiate all appropriate follow-ups and notifications. At the end of the interview process, the hiring supervisor will inform all candidates of the hiring decision. Please contact the HR office for any questions or concerns. Fuller Theological Seminary is an employer for equal employment opportunities/affirmative action. To the extent required by law, all qualified applicants will receive employment consideration regardless of race, color, religion, gender, national origin, disability, or protected veteran status. As a religious institution, Fuller Theological Seminary is permitted and reserves the right to prefer employees for certain positions based on religion. All positions must accept Fuller's Community Standards of Conduct, and some positions must fully accept Fuller's Declaration of Faith. You've probably been a volunteer in the Youth Ministry for a long time. You spent hours in prayer, asking God for discernment, and when he arrived, you answered the call to become a youth ministry leader. Perhaps you have enrolled in the lessons and dedicated your nights and weekends to disproving text and write papers, and on your Sunday morning at internships and workouts. You applied for a job, were interview, met countless elders and Church leaders, and eventually got the job. Now, you're getting to know your volunteers, emailing parents, and scheduling weekly meetings for your group of young people. Hai Hai on games, snacks, and, for some reason, a whole drawer full of adhesive tape. What's the next step? If you are in your early years of the Ministry of Youth, we want to say welcome. We are excited about your passion for mentoring and youth discipline. And we'd like to help you answer some of your biggest questions about young people, such as: How can I help conversations in our group of young people go deeper? Why do my young people seem so stressed and how can I help? What should I say if a young person has doubts about faith? We know you want to do more than entertain young people: you want to make your church the best place to raise young people change our world. Above all, you want to nurture a lasting faith in young people that continues to flourish long after you graduate outside your ministry. Our free gift for you at the Fuller Youth Institute, our team of ministry leaders, researchers and parents wants to collaborate with you throughout the trip. When you sign up for The Ministry of Youth 101 we will send you a series of 5 emails, each of which has undone an important principle of discipleship that we have collected from our years of research and partnership with ministry leaders like you. We want to give you advice and tools that will equip you with a fruitful and fulfilling ministry. Register the Ministry of Youth 101 and start regulating your young people for a faith that lasts.
